FATHER IS BURNED IN HEROIC RESCUE OF GIRL IN FLAMES

Firemen Finally Find Unconscious Child on Floor Behind Bed in Clifford Echols' Home on Greenwood Avenue.

2 OTHER CHILDREN CARRIED TO SAFETY

Neighbor Also Slightly Injured as He Is Beaten Back by Flames in Aiding Rescuers.

Heroic efforts of a father, his neighbors and firemen saved the lives of three small children, trapped in a burning house at 949 Greenwood avenue, N. E., Thursday night.

Six-year-old Virginia Echols and her father, Clifford Echols, 28, were burned when flames which followed an explosion almost destroyed the rear part of the Echols home at 949 Greenwood avenue. Two other Echols children, Ted, aged 2, and Doris, 4, were carried out of the burning residence by Echols and neighbors.

Firemen said they believed the fire started in a back hall near the meter, a short circuit causing an explosion. The flames ate through the roof and walls in the back part of the home.

Alone in the home when the fire broke out, the Echols children became panic-stricken, and ran for their lives. The two smaller children went toward the front of the house, but Virginia, completely distracted by the sudden burst of flames and smoke about her, fled to a back bedroom.

She ran from the fire as far as she could under a bed and was overcome by smoke.

Fight Way Through Flames.

Braving the flames in the room, Fireman A. D. Isbell and Lieutenant J. T. Webb sought for her. Isbell found the unconscious child huddled on the floor behind the bed. He was burned as he picked her up and carried her to safety. She was admitted to Grady hospital where she was taken in a Harry G. Poole ambulance, and doctors said her condition was fair. She was burned about the face and head, but the physicians said she was suffering from near-suffocation and shock.

Her father's hair was burned off and his face and head seared by the

$2,100,000 Offer Made For Hurt Building

An offer to purchase the Hurt building for $2,100,000, of which $1,500,000 is to be paid in cash, was made Wednesday in Fulton superior court and was referred to Judge Edgar E. Pomeroy, who set a hearing for January 8.

The offer came from D. Frank Mennis, of New York, described as representing the Hurt interests in Atlanta. Under the proposed scheme the remainder of the purchase price would be backed by a bond issue at 6 per cent of five-year duration. The offer is made contingent upon an agreement Atlanta Trust Company, trustees under the original bond issue, will abandon their claims of usury and convey title to Walter C. Hendrix and Ronald Ransom, receivers of the building.

DE KALB SLAYING LAID TO QUARREL WITH BOY OVER AX

Hoke Ramey, 38, Dairyman, Shot to Death by Fellow Worker; Self Defense Claimed.

A father's desire to help his son in an argument cost Hoke Ramey, 38, his life Thursday.

The story of how Ramey took up an argument over an ax which was started by his son, Boyd, was told to Sheriff Jake Hall, of DeKalb county Thursday night by Thomas L. Warren, who said he shot the elder Ramey to death at the J. J. Richardson dairy at Montreal, a settlement in DeKalb county, late Thursday afternoon. Warren is held at the DeKalb jail on a charge of murder. He surrendered voluntarily.

The shooting affray took place at 5:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon at the dairy where both Warren and Ramey were employed. Warren said he fired two shots which killed the father and then he went to Decatur and gave himself up to the sheriff.

Ramey and his family moved to Montreal recently from Clarkston, DeKalb county police said, and several days ago Boyd Ramey, an older son of Hoke, got into an argument with Warren over an ax which had

1935 Cotton Acreage Is Estimated by AAA

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(AP)—The agricultural adjustment administration estimated today that 34,400,000 acres would be planted to cotton in 1935 and that the government would pay growers $94,230,030.

The farmers who participate in the voluntary reduction program are to receive 3 1-2 cents a lint pound for the average number of pounds the acres they rent to the government produced in the 1928-32 period.

An estimate made public by the AAA included: Georgia, $5,100,800 rental, and $2,932,960 parity payments.

BUSINESS PLEDGES SUPPORT TO F. D. R. IN RECOVERY DRIVE

Manufacturers Authorize Nation-Wide Committee To Map Super-Program for Prosperity.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—(AP)—The congress of American industry tonight pledged co-operation with the government in working for recovery.

Appointment of a nation-wide committee was authorized to formulate a super-program for prosperity.

"A program for recovery, upon which all business elements of the country may unite in co-operating with government, is of the utmost importance," stated the resolution authorizing the move.

C. L. Bardo, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, the group sponsoring the congress, was asked to name a committee of manufacturers to work with a similar committee from the United States Chamber of Commerce in formulating the program.

Group to Map Program.

It was recommended that the committee jointly invite other representative businessmen to constitute a larger committee in working out the super-program.

"The congress of American industry is conscious of the high obligation of industry to co-operate effectively with every sound effort of the administration to meet and overcome the economic crisis that confronts the nation," it was stated in the congress' own "platform for recovery" adopted tonight.

"It recognizes the serious burden of responsibility which the administration faces, and pledges its support and co-operation in all efforts both public and private to help the government. . . ."

Final work of the congress was speeded by a Roosevelt administration request for co-operation.

Roper Offers Program.

Daniel C. Roper, secretary of commerce, plumped a 6-point co-operative program into the laps of the businessmen at the congress, and every point was applauded.

DAVIS WARNS JAPS TO UPHOLD TREATY

'Suspicion and Costly Competition' Would Follow Abrogation.

LONDON, Dec. 6.—(AP)—A resounding American warning that the end of present naval treaties would mean "conditions of insecurity, of international suspicion and of costly competition" came today to climax strenuous, but fruitless, efforts to get Japan to delay denouncing the 1922 Washington pact.

United States Ambassador-at-Large Norman H. Davis voiced the warning, regarded as aimed at Japan, in an address before the American Correspondents' Association.

The speech—the first public statement of United States policy since the tri-power naval conversations began here—also disclosed that President Roosevelt had proposed "substantial all-around reduction in naval armaments."

Shortly afterward it was disclosed that the American delegation has been busy all this week trying to induce the Japanese to postpone their proposed denunciation of the Washington treaty until 1935 or later.

The Tokyo government, however, has maintained its firm decision to abrogate the pact, which gives the Japanese navy the short end of the famed 5-5-3 ratio, not later than December 20.

IOU's in Relief Cash Drawer Described in Dunnaway Case

Involved financial operations at the Edgewood district office of the Fulton county relief administration were brought out Thursday on the trial of Roy S. Dunnaway, charged with larceny after trust in the handling of cash vouchers of employes of the organization.

Dunnaway, former office manager of the Edgewood avenue branch, is on trial before Judge C. W. Worrill, of Cuthbert, presiding in an emergency division of Fulton superior court.

The fact that there were $123 worth of personal IOU'S in the district cash box the night before $150 disappeared from the box in an alleged robbery was testified to by Joseph LaRocca, district manager, and was related by Dunnaway in his unsworn statement.

Dunnaway told the jury that the night before the money disappeared he had gone home and that LaRocca came to his house and told him that the auditors were coming the next day, took him to the Hurt building in his car and gave him $105 in cash, instructing him to take up the IOU'S.

The defendant said that he went to the office and placed the money in the box, along with a slip signed by himself showing an $18 shortage.

LaRocca, called as a defense witness, admitted that he borrowed the $105 from three friends, including $8

COCA-COLA TO BUY CITY SALARY SCRIP

Atlanta's 4,000 municipal employes Thursday were assured ready cash for Christmas shopping, when the Coca-Cola Company agreed to absorb $400,000 worth of city scrip representing December salaries.

Alderman Ed A. Gilliam, chairman of council's finance committee, who has been attempting to find a buyer for the scrip, announced success of his venture as soon as he was assured that the company had acceded to his importunities.

Action of the company Thursday is the second consecutive year in which the organization has come to the rescue of employes and made Santa Claus a reality. Last year, the company cashed about $500,000 worth of the securities.

Banks to Cash Scrip.

The scrip will be cashed immediately by any of the four Atlanta Clearing House banks—the Trust Company of Georgia, the First National Bank, the Fulton National Bank and the Citizens' & Southern National Bank.

SEWER DISTRICT BILL TO BE URGED

Creation of a metropolitan sewer district to provide improvements, maintain and perform all sewer services for Fulton and DeKalb counties will be asked of the 1935 session of the Georgia legislature, it was decided Thursday at a meeting of the better government commission, which was attended by city and county officials and leading citizens.

Details of the commission as proposed in the tentative bill provide, among other things, the following:

1. Raising of necessary revenue by a levy on the number of gallons of water consumed, with a limitation that the levy shall not exceed one cent per 100 gallons of water.

2. Creation of a commission of nine, four to be appointed by the Fulton county grand jury and two by the DeKalb county grand jury, the mayor of Atlanta and chairmen of the Fulton and DeKalb county commissions.

3. Conversion of all employes in various governments in the affected area, employes of the commission and those under civil service.

4. Assumption of all sewer bonds

MAYOR ABANDONS REFERENDUM PLEA ON LIQUOR STORE

Council Now Must Answer to Taxpayers, He Says; Jurist Terms Plan "Open Rebellion."

Mayor James L. Key Thursday abandoned for the time being any attempt to establish a liquor store in Atlanta to avert a 32 per cent aggregate cut in the salaries of city employes and decided to await action by the Georgia assembly on prohibition repeal.

In announcing his decision, the mayor delivered an ultimatum to members of council "to answer to the city employes and taxpayers for failing to provide additional revenues for operation of the municipality."

"It appears that the council will not sanction the proposed referendum," Key said in commenting on the fact that a majority of that body had not agreed to vote to pass the problem to the people. "I, therefore, am going to quit taking the brunt of a battle in which the council refuses me any backing.

"We will just await action by the Georgia legislature. If this liquor store question is broached again in the meantime, it will come from council. I'm going to let them run things for a while and see how it comes out."

Jurist Hits Mayor's Plan.

Key's decision came on the heels of an attack on the proposed establishment of the dispensary by Judge Charles W. Worrill, of Cuthbert, who was a visiting jurist in the criminal division of Fulton county superior courts. Judge Worrill characterized the program as nothing short of "open rebellion" and predicted that the courts would not allow the mayor to get away with it. The jurist also expressed a belief that Governor Eugene Talmadge would call out the state militia to prevent operation of such a store.

"Red" Sheppard, negro highwayman, who entered a plea of guilty before Judge Worrill, was given 20

LARGE INDUSTRY SEEN IN RAYON

Pine Trees to Silk Offers Georgia Vast Opportunity for Profit.

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE.
Associated Press Science Editor.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Synthetic silken yarn from southern pine trees—the first ever made—was shown here tonight with announcement of the discovery of a process through which the pine forests of the south can be made to clothe the world.

The making of artificial yarns from southern pines has been a goal of chemists and a commercial dream for years. The supply in southern forests is inexhaustible, and literally large enough to meet all the needs of the human race for clothing.

Eager efforts were made to tap this cellulose source because it was expected to be more economical, and tonight's announcement quotes basic material cost prices half of those of the current markets.

The yarn, a shining white skein, was exhibited at a dinner at the Chemists' Club here in honor of Dr. Charles H. Herty, of Savannah, Ga., discoverer of the process; Francis P. Garvan, president of the chemical foundation which has been backing the research, and Morris Poucher, a famous chemist.

YUGOSLAV TROOPS INVADE HUNGARY; BATTLE AVERTED

Both Sides of Border Tense as Slavs Expel 27,000 Hungarians; Threats Fly Fast.

SZEGED, Hungary, Dec. 7.—(Friday)— (AP) —Regular Yugoslavian troops, wearing a skull and crossbones emblem, crossed the Hungarian border three miles from here early today and nearly precipitated a battle with Hungarian forces.

Only with the greatest difficulty were the Hungarian officers able to restrain their men from accepting a Yugoslav challenge. The situation was most tense and serious trouble was feared.

Yugoslav soldiers shouted threats and imprecations across the frontier at the Hungarians, as 27,000 Hungarians, expelled from Yugoslavia, continued to pour across the border.

Szeged and near-by villages were choked with the refugees. Thousands more were coming and fierce indignation prevailed against Yugoslavia in the Hungarian border towns where it was recognized the Hungarian army is far too small to challenge Yugoslavia.

A foreign office spokesman meanwhile scoffed at rumors the two nations had broken off diplomatic relations as result of the new crisis in their relations, tense since Yugoslavia charged Hungary with "complicity" in

U. S. Agents Guard Girl After Threats

BOSTON, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Two apparently unrelated incidents which he feared might indicate an intention to harm his daughter, Eugenie, led Randolph C. Grew to call in department of justice agents, he said tonight, but added no actual attempt had been made to kidnap her.

Grew, brother of the United States ambassador to Japan, said the federal operatives had been summoned as a precautionary measure and that his daughter was now safe at home.

"Last week," he said, "she was followed from Gloucester by two men in a car, and then last Tuesday night a man telephoned me at my home. After becoming quite abusive he said 'How about kidnaping you and your daughter.'

"I think, myself, the man was drunk. I have an inordinate fear of kidnaping so I decided to take no chances and called the department of justice at Washington. They sent two operatives who advised that my daughter, who was staying at Manchester, be brought here."

200 ARE EXECUTED AS SECRET POLICE BECOME DISLOYAL

Red Terror Engulfs Country and Sound of Executioners' Guns in Continual Volleys Are Heard Throughout Soviet City.

STALIN RELYING SOLELY ON ARMY

Victims of Guns Number 12 of OGPU and Women and Children in Their Families.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—(AP)—(Friday) A Warsaw dispatch to the Express said today that Thursday a red terror ran riot in Russia with more than 200 persons, including women and children, summarily shot within the last few hours.

The dispatch said the sound of shooting was heard every few minutes in the law courts and that among those executed was the assassin, Leonid Nicolaieff, who slew the communist leader, Sergei Kiroff; Nicolaieff's wife, sons, two daughters and 85-year-old mother.

Fourteen officials of the Moscow OGPU, the union state political administration, also were executed, according to the Warsaw report.

Joseph Stalin was reported ruthlessly purging the country because of the slaying of Kiroff. Having discovered a serious split in the ranks of the OGPU he dismissed Chief Yagoda and ordered the widespread arrests and executions and called in the red army to protect himself and the government.

Finding disaffection in the Leningrad OGPU, he sent members of the Moscow OGPU to arrest the commissars in Leningrad yesterday, the dispatch continued, and as the men from Moscow entered the building in Leningrad OGPU members fired at them and a desperate battle followed.

War Commissar Klementi Voroshiloff, who was then in Leningrad, the dispatch said, sent out troops to rush the OGPU building with machines guns and hand grenades and arrested the entire staff. It was said 10 members of the OGPU were killed in the fighting.

Learning of the incidents Stalin lost all confidence in the OGPU, the dispatch said, and ordered the arrest of 14 members of the Moscow group, who were promptly shot. The execution of all persons connected with the arrested OGPU chiefs then began, the dispatch said, continuing that Stalin now trusts the red army alone and that since his return to Moscow for Kiroff's funeral the city has become a vast camp of soldiers rushed by special train from all parts of the country.

Leipold Stokowski Quits Symphony Post

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Leopold Stokowski resigned tonight as music director of the Philadelphia orchestra.

Effective December 26, the Polish maestro will leave after 22 years the orchestra he built into one of the foremost musical institutions in the world.

In an open letter to the board of directors, Stokowski outlined two major reasons for refusing the new contract offered him:

1. Inability of the board of directors to select in time to allow for preparing the coming season's plans a successor to Arthur Judson as executive director.

2. "Deep-lying differences" with the board.

Georgia Posses Hunt Escaped Lifer, 'Turned Up' by Governor as Slayer

Searching parties scoured north Georgia Thursday seeking a trace of the 21-year-old fugitive, DeLos Clements, who fled Wednesday night from the Cobb county chain gang where he was serving a life sentence for murder. Atlanta friends of the boy's father, John Henry Clements, of Scotland, Ga., recalled that although the elder Clements and Governor Eugene Talmadge are the closest of personal friends they have never mentioned clemency for the youth.

Incidentally, it was Governor Talmadge who obtained from young Clements an admission of the crime for which he was imprisoned.

Young Clements plotted the death of Luther Clegg, Scotland merchant, in April, 1931, and shared in $370 which two negroes who committed the actual slaying took from the body of the murdered man.

It was recalled that young Clements came to Atlanta immediately after the killing and visited the Talmadge home, then on Oxford road. The governor, having heard of the Clegg murder, became suspicious of the youth's actions and questioned him about it, one question bringing on another until Clements finally admitted engineering the murder.

The governor communicated with his friend in Scotland and turned the youth over to authorities. He pleaded guilty to participation in the crime and was given a life sentence. At the time of the killing, the boy's father was Telfair county's representative in the legislature.

Since the governor's inauguration, Mr. Clements and Talmadge have visited time and again at each other's homes, both being deeply interested in live stock, but it was said Thursday that both always strictly avoided ever mentioning the young slayer.

Clements, in company with another life-termer, escaped from the Cobb county gang in a truck which the youth drove about the camp. They were reported seen near Cartersville early Thursday morning and the search for them was being concentrated around Bartow county Thursday night.

Planes Will Parade In Honor of Wrights

In honor of the Wright brothers' first airplane flight, all the planes available at Candler field will fly in parade from 10:30 until 11 o'clock Monday morning, December 17.

The 30-minute flight, honoring the first successful air flight, has been requested by Eugene L. Vidal, director of commerce. Seven thousand owners of licensed civilian aircraft have been asked to participate in this event.

The Wright brothers' first flight was made on December 17, 1903, from Kill Devil Hill, North Carolina.

F. D. R. Views on Cotton Act Seen as Talmadge Defense

Declaration Looked Upon as Denial of Clash Between President and Georgia Governor.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—President Roosevelt's declaration at Warm Springs this week in favor of revision of the Bankhead cotton control act is looked upon in Georgia circles as the latest answer of the administration to critics of Governor Talmadge, who have sought to make it appear he and the president are at loggerheads over major policies.

In announcing his intention to ask congressional revision of the act exempting farmers producing no more than two bales of cotton, the president, it is pointed out, opens the way for the elimination of one of the chief sources of complaint raised by the Georgia executive and others. Much of the criticism aimed at the operation of the Bankhead law was centered on the score that improper provisions had been made for the small cotton farmer.

The fact that the chief executive was quick to go on record favoring revision of the act is cited to show his responsiveness to demands for constructive changes in administration procedure when voiced in responsible quarters.

Preceding the president's important statement on the cotton control measure, at least two other high administration officials have come forward with declarations in recent weeks in support of changes in administration policy previously urged by Governor Talmadge.

First, Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper, in the course of a major address delivered in Washington, made a strong pronouncement in favor of workmen being permitted to continue employment without molestation in times of labor conflict. His utterances, reflecting administration sanction, was in conformity with the action taken by Governor Talmadge during the national textile strike when national guard forces were organized in the state to protect willing workers from "flying squadrons" activities. Mills threatened with closing by the squadrons were permitted to remain in operation by virtue of the governor's counter move.

Second, Federal Emergency Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins more recently announced an important change in FERA policy, directing all state relief heads to adopt wage scales for the future conforming to local conditions. Previously the policy had called for a standard wage of 40 cents per hour for common labor on all work relief projects, irrespective of the wage paid by private industry in the local community.

The Georgia executive had insisted from the start that wages paid by the government on relief projects should not be higher than the local scale, pointing out that only in this way could labor disturbance and dissatisfaction be avoided.

Thus, the administration in three separate instances has moved in recent weeks to order changes in major policies which earlier had been criticized by Governor Talmadge. In each case critics of the governor sought to make capital of his opposition to individual phases of the administration program. By adopting the changes recommended the chief executive is regarded as having shown he looks upon the criticism as constructive and, therefore, welcome—an attitude Mr. Roosevelt announced would be followed throughout his regime.

S.E. BOARD, GOVERNORS TO MEET HERE MONDAY

Large Attendance Expected for Development Body's Gathering at Ansley.

Members of the executive committee of the Southeastern Development Board and other leaders in the movement for development of this section of the country will confer with governors of several states who have been invited to a meeting at the Ansley hotel Monday.

The governors, who were invited by Governor Eugene Talmadge to work out a joint co-operative program following the recent conference with President Roosevelt at Warm Springs, will meet Monday morning and at the same time the development board committee will hold a separate meeting.

In the afternoon the two groups will meet in joint session and the combined program will then be worked out and adopted.

Governors expected to attend include Governor Dave Sholtz of Florida. Governor-elect Bibb Graves of Alabama, Governor-elect Johnson of South Carolina, Lieutenant-Governor A. H. Graham of North Carolina and Governor Talmadge of Georgia.

In addition to the Atlanta committee the following members of the development board are expected to attend the gathering: Arthur Cummer, Jacksonville; Edward Ball, Jacksonville; Lorenzo Wilson, Jacksonville; Frank B. Shutts, Miami; Robert Gregg, Birmingham; William Murphy, Savannah; Julian Price, Greensboro, N. C.; John M. Miller Jr., Richmond; Junius P. Fishburne, Roanoke; Lindsey Hopkins, Richard Courts, W. D. Anderson, Macon; Donald Comer, Birmingham; Charles Stone and N. C. Harrison, of the Atlantic Steel Company; W. States Lee Jr., Charlotte, and Howard E. Coffin.

Political Changes Loom in Decatur

Probability that Roy Abernathy, city manager of Decatur, will be ousted from his position when the new city commission meets the first Monday in January was seen Thursday when official results were tabulated of the election Wednesday, in which three commissioners were named for two-year terms. It had been freely predicted, prior to the balloting, that victory for Homer George and Hooper Alexander Jr., two of the winning candidates, would bring about the discharge of Abernathy as well as change in the mayoralty.

J. C. Johnson is now mayor and it is expected that the new commission will elect Scott Candler, who had served as mayor for several years. There were some rumors, however, that Mr. Candler would decline to serve again and in that event Mr. Alexander was considered a probable candidate for the post.

In Decatur the mayor is elected by the city commission.

In addition to George and Alexander, the third winner in the Wednesday race was R. C. Henderson. George and Henderson were re-elected while Alexander is a new commissioner, defeating George W. Woods, seeking re-election, in a hot race.

The total official vote for the six candidates follows:

George, 1,131; Henderson, 1,053; Alexander, 1,048; Woods, 984; A. S. Turner, 1,028, and Chase Van Valkenburg, 948.

Minimum Wage Cut Urged by Contractors

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Dec 6.—(AP) A committee of southern contractors tional construction authority here Wednesday asking that the minimum wage for common labor in southern states be reduced from 40 to 30 cents an hour.

The authority, meeting here with the Construction League of the United States, which represents the entire construction industry, is expected to take action on the resolution later. The code authority has the power of recommendation to the national recovery administration.

The resolution was introduced during an open meeting before the code authority in which member of the construction industry criticized the 40-cent an hour common labor wage and what they described as non-enforcement of code provisions for the industry.

Stephen F. Vorhees, New York architect and chairman of the code authority, presided.

"THE FOOL," GIVEN BY EMORY GROUP, PROVES BIG HIT

Emory Players gave a smoothly running, competent production of "The Fool," a play in four acts, by Channing Pollock, Wednesday night before a large crowd of Atlanta playgoers in Glenn Memorial auditorium.

Well cast and showing either many rehearsals or considerable talent in the actors, "The Fool" eclipsed the former productions of the players. In a play wherein the author convincingly demonstrates the dramatic conflicts between idealistic and practical men, the players moved through their roles with force and vigor.

They were at their best in the mob scene and the climax which immediately follows, where Mary Margaret, a pathetic crippled girl, is miraculously healed, and the mob is brought to its knees in a hushed silence. Supported by splendid stage settings and lighting effects, the climax was enacted with unusual ability and beauty. —EDWARD EVANS.

KITCHEN TESTED RECEIPES

PARIS STYLES IN WINTER VEGETABLES.

"Ah, to have winter vegetables that taste like French cooking!" This is the wish of every housewife. She knows how important vegetables are in diet—their value both in mineral content and in vitamins. But she knows too how dull they can be if not properly cooked and seasoned.

What she doesn't realize, perhaps, is that one needn't go to much expense to make them as delicious as the creation of any French chef. Here, for example, are a few simple recipes that transform everyday winter vegetables into dishes of rare delight:

Italian Style String Beans.

One quart shredded string or wax beans, 1 cup canned tomatoes, 3 minced mint leaves (optional), 1-2 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons margarine, 1 clove garlic, minced or 2 tablespoons minced onion.

Steam or boil and drain the string beans as usual. Add the tomato, the garlic or onion, salt, mint leaves and margarine and simmer 20 minutes.

Italian Eggplant.

One medium-sized eggplant, flour, 2 eggs, 1-4 cup grated Parmesan or American cheese, salt and pepper, 2 tablespoons minced parsley, margarine, 2 cups canned tomatoes

Slice the eggplant a quarter of an inch thick. It is not necessary to peel it or to squeeze out the juice. Dip each slice in flour. Slightly beat the eggs and add the cheese, one-fourth teaspoon black pepper, one-half teaspoon salt, and the parsley.

Dip the floured slices in this mixture and fry first on one side and then on the other until browned in margarine, just enough to barely cover the bottom of a heavy frying pan. Remove the eggplant. There should be two tablespoons of margarine left in the pan. Add the tomato and simmer 10 minutes. Then place the eggplant in layeers in margarined baking dish and pour over the tomato mixture. Bake 20 minutes in a moderate oven, 350 degrees F.

Sauted Mushrooms.

One pound mushrooms, 1-2 teaspoon salt, few grains nutmeg, 4 tablespoons margarine.

Pick over the mushrooms and wash them. Slice lengthwise through cap and stem. Melt the margarine in a medium-sized frying pan and add the mushrooms and seasonings. Cover and saute slowly 12 to 15 minutes.

Savory Onion Pie.

Two large slices bacon, diced, 2 cups diced onion, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon margarine, 1 tablespoon flour, 1 egg, 3-4 cup milk, rich short pie crust (see recipe following.)

Cook the bacon until crisp; add the onions, seasonings and margarine. Steam 10 minutes. Combine the flour and the egg, beaten. Add the milk; stir in the onion mixture. Pour into a pie plate, lined with the pastry. Bake in a hot oven for the first 10 minutes, 375 degrees F., then moderate it and bake for 20 minutes longer.

Rich Short Pie Crust.
(For Pies of All Kinds.)

Two cups cake flour, 2 teaspoons powdered sugar, 1-2 teaspoon baking powder, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 3-4 cup margarine, 1 egg yolk, slightly beaten, 6 tablespoons cold water.

Measure flour, sugar, baking powder and salt into a medium-sized chopping bowl. Add the margarine and chop it lightly in until the flakes are the size of fairly large flakes of bran. Add the egg yolk and cold water and mix lightly with the flaked mixture. The pastry should barely stick together. Roll and use for any kind of pie. It is not necessary to chill this pastry.

Date and Marshmallow Pudding.

Do you remember when you were a small child how badly you felt when the grown-ups were served a rich, delicious smelling pudding whereas you had to be satisfied with a custard?

If so, you, as an understanding mother, will delight in finding and using the following recipe for date and marshmallow pudding. Economical, delicious, easy-to-make, it is fast becoming the sort of pudding which is preferred to the rich, heavy plum puddings so often served on holiday menus. It is good looking, too, and may be served with the hot lemon sauce suggested here or with whipped cream or ice cream. If desired, it could be molded, and then brought to the table in all its glory with a small quantity of brandy—just as you would serve any real plum pudding during the holiday season. A versatile pudding it is and one which can be prepared the day before it is to be used, if one desires to do so. But let me give you the recipe. You will want to try it, I am sure.

Date and Marshmallow Pudding.

One pound dates, pitted and cut in small pieces, 16 marshmallows, cut in small pieces, 1 cup walnuts, cut fine, 18 graham crackers, rolled very fine, 10 tablespoons top milk (or part milk and cream), 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Mix in order named, form into a roll about four inches in diameter, cover with waxed paper and let stand in refrigerator overnight. Serve in slices with the following lemon sauce. Have the pudding very cold and the sauce very hot.

Lemon Sauce.

One cup sugar, 1 lemon, 2 level tablespoons cornstarch, 2 egg yolks, 1-8 teaspoon salt, 1 cup boiling water.

Add grated rind and juice of the lemon to the sugar. Beat egg yolks light. Mix cornstarch with little cold water and add to the beaten yolks. Mix this thoroughly with lemon and sugar mixture. Put in double boiler, add hot water and cook until thickened.

One of the economies which make this holiday pudding so inexpensive is the fact that marshmallows can now be purchased in quarter-pound packettes, and each packette contains exactly 14 marshmallows.

Raisin Clusters.

One-half pound sweet chocolate, 1-2 cup sweetened condensed milk, 1 cup raisins.

Melt chocolate, which has been cut in small pieces, in the top of double boiler. Remove from fire and add sweetened condensed milk and raisins. Stir until mixture thickens. Drop by teaspoons on a buttered sheet or plate. Chill thoroughly for several hours. One cup of shelled and skinned peanuts may be substituted for the raisins. Wrap in waxed paper for packing.

AS A CEREAL OR IN COOKING
it's FINE either way!

It's so handy to have a package of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN in the kitchen. Serve it as a cereal. Use it also as a wholesome ingredient in your muffins, breads, omelets, waffles, etc.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN supplies "bulk" to aid regular habits. ALL-BRAN is also rich in vitamin B, as well as iron, an element of the blood.

Two tablespoonfuls daily will correct common constipation, due to insufficient bulk in the diet. In severe cases, with each meal. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

The "bulk" of ALL-BRAN does not break down during digestion as does that of leafy vegetables, and is therefore more effective for furnishing the needed "bulk." It is a delicious laxative food . . . far better than patent medicines.

Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

BANKERS OPPOSE CHANGE IN LAWS

Fletcher's Survey Reveals Inclination To Let Well Enough Alone.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(AP)—A cross-section on banking opinion was revealed today to show a definite opposition to any further radical changes in the federal banking laws.

Chairman Fletcher, of the senate banking rommittee, reported this as "the drift of opinion" of half of the 40 bankers, economists and students of finance who have thus far replied to his questionnaire on the need of new fiscal legislation.

Fletcher subscribed to this feeling by his correspondents, but added that his committee would grant hearings on all new banking and monetary proposals, including those for a central bank and unified banking system.

He said:

"I am inclined to think that this is a sound position; that we should not disturb business and undertake to upset the whole banking system by some drastic legislation at this time, but should give an opportunity for recently enacted measures to show their worth or weaknesses."

While Fletcher was analyzing the replies to his questionnaire, Senator Thomas, democrat, Oklahoma, started another on the way to senators, representatives, governors, bankers, economists, editors, educators, ministers and others seeking opinions on his proposal for further devaluation of the dollar.

Thomas said the dollar already has been cut from 167 to 130 cents compared to its normal purchasing power. This, he asserted, had resulted in a shifting of $162,000,000,000 in values to the benefit of taxpayers and the public generally.

A return to the 100-cent dollar, he said, would in 10 years' time boost this "benefit to the masses of the people" to $471,000,000,000.

Fletcher's questionnaire also sought views on monetary legislation in addition to banking law proposals, but he has yet to study the replies.

Campaign of 'Big Brothers' Joined by Debutante Club

The Atlanta Debutante Club joined the Big Brothers en masse Thursday in the war big-hearted Atlantans are going to fight this Christmas Day to bring happiness to needy Atlanta homes in the second annual Big Brothers campaign sponsored by The Atlanta Constitution and the Atlanta Post No. 1, American Legion.

Miss Louisia Robert, president of the 1934-35 Debutante Club, Thursday announced that she and all the other debutantes are going to attend the brilliant charity ball the Big Brothers are to give Thursday night, December 20, at the Shrine mosque, the gigantic celebration which is to follow the real work the Big Brothers will do Sunday morning, December 16, when they go out for two hours to sell the special Big Brother editions of The Constitution.

As Miss Robert and her coterie joined in the joyful drive of the menfolk to fight away gloom and darkness in the homes of unfortunate Atlantans, officials of the second annual campaign announced that progress is being made rapidly and the Big Brothers who're already signed up are urging other generous Atlantans to get in on the campaign.

Major H. L. Merk appointed the following captains in the ninth ward: W. J. Lawrence, L. C. Herrin, T. N. Lanier, R. G. Smith, Earnest Williamson, O. J. Coe, Milo Hazel, C. L. Lyndon, Colonel Robert B. Poole, Raleigh Drennon, Homer C. Foster, H. G. Chandler, Joe Watkins, R. E. Hooks, J. T. Smith, Hall Jackson, H. E. Phillips, Goy O. Guest and O. D. Riddle. Major C. C. Perry, commander of the Big Brothers in the second ward, appointed these captains: C. E. Zink, W. A. Palmer, J. G. Austin, R. Harris, F. Harris, W. Anglin, L. Hutchinson, H. F. Hawkins, H. Fleeman, B. Bshers and H. Bshers.

Affairs were bustling yesterday at the Big Brother headquarters on the ground floor of the Healey building, Telephone Walnut 4081, and officials of the second annual campaign urged that Atlantans fill out and bring or mail the accompanying coupon to headquarters so that ward majors may get in touch with them as soon as possible to organize the units which make thousands of poor persons happier and more cheerful with their Christmas gifts-full-of-cheer on Christmas morning.

Austria Will Return Poderjay to America

VIENNA, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Austria decided today to grant the United States' request for extradition of Captain Ivan Poderjay, wanted in connection with the disappearance of his bride, Agnes Tufverson, Detroit and New York attorney.

Poderjay is charged with higamy in New York, the grounds for the extradition. He has been a prisoner of the Austrian government for six months.

Traffic Survey Support Urged Before City Club

Councilmen were urged to support the FERA traffic survey Thursday in addresses made by Captain Jack Malcom, head of the police traffic squad, DeFord Smith, survey director, and William G. Hastings, chairman of the traffic committee of city council, all of whom talked at the luncheon meeting of the City Club of Atlanta at the Ansley hotel.

Captain Malcom declared a standardized system of boulevards should be established in Atlanta, which is advocated by the traffic survey engineers and the policeman called on councilmen to "forget" the voters for a moment and "do what you know to be right" in the matter.

Director Smith gave a resume of the work done by the survey engineers and Hastings brought out the difficulties councilmen encounter when attempting to pass such changes in traffic regulations as the survey recommends. Malcom asserted traffic rules should be obeyed implicitly by drivers in order to reduce accidents and loss of life in Atlanta.

Ride Victim Forced To Go to Valdosta

An unwilling passenger, in his own automobile, buying all the gas, and paying all the expenses of an extensive trip through south Georgia, was the experience of Tom Yarbrough, 29, a peddler, of 530 Pryor street, S. W., he reported at police headquarters Thursday morning in telling about his absence from Atlanta since Tuesday evening.

Yarbrough, according to his report, was driving along Ponce de Leon avenue Tuesday afternoon when two men jumped aboard his car and commanded him "to drive a little way up the street." Yarbrough reported that the men kept him guarded and forced him to drive as far as Valdosta, making him pay all expenses of the trip. When they left him late Wednesday night, Yarbrough said, they took all the money they could find on him. They overlooked $3 he had in his shirt pocket, he said.

The men, according to Yarbrough's report, were well-dressed and young. He gave police accurate descriptions of both.

1,000 WITNESS PLAY AT BASS JUNIOR HIGH

"Seven Chances," a comedy presentation of the William A. Bass Junior High school, was pronounced a complete success by the audience of more than 1,000 who packed the school auditorium Thursday night.

The cast was composed of 15 members of the student body under the direction of Jack Brooks, of the school English department, a former player on the New York stage. Especial applause was given the work of Arlouin Lannon, Virginia Wayne, Marie Merkling, James Horton, Dick Bollenger and Bill Chandler. The play was so successful that W. J. Scott, principal of the school, promised to have it repeated Tuesday afternoon.

HARVEY FIRESTONE JR., ILL, TAKEN FROM SHIP

GIBRALTAR, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Harvey Firestone Jr., vice president of Firestone Tire & Rubber Company, was landed here today from the S. S. Rex suffering with influenza and was taken in an ambulance to a Gibraltar hotel.

The American manufacturer, who embarked at New York, was accompanied by his wife and a physician.

F.D.R. Names Brittain To Pen Industry Board

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today named five men to the board of directors of the Federal Prison Industry Corporation.

The board directs policies regarding the employment of prison labor.

The members appointed were: Dr. M. L. Brittain, president of the Georgia School of Technology; Sam A. Lewisohn, vice president of the Miami Copper Company, New York; Thomas A. Rickert, president of the United Garment Workers of America, New York; John D. Miller, president of the National Co-operative Council, Susquehanna, Pa., and Daytona Beach, Fla., and Sanford Bates, director of the federal bureau of prisons.

A justice department statement said the men "are specifically directed to diversify so far as practicable the industrial activity of federal prisons so that no single private industry will bear an unreasonable portion of the burden of competition."

Restrictions Lifted On Tobacco Sales

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Growers of fire-cured and dark air-cured tobacco were given the option of selling in excess of their initial production allotments if they agree to a reduction in the rate of the second adjustment payment.

The farm administration ruled they could sell up to 15 per cent in excess of their allotments and take proportionate reductions in the payments.

Under the adjustment contract, the payment rate for fire-cured is 7 1-2 per cent of the net sale value of the producer's 1934 initial allotment, while the rate for dark air-cured is 10 per cent.

Unless sold under the new ruling, the administration announced, contract signers will be required to render unmerchantable any tobacco produced in excess of their production allotments.

M-G-M POLICE CHIEF SLAIN IN HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 6.—(UP)—A gunman fatally shot Otto Ellinger, chief of private police at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio tonight and seriously wounded Mrs. Ruby McMichaels, studio matron.

The wounded woman told police that the killer was a rejected suitor.

Indians Oppose Plan For Self-Government

CALCUTTA, India, Dec. 6.—(AP)—The working committee of the congress party today passed a resolution bidding its members in the newly-elected Indian legislative assembly to reject the British parliamentary committee's plan for Indian self-government.

The party reaffirmed its goal of complete independence for India, as opposed to the joint parliamentary committee's report for "self-government with safeguards." This report is the basis for the Indian bill soon to be presented in parliament.

FLORIDA GIRL BANDITS AGAIN DENIED PAROLE

THE COTTON BARTER

The completion of the $30,000,000 barter deal under which Germany will buy between five and eight hundred thousand bales of American cotton in exchange for our purchase of German goods of approximately the same value, points the way to the soundest solution of the problem of how to retain the dominance in foreign markets America's chief export product has always held.

The chief objection to the acreage production program has been that it has caused the "disappearance" of foreign markets for cotton. Certain elements of the cotton industry have vigorously favored a return to unlimited planting in order that the lost markets might be regained.

This year's exports are approximately a million and a quarter bales below last year's figures, and it is held that this decrease will inevitably continue unless American production is enlarged.

The record of the past 25 years proves the accuracy of the claim that periods of large crops have seen exports go up, but the same records reveal that when the exports went up the profits of the producers went down. During the last quarter of a century the range of prices has been such that the total amounts paid by foreign purchasers during years marked by large exports have been less than in the years when exports were small.

Thus the protection of foreign markets through the expedient of larger production is secured only at the expense of the producer.

There are two ways in which these markets can be safely conserved—through reciprocal treaties and the lowering of the tariff barriers that have handicapped the flow of international trade.

The United States-Germany cotton barter regains and assures for the length of the agreement the outlets for American cotton in the latter country. It is, therefore, of far greater importance and significance than merely the sale of a half million bales of cotton. It points the way for profitable interchange of products and manufactured commodities of all kinds between the two countries, and the beneficial results certain to follow will add impetus to the widespread program of reciprocal treaties now being worked out in Washington.

AN INSPIRING RECORD

The resignation of Colonel Z. D. Harrison at the expiration of his sixty-sixth year as clerk of the supreme court of Georgia brings to a close a unique and inspiring record of public service.

The span of Colonel Harrison's service has seen Georgia emerge from the control of the carpetbaggers and witnessed the institution of governmental reforms and policies that have elevated the state to the front rank of the progressive commonwealths of the Union.

Most of these reforms and policies have, at one time or another during the last two-thirds of a century, been submitted to test before the supreme court, and the record of these hearings have all come under the attention of Colonel Harrison and his corps of assistants. Even more impressive than the remarkable length of his service is the fact that during his entire occupancy of the important office he has held there has never been lodged serious criticism of any of his acts. On the contrary, the bar of the state has given frequent indorsement of the splendid manner in which this generally beloved official has discharged the vitally important duties with which he was charged.

It is not surprising that so faithful a public servant and useful a citizen should have been honored on many occasions and in various ways. His service to the bar was recognized in the bestowal upon him of a life membership in the state bar association. Later he served for two years as president of the association, the highest honor in the gift of the members of his profession in the state.

He has likewise been honored by church and educational organizations in recognition of his outstanding qualities of mind and heart, and in appreciation of unselfish and valuable service rendered.

Colonel Harrison's record of service and his inspiring personal traits make him one of Georgia's noblest citizens.

His great circle of friends will rejoice, and the state is fortunate, in that as he retires from public office he retains his mental virility and physical strength to a degree that, despite his advanced age, promises he will, as a private citizen, continue an interest in public affairs actuated by a rare devotion to state and country and the highest ideals of public conduct.

AN INEXCUSABLE SHOWING

According to recently released figures bearing on mortality records in various large cities of the United States, Atlanta in 1933 shared with Dallas and Lowell, Mass., the deplorable distinction of having the highest diphtheria mortality, in proportion to population, and also recorded an inexcusable showing in deaths from typhoid.

In commenting upon the typhoid report, the Journal of the American Medical Association comments that "Atlanta shows remarkable improvement, although it still has far to go." This comment is based on the fact that Atlanta recorded the second highest mortality from this disease in 1932, but was sixth in 1933.

To the average resident of this city the revelations in these health reports will come in the nature of a shock. It is the common belief that Atlanta is one of the healthiest cities in the country—which it is from the viewpoint of the total amount of sickness annually in relation to the size of the population—and it is deplorable that the city's record should be marred by such an unfortunate position in the mortality columns from two diseases so possible of control.

Science has provided definite methods of insurance against these diseases, making possible their complete eradication.

The use of vaccines and serums which give immunity to smallpox, typhoid fever and diphtheria has already caused a marked decrease in their incidence, notably in the case of smallpox, where vaccination is compulsory.

In those countries where it is not compulsory, smallpox is still widespread. The disease causes thousands of deaths yearly in Mexico. The number of cases in British India was estimated at 250,000 in 1933.

By requiring immunization of all children against typhoid and diphtheria, these diseases can be controlled as smallpox already has been in this country. Chicago has reduced its diphtheria death rate from 117.3 per 100,000 in 1890-94 to 0.2 in 1933. Kansas City reduced its typhoid death rate from approximately 74.5 in 1906-10 to 0.8 in 1933.

Of 93 large cities in the United States, 11 report no deaths from diphtheria, and 16 report none from typhoid, in 1933. There is no reason why Atlanta cannot achieve the same goal through a campaign for immunization. For those who cannot afford immunization the cost of it to the city is certainly less than the treatment of the large numbers of cases cared for at Grady hospital, even if the death rates were negligible.

One person in every 10 has defective hearing in this country, says an authority. The other 90 per cent can't hear a note when it falls due either.

A California man is suing for $20,555,005,993,703,418,733,025,050.00. If he wins his suit it will take such an amount to pay attorney fees.

People are always anxious for the bare facts in any issue just so long as they dovetail with their pet views.

When a man reaches the crossroads on the highway of life, he should stop, look and listen the same as at a grade crossing.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

In Marrakesch.

Red, the color of fresh blood, are the towered walls around Marrakesch, the holiest city of Africa. Black, the color of gleaming jet, are the eyes of the million Arabs, Moors, Haous, Touaregs and Riffs who swarm in from the desert to this fever spot of religious fanticism, political intrigue and flaming passions. White, the color of snow on a sunlit arctic ice flow, blinding almost in its purity, are the walls of the terraced harems high above the streets, scented by the rose water which mysteriously veiled female figures sprinkle from the latticed windows upon the heads of passing warriors whose features and bearing are pleasing in their sight.

I saw a cavalcade of Almoravides canter in today. Almoravides means the invincibles. They are the missionaries of Islam, men who wear the veils of holiness on their faces and long crooked swords which they use to convert unbelievers. They form the advance guard, the hereditary shock troops of Islam, who carry the green banner of the prophet into battle, if ever again the signal will be given for a holy war. Behind them rode blue-eyed Berbers, and savage Saharians, naked to the waist, so that passers-by might see the wounds in their bodies which they incurred in fighting for the faith. Their ancestors were the men who conquered Spain, Sicily, Lybia, Egypt, the South of France and all eastern Europe, as well as the orient, to be stopped only under the walls of Vienna. But a token from God, but a hot whispered word from a mullah, but the command new a new Mohammed and they will ride again where Allah wills, be it into the gates of hell. For they are oblivious of danger and the boy who shrinks at the sight of blood is cut down by his own father for cowardice.

France Rules.

France is the protector of the Moroccan empire, but the tribes owe allegiance only to the sultan. France has created order out of the anarchistic individualism of the warring tribes. But even today tens of thousands of troops are required to keep the warriors in check and in the Atlas region fighting has been in progress this summer, as every summer, and thousands of young Frenchmen will never see the verdant valleys of the Loire again. Their bones lie bleaching on the sunny slopes where the jackals have scattered them after digging them from the shallow graves.

"In Marrakesch you feel as if you are walking on a volcano," said a French scientist who is stopping at the same hotel with me. "Rifles go off easily here and if ever you hear the sound of it, get indoors as quickly as you can, for it is not healthy for a westerner to be abroad. That's my advice!"

* * * *

Turbulent Africa.

Violent people, hot-blooded, irritable, but again childishly naive. Here we enter a narrow street, a souhk, which is like a human ant heap. Everybody pushes, elbows, shoves, shoulders his way forward, shouting, cackling and yelling: "Balek, Balek! Get out of my way. Get out of my way!" Men bent double under huge loads cry out with raucous voice. They bump into you, bump into the trotting donkeys, into the rear end of a dromedary. Then there is a volley of abuse. Donkey drivers, camel drivers, porters, merchants vilify each other, vilify each others' parents and ancestors to the seventh generation. And then all of a sudden, at some unexpectedly horrible curse, everybody bursts into laughter and you see rows of gleaming white teeth.

"Flous, flous," that is the word you hear again and again in the babel of voices about you. It is Arabic for money. The money-making fever has them all in its grip. Like American businessmen they give themselves no time to sit still for their meals. They stop before a stall and buy a steaming bowl of harira, a Moroccan soup, which to me tasted like corn-starch, or they grab a handful of doughy paste out of a copper pot, roll it into a ball and stuff it into their mouths, wiping their hands on their long-skirted burnous. That's their breakfast, which they top off with a piece of fried fish.

HEALTH TALKS

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

WHAT, NO SANDWICHES?

Exponent of the "wrong combination" theory elates me by saying I do write sense sometimes—but casts me right down again by adding that more times I write nonsense. About food combinations, for example, I beg the question by pointing out that wheat is a combination of proteid and starch. But I fail to explain that the proteid content is small and wheat ordinarily not considered a proteid food but a starch food. And then, how about beans?

Well, how about 'em? What do you mean? If you have any beans that need spilling, send 'em to me. I'll spill 'em for you.

Let's see what old Atwater and Bryant can tell us about wheat and beans. You folks all know Atwater and Bryant's "Chemical Composition of American Food Materials," of course. If you don't, you'd better squander a dime right away for a copy, and keep it in your home for reference whenever you wish to know about the nutritive value and composition of foods. Government prints it for the public welfare, only you must slip the government a dime for a copy, whereas if you were a hog the government would furnish the information for nothing. In this country we wish to encourage the health and well being of hogs all we can. So send your dime to Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C., for Bulletin 28 (Revised), Uniter States Dept. Agriculture, Chemical Composition of American Food Marerials, by Atwater and Bryant.

According to the authority mentioned, wheat contains 13 or 14 per cent, protein and 70 per cent carbohydrate (starch mainly). Beans, dried, contain 11 to 12 per cent, protein and 60 to 65 per cent carbohydrate.

Now as to the digestion of a sandwich—a combination of proteid and starchy material. My critic solves this easily. He asserts that "starches are digested in the intestines. Proteids are digested in the stomach. The rule, I know it, is to avoid eating bread, potatoes, rice, etc., with meat. The exception to the rule it "when one is in good health."

From the twelfth edition, 1933, of Howell's "Textbook of Physiology" I quote, under the heading of Digestive Changes Undergone by the Food in the Stomach:

" . . . ptyalin swallowed with the food continues to exert its action on the starchy material in the fundus for a long time, so that in this way the starch digestion in the stomach may be important."

The ptyalin is a ferment in the saliva, which digests starch. Then, of course, the main part of the proteid material is digested, not in the stomach, but in the small intestine. A man can live without a stomach, but not without the duodenum or portion of intestine immediately beyond the stomach, where pancreatic digestion, the essential part of digestion, takes place.

So I shall continue writing nonsense about this, unless some of these food combination experts who get their ideas by intuition can succeed in showing the physiologists the light.

SLAYER GETS LIFE 24 HOURS AFTER CRIME

LANSING, Mich., Dec. 6.—(AP)—Leroy Carson, 22, a former reformatory inmate, pleaded guilty today to a murder charge for the slaying of 12-year-old Leona Georgia Love, and was sentenced to life imprisonment in the Michigan branch prison at Marquette.

Within less than 24 hours after the child's body was found stuffed into a culvert along the route she took to her rural school, near here, Carson had made several confessions. His last statement, announced by Detective Sergeant Phillip L. Hutson, of the state police, said that he shot the girl when she repulsed his advances and threatened to tell her sister.

News Behind the News

By PAUL MALLON.

SWEETENING WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—The AAA crowd has found it can catch more congressmen with Chester Davis molasses than with Tugwell vinegar.

You remember those three amendments to the AAA act which were thrown into the ashcan at the last session of congress by southern democratic senators, who said the amendments would make Professor Tugwell a rex or something like that.

Well, Messrs. Davis and Wallace have privately retrieved them, dusted them off, sugared them very, very cautiously and are going to try them again this session.

The plan is clever. Instead of proposing all three at once, Messrs. Davis and Wallace are going to put forward one at a time. The two non-controversial amendments will go first. Last to be offered will be the one extending the AAA power over small crops not in the basic commodity group. Each probably will be attached to some bill, so as not to stand alone.

PRESSURE What heartened cooks Davis and Wallace was an inside tip they received a few days ago that Virginia Senator Byrd has changed his mind. Byrd led the successful resistance to the amendments last time.

Since then, Virginia farmers voted in a referendum to continue the corn-hog program. Also, co-operation from Virginia tobacco growers has been extraordinary. Furthermore, there are some Virginia potato growers who have been trying to get their commodity into the basic list.

All Byrd will say is that he has nothing to say, which tends to confirm AAA hopes.

The AAA-ers already have gone to work on the farm crowd to get approval for revival of the amendments. Soon they intend to call in the members of congress and attempt to get an agreement before the amendments are formally offered.

Great stress will be laid by the AAA-ers on the fact that these are not Tugwell amendments. Professor Tugwell probably will be hidden when the congressmen call.

The fact may give you a hint as to how things are going within the AAA now.

HITLER'S CANDY Mister Hitler knows how to use sugar also. The conciliatory gestures he has been making lately to the Catholics in Germany do not mean that he has changed his mind about religion.

The truth behind it all is that the Saar election is going to be held about a month hence, and 72 per cent of the Saar voters are Catholics. Hitler has fixed everything with France so that the Saar undoubtedly will go back to Germany, but he cannot afford to have the Catholics pile up a strong opposition vote.

Hitler really used his head for something beside the manufacture of bombastic words when he worked out the recent Saar agreement with France. The best minds in our state department believe he avoided a certain European war next spring.

It was not hard to do because France was thoroughly frightened.

MONEY What happened on the Saar business was this: Hitler let it be known indirectly in France some weeks ago that he was going to get the Saar back either by votes or a putsch. France thereupon moved up troop reinforcements to the Rhine as a nervous counter-threat. Hitler accepted the dare and passed out word that preparations were ready to move up the shock troops of the Austrian nazi legion still on German soil.

This left France two choices: (A) An endless fight to hold the Saar, which would gain her nothing; (B) A peaceable effort to get $50,000,000 promised by the treaty for letting the Saar go.

That was no choice for Frenchmen. They took the $50,000,000.

COTTON PILL President Roosevelt himself can re-roll a pill with the best of them when he wants to.

That is the explanation behind his announcement Wednesday proposing to exempt the one and two-bale cotton farmers from the Bankhead curtailment program. A referendum on that program was scheduled for December 15. Senator Bankhead discovered a few days ago that the small farmers were not going to support the program. He dashed around AAA headquarters here for awhile, but the AAA boys found they could do nothing until congress changed the law.

A long distance telephone call was put in to Warm Springs and the situation placed before Mr. Roosevelt. He agreed to issue his announcement promising to seek exemption for small farmers at the coming congressional session. It saved the referendum from disclosing a strong underlying opposition.

About one-fourth of the 2,000,000 cotton growers thus will be exempted, but they raise only one-tenth of the crop.

NOTES The best financial quarters have received a tip from London that the Japanese have been trying to arrange a loan there for money to pay Russia for the Chinese Eastern railroad. The British do not care much for the idea. Their policy is to float foreign loans only when the empire gets some trade or other advantage out of it.

The London naval conversations lately have been directed mainly toward finding a pillow for the conference to fall on. Our people have come around to the view that the only thing to do is to let the naval issue ride for 10 or 12 months and see what happens.

A republican sadly surveyed the crate-like scaffolding around the Washington monument the other day and mourned: "I knew the democrats were carrying off just about everything they saw loose around here, but I did think they would leave the monument."

The Continued Sale of Bad Pies Merely Indicates a Hunger for Good Ones

By Robert Quillen

When some unknown person makes a conspicuous success in hard times, while established concerns are unable to earn an honest penny, his achievement is commonly regarded as one more proof that some people are born lucky.

But as a rule the lucky one wins success by the simple process of giving people what they want.

But surely, you will say, that is the policy of all business enterprises. In theory, yes; but not in practice.

Consider, for example, the manufacturers of automobiles. These gentlemen have developed a system by which they keep informed of the public's tastes and preferences. And thus they have learned, these last few years, that the qualities most desired by the majority of automobile buyers are safety and economy of operation.

Yet all of them make it their chief concern to develop more powerful engines and faster cars that will kill more people.

The public continues to buy, but its buying is not an evidence of approval. It indicates merely that a hungry man will eat hash if he is offered nothing better.

The movies, the stage and publishers of books fool themselves in the same way. Since their first and last concern is profit, they try to produce what the public wants; but they regard reluctant patronage as approval, and so continue to produce what the public will stand for.

The big successes show what the people desire. "Abie's Irish Rose" was a phenomenal success on the stage; such books as "The Girl of the Limberlost," "Freckles" and the "Winning of Barbara Worth" have outsold all others; and the movies that make the most money are such productions as "Cavalcade" ($3,500,000), "The Singin' Fool" ($5,000,000), and "Little Women" ($2,300,000). Not a salacious, pornographic or aphrodisiac line or scene in one of them.

The public can't get what it wants. For 10,000 years it wanted bait, yet it had to wait till our time for a Califronian with wit enough to sell fishworms by mail and get rich at it.

There is always a fortune waiting for the man who can find a neglected public desire and gratify it.

Garment Makers Code Body Fired

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(UP)—The national industrial recovery board tonight removed all directors and officers of the International Association of Garment Manufacturers from the cotton garment code authority.

Action was taken, it was said, because of "conflicting responsibilities" over enforcement of a recent code amendment to shorten hours and increase wages.

Wife's Tardiness Costs Candidate a Tie Vote

ST. PAUL, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Because his opponent's wife arrived too late to vote, Chris Olson won re-election as president of the council at St. Paul Park, a suburb. He defeated Ben De Forth, 97 to 96.

Mrs. De Forth, who had intended to cast her ballot for her husband, arrived three minutes after the polls closed.

FAIR ENOUGH

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

Pegler Attacks Whisky Legend. NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—The attempt of Mr. Irwin S. Cobb to define corn liquor for the federal alcohol control administration is an effrontery which has set your correspondent to examining an old American fallacy. This is the assumption that southerners, and particularly Kentuckians, are connoisseurs of red liquor who cut their teeth on the rim of the julep cup, pour bourbon over their porridge as soon as they are able to sit in a high chair and go through the remainder of a long life in a gently pickled and elaborately courtly condition, disputing gravely as to whether the mint should or shouldn't be bruised and sometimes resorting to arms about it.

The truth of the matter is, of course, that, barring New Orleans and the pleasure-coast of Florida, there hasn't been a taste of decent liquor anywhere south of the Mason and Dixon line these last 20 years, except an occasional pint, quart or half-case smuggled in. But New Orleans is a Central American city which somehow came unhitched and landed in alien surroundings. The Florida east coast, though southern in the geographical sense, is an outpost of New York and has enjoyed the benefits of the refined New York taste.

Imported Drinks At Louisville. The rest of the south, however, has been deficient in appreciation of liquor for many years and even in Louisville, Ky., the traditional home of good whisky, during the long drouth, the provisions for Derby Week were always imported by the visiting trade. Most of this merchandise was brought down from Chicago for their personal use by the sportsmen of Cicero, Ill., and though much of it was bathtub it was nevertheless very superior stuff by comparison with the available local supply.

As prohibition spread over the south the people began to go back into the dirt road country and buy crocks of evornight whisky from the farmers. And presently the demand became so great that the farmers moved to town and set up their tin bucket-and-funnel stills in the shanty outskirts so as to eliminate lost motion between consumer and producer. In time, too, the local public enemies introduced further merchandising efficiency into the trade, banding the producers into syndicates, but the product itself never improved and the southern taste eventually began to regard corn liquor as good liquor. That is why, to this day, with the repeal of prohibition and the coming of more or less potable legal goods, your southern connoisseur makes a wry face at government stuff and still clings to his Mason jar of white mule.

Manners Hurt By Poor Liquor. The manners of southern drinkers have deteriorated sadly from the rather extravagant politeness of old since they began to drink mule. This is crazy liquor which causes the victim to imagine that he is a combination of Sandow, Dempsey and the man on the flying trapeze. He wants to rend furniture apart with his hands, fight friend and stranger indiscriminately and perform feats of daring and grace on the big chandelier in the hotel ballroom, while screeching the rebel yell. Not to evade a sad conclusion, he has become a social risk when he is full of mule and the pity of it is that he still thinks it somehow unmanly and a compromise with principle to do his nibbling on the politer liquors which are now made available to him.

New York is modest and that is why New York never has troubled to challenge the tradition that the south enjoys a superior taste for stimulants and is accustomed to the best. Even during prohibition, New York never was quite without respectable merchandise and as soon as the bootlegging industry emerged from its formative stage and became a recognized part of the commerce of the city, the people forgot their fears and settled back to enjoy their drams.

No Claims By New York. Certainly New York never bothered to create a tradition that New Yorkers are whisky experts. The truth is that they are the best judges of liquor in the country because they have enjoyed supplies of superior stuff uninterruptedly. And with the best bartenders in the world ready to serve them they naturally get better juleps than the people of Louisville.

As for Mr. Cobb's pretensions to authority, let it be said that Mr. Cobb hasn't been a Kentuckian for many years and has fallen away so far that in the last election he made a speech on behalf of the republican nominee for governor of California. He may remember when there was good bourbon in Kentucky but that only goes to show how long he has lived in New York and how little he has known about Kentucky in the last 20 years.

ROOSEVELT INSTALLED IN REMODELED OFFICE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(AP)—President Roosevelt took over the remodeled executive office today with a smile of satisfaction.

His new office is slightly larger than the old one, with a fireplace and wide windows giving him a familiar view of the White House grounds and the Washington monument beyond.

However, secret service men moved in with wrinkles in their brows.

What worries them is the fact that there are several entrances available to the president's room, making it difficult to watch all callers.

William H. Moran, chief of the secret service, and Richard A. Jervis, head of the White House secret service detail, who are charged with protecting the president, spent busy hours today arranging for a guard in the new set-up.

L. S. U. WELCOMES HUEY LONG PROBE

Dean Issues Statement Here; Association Admits Six New Members.

Dean C. A. Ives, of Louisiana State University, "speaking with the full authority of the president of the university," Thursday said that "we will welcome the investigation of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools into affairs of the school" in connection with the asserted domination of Senator Huey Long.

Dean Ives' statement was in reply to a report read to the convention of the association Thursday morning. His statement was received with applause. The committee reported that it would also launch an investigation of the Louisiana State Normal College.

New Members Admitted.

During the business meeting that followed the report of the committee, six members were admitted to the association. They are: State Teachers' College, Florence, Ala.; State Teachers' College, Troy, Ala., both senior colleges; Holmes Junior College, Goodman, Miss.; Paris Junior College, Paris, Texas; Schreiner Institute, Knoxville, Tenn., and the South Georgia College, Douglas, Ga., all junior colleges.

Hiwassee College, Madisonville, Tenn., was dropped from the rolls of the organization, and four others, Lenoir Rhyne, of North Carolina; Presbyterian, of South Carolina; Andrew College, of Cuthbert, Ga., and Sullins College, of Virginia, were continued on probation.

In the report of the commission on secondary schools, made by M. R. Hinson, vice chairman of the commission, it was revealed that 20 schools had been dropped from that branch of the association because of non-compliance with the rulings of the association in regard to length of classes or number of classes given to individual teachers.

The committee on revision of the constitution proposed two amendments to the constitution, one of which was passed by the convention and the second was put on the desk until next year. The proposal which passed was to the effect that a rotation of members to the commissions of the association should take place and that those who are due to retire in 1935, and thereafter, cannot be eligible for more than one immediate re-election.

N. E .A. Head Speaks.

Dr. H. L. Smith, president of the National Education Association, addressed the delegates at the Thursday afternoon session on "Three Hundred Years of American Public Secondary Schools." He gave a complete history of the entire movement since the founding of the first high school 300 years ago in Massachusetts, and made suggestions for the future work of the association.

Dr. E. E. Oberholtzer, president of the department of superintendents of the N. E. A., spoke Thursday night. His speech was devoted to the "youth movement" in America and foreign countries.

"In this day of the New Deal, let us not forget that the permanence of all we hope for lies in the heartthrobs of our youth, many of whom, on account of maladjusted social and economic conditions have become nomads and castaways," he said.

"Let us cease talking about educating the next generation," he continued, "until we provide education for this generation. Let us cease talking about creating a better world to live in until we realize better living in this world today.

"The youth of today is being denied the chance to share in the rich human and scientifically progressive qualities of his environment," he said.

Association's Record Lauded.

Dr. Frank McVey, president of the University of Kentucky, and chairman of the association, reviewed briefly activities of the past year and praised the organization's record.

"This association has had a notable history," he said. "It is now in its 39th year. Only those who were familiar with the situation when the association was founded can appreciate in full the service which has been rendered by the association and the brave pioneers who organized it."

The association will have its final meeting this morning and will elect officers. The convention will adjourn after selecting the place of meeting for next year.

During the day, the Association of Southern Colleges for Women announced the election of President Annie Denmark, of Anderson College, Anderson, S. C., as their president for 1935. President B. L. Parkinson, of Mississippi State College for Women, was elected vice president, and Dr. Haywood J. Pearce Jr., vice president of Brenau College, Gainesville, Ga., re-elected secretary-treasurer.

Bay State Physician Reported Missing

BOSTON, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Dr. George H. Bigelow, 44, director of the Massachusetts general hospital, the state police announced tonight, has been missing since early Monday morning. Captain Michael Barrett, of the state police, said relatives feared he might be the victim of amnesia.

FRENCH THEATER FIRE KILLS SIX PERSONS

PERPIGNAN, France, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Six persons died today of burns and injuries suffered during a fire and panic in a barn used as a motion picture theater yesterday.

All of them died in a hospital during the day. The death list was made up of five boys between the ages of 2 and 11 years and one aged woman.

WOMAN, 28, ACCUSES EMPLOYER OF SHOOTING

LEBANON, Pa., Dec. 6.—(AP)—County Detective George Tucker tonight quoted Emma Miller, 28-year-old blonde factory worker near death from bullet wounds, as saying she "knows" Byron A. Laudermilch, 60, garment manufacturer, shot her.

Tucker said the young woman told him she fell asleep in Laudermilch's car last night after drinking some "highballs."

Feeling stiff and cold, the girl tried to rouse herself, Tucker quoted her as saying, and she and Laudermilch fell out of the car.

"'My God, what did you do to me, I'm hurt,'" Miss Miller told Laudermilch, the statement continued. "'Take me to a hospital.'"

Laudermilch, under guard in a private hospital, is charged with "assault with intent to kill," but Detective Tucker said he has not been permitted to examine his wounds or question him concerning events previous to the time he was found at the sanatorium this morning.

Miss Miller, who was found late last night in a ditch beside a lonely road near the Pennsylvania national guard reservation at Colebrook, is given little chance to recover from a bullet wound through her back to her left breast, near the heart.

HOLLYWOOD IN PERSON

By MOLLIE MERRICK.

HOLLLYWOOD, Cal., Dec. 6.—The most amusing reaction to the recent Warner Brothers' fire is the fact that all Hollywood is saying, "You might know that the Michael Curtiz Company would be on hand to fight the flames."

That's the sort of record Curtiz has rolled up for himself. He's one of the directors who always finish their assignments on time, and, though you may hear of members of his company complaining a bit, you never really meet anyone who dislikes this director.

As a matter of fact, most of the destruction in the Warner studio occurred in the "back lot." And aside from certain valuable "props" going up in smoke, nothing that can't be speedily replaced was destroyed.

For those extras who volunteered for fire-fighting, Jack Warner has made special financial provision. And this really includes all the men who were working on the lot at the time the fire broke out.

Harlene Carpenter Rosson sues husband Hal Rosson for divorce, and Frances Decalissa Landi answers Husband Lawrence's divorce suit with possible counter-charges.

All of which means that our movie stars try to get a minimum of publicity about their private lives.

Jean Harlow is known under her real, as well as her stage name.

And Elissa Landi will have to answer her husband's charges under a name known to all screenland, too.

All Hollywood remembers when the pianist, Abram Chasins, was the house guest of Miss Landi and her mother, the Countess Zenardi-Landi. But few guessed that such unexpected charges would result from his visit.

Court Halts Trial, Jails Two Jurors

GOLDSBORO, N. C., Dec. 6.—(AP) Judge R. Hunt Parker today threw out the jury selected to try Mrs. Ruby S. Trice and Donald Sasser for complicity in the slaying of her husband, sentenced two of the jurors to jail for allegedly giving false replies to questions in their examination for jury duty and ordered a venire drawn from adjoining Johnston county.

T. W. Hood, one of the jurors, was sentenced to 30 days in jail and J. T. Talton, another, to five days in jail.

Although Hood had asserted in reply to questions of attorneys during selection of the jury yesterday that he had formed no opinion as to the guilt of the defendants, Judge Parker called several witnesses who testified he had expressed belief Mrs. Trice was guilty.

Talton was disclosed to be a relative by marriage of Herbert Trice, slain husband of the 30-year-old widow who is accused of plotting the killing with Sasser, her brother, and Rufus Satterfield, now under sentence to die for the slaying.

President Mendieta Offers To Resign

HAVANA, Dec. 6.—(AP)—President Carlos Mendieta said today he is ready to keep the promise he made months ago—to resign if elections are not held in December.

Asserting it was not his fault that the elections could not be held, the president said: "I am disposed to abandon the post I hold as soon as called upon to do so and as soon as the person to succeed me shall have been chosen."

He listed efforts he had made to hold the elections within the time specified and said "I have no interest in holding a position I did not seek."

"If my acts as chief magistrate are not according to the wishes of the people of Cuba and if the government over which I preside no longer merits the satisfaction of this same people and its confidence, I will not be remiss in delivering the power to that Cuban who with greater capacity, though with no greater good will, may be able to conquer all the difficulties which those who dream an era of prosperity and peace for Cuba confront in these times."

MAYO DISCLOSES SELECTIVE ATTACK ON CANCER EVIL

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—(AP)—A new line of attack in the unceasing war on cancer was disclosed here today by Dr. William J. Mayo, of the famed Mayo Clinic, at Rochester, Minn.

In New York for a few days while en route to the convention of the Southern Surgical Society, in Georgia, Dr. Mayo described the new approach as an individualistic study of cancer as it occurs in different types of people and under varying conditions of sex, social customs and chronic irritation.

Previously, he said, cancer in common with various other ailments has been attacked as a problem of mass disease.

Now, however, the medical profession is trying to determine why certain persons are susceptible to cancer while a far greater number are immune to it under the same conditions.

Dr. Mayo said he was decidedly hopeful that this system eventually would be successful, although no definite results can yet be reported.

D. C. COURT NULLIFIES MEXICAN DIVORCES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(AP)—A ruling that a Mexican "mail order" divorce obtained by District of Columbia residents who had not gone to Mexico was null and void was handed down today by Justice Jesse C. Adkins, of the District supreme court.

Adkins' opinion was given in annulling the second marriage of one of the interested parties on the grounds she had never obtained a divorce from her first husband.

The Mexican divorce was between Louis R. Mattingly and Georgia V. Foster Mattingly, who separated in 1932 and obtained a divorce issued at San Juan Del Rio, Mexico, through the "Mexican divorce bureau."

EDUCATORS HONOR WELLS AT BANQUET

500 Teachers Pay Tribute to School Superintendent on 10th Year in Office.

Five hundred teachers of the Fulton county school system gathered Thursday night at a dinner at the Henry Grady hotel in honor of Jere A. Wells, superintendent of the system, marking the completion of his tenth year in that office.

"The schools are a part of the national defense," said Dr. S. V. Sanford, president of the University of Georgia, in making the principal speech of the evening, "and the schoolhouses are the armories from which we send our boys and girls to defend our liberties.

"It is only through education," he continued, "that we can create the citizens capable of transforming things as they are to things as they ought to be."

Dr. Sanford urged elimination of city and county school systems and the substitution of a great state school system and said that two demands that Georgians should make of the New Deal are a new tax system for Georgia and a new curriculum for the schools. "We can no longer teach the routine courses we inherited from the Oxford and Cambridge tradition," he said.

Wells Lauds Teachers.

Superintendent Wells, in his response, told of the unselfish and loyal work of the teachers and personnel of the county system. He called for a 12-month salary for all teachers and said that they should devote their entire time to the moulding of youthful character, in the summer months as well as during the regular school terms. He said programs of recreation and healthy summer sports should be supervised by the schools and quoted officials of the juvenile courts as saying that juvenile delinquency was far greater during the summer vacation period than during the school months.

Principal W. F. Dykes, of the North Fulton High school, presided and introduced the speakers.

Superintendent Paul D. West, of Russell High school, said that during the ten years Superintendent Wells has been in charge of the system the enrollment has grown from 6,500 to 21,370, that average salaries of teachers have shown a healthy increase and that there are now 595 teachers in the system, compared to 221 ten years ago. He recalled also that during Superintendent Wells' tenure of office the school systems of East Point, College Park, Campbell county, Milton county and Roswell have merged with the county system. The budget today, he said, is $850,000, compared to $250,000 in 1925, while the peak year was 1932 when, with 19,000 students, the budget was $1,096,428.

Anderson, Longino Speak.

W. T. Anderson, president, spoke on behalf of the county board of education and Chairman George F. Longino paid a tribute to Superintendent Wells on behalf of the board of county commissioners, saying the board was proud particularly of the smoothness and efficiency of the Fulton schools and pointed to the fact that there has been no reduction in the county appropriation for schools despite the depression.

Edwin Johnson spoke on behalf of the commissioners-elect and said the growing sentiment for a great metropolitan school system to embrace all of Fulton county, including Atlanta, was due chiefly to Superintendent Wells' splendid work.

Everett Millican, Fulton county senator-elect, spoke on behalf of the county's delegation in the legislature, while Dr. Earl Quillian, president of Civitan International, paid a tribute to the guest of honor as a fellow Civitan.

Judge Virlyn B. Moore added his words of appreciation when he was called upon to introduce Dr. Sanford as speaker of the evening. Letters and telegrams were read from several teachers and leaders unavoidably absent.

"Squatting Protest" Staged by French Vets

PARIS, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Hundreds of crippled war veterans squatted in the street in front of the ministry of finance today as a protest against cuts in their pensions.

For nearly an hour they tied up the traffic around the National theater, the Comedie Francaise, shouting: "Our pensions are amputated!"

The manifestants sat in the middle of the street, as they had done frequently of late, until they were urged on by about 1,000 policemen.

FATHER IS BURNED IN HEROIC RESCUE OF GIRL IN FLAMES

flames as he vainly sought to enter the room to get Virginia after he and Oscar Frix Jr., of 955 Greenwood avenue, and Policemen White and Defoor had carried out the smaller children from the front.

Mrs. Echols, who was visiting neighbors when the fire broke out, was overcome when she was called back to her home to find her husband and child badly burned. She fainted but revived and went to the hospital with her daughter. Frightened and suffering from inhalation of smoke, Ted and Doris Echols were put to bed in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frix next door. These two were not burned.

Beaten Back by Flames.

Young Frix and Echols smashed in a window of the bedroom where little Virginia lay unconscious and started in but the flames had gained such headway they were beaten back. Frix's hand was badly cut when he broke the glass and Echol's hair caught fire. He swathed his head in a coat and tried with T. G. Burrel, of 943 Greenwood avenue, to get into the room through a door. The way again was blocked.

The fire department, summoned by police and by Councilman Frank Wilson, had arrived by this time and Isbell and Webb, both of Company 19, waded directly into the blaze. Isbell got the child. Physicians said she would have been suffocated in another few seconds.

The blaze was quickly extinguished by the fire department and the front rooms of the one-story frame dwelling was damaged only by water.

Burned in the explosion of dry cleaning fluid, Sarah Jeffries, negro, of Thurmond street, and John Kinnemore, negro, of 241 Chestnut street, were admitted to Grady hospital in critical conditions. Details of the explosion were not known to police or hospital attaches but physicians said the negro woman was burned probably fatally.

the assassination of her king, Alexander, at Marseille October 9.

"Our appeal to the League of Nations comes up tomorrow," the spokesman said, "and the very fact that we appealed to Geneva shows we expect justice through the League without any thought of breaking our relations with Hungary."

Hungarian Allegiance.

As hundreds of Hungarians, ordered out of the Slav kingdom, streamed across the border, the government gave as its official explanation of their expulsion the fact that the 27,000 had lived 16 years in Yugoslavia without forswearing their allegiance to Hungary.

(Available records show 400,000 Hungarians live in Yugoslavia, but most of these have become naturalized Yugoslavs.)

The Belgrade government does not wish the presence of the unnaturalized Hungarians to be used as the basis for agitation for revision of treaties whereby parts of the Slav kingdom might revert to Hungary, it was stated.

In an exclusive interview, M. Purich, assistant minister for foreign affairs, declared stories originating in Hungary that those expelled were badly treated were untrue.

Allowed Time.

Thousands of those slated for expulsion, he said, have been allowed up to ten days to wind up their affairs, while no legitimate requests for delay have been refused.

"These 27,000 Hungarian citizens," Purich asserted, "have been living and working here on permits renewable every three or six months."

"In view of the general situation, including the unemployment of Yugoslav citizens, the Hungarian attitude at Geneva and the fact that Hungary recently has withdrawn permits for several hundred Yugoslavs who have been living in Hungary, we decided not to renew the permits when they fall due.

"What we are doing is perfectly legal and has been done frequently in other European states during recent years."

It was estimated today that the number of Hungarians deported thus far was around 2,000, among them some 300 luckless persons who found themselves without a country. This group, composed of men and women who renounced Hungarian citizenship preparatory to becoming Yugoslavs, was living in three trains at the frontier.

HUNGARY LODGES PLEA AGAINST MASS OUSTER

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Dec. 6.—(AP)—A Hungarian appeal against Yugoslavia's expulsion of Hungarians went forward to the League of Nations today as the cabinet was called into special session to discuss the new issue rising between the two nations.

With refugees from the Slav kingdom pouring into Hungary by the hundreds, the government took drastic steps to forestall incidents that might increase the prevailing tension.

Indignation ran high in Budapest after many refugees asserted they were hurried out of Yugoslavia without being given time to gather their possessions.

Government officials went to Szeged and other frontier stations to take testimony from refugees concerning their alleged ill treatment, but authorities were represented as apprehensive that the situation might lead to an open break with Yugoslavia and hence newspapers were instructed to keep silence concerning number or conditions of the arrivals.

been misplaced. Hot words flew between the two and Boyd Ramey told his father about it.

Ramey Drew Knife, Charge.

Thursday afternoon, Hoke Ramey met Warren in front of the dairy barn, according to Warren, and he accused Warren of using harsh words to his son. Warren told Sheriff Hall that Ramey drew a knife and slashed at him several times. He pulled his pistol, he asserted, and fired twice. One bullet hit Ramey in the left chest and the other struck the man in the back and he twisted and fell to the ground. He died instantly.

Then, he said, he started on to Decatur to surrender.

"I shot Ramey because he was trying to cut me," Warren said, in explaining he killed in self-defense.

Montreal residents phoned DeKalb county police of the fatal shooting and officers with bloodhounds were sent to the scene immediately, for the county officers were told that Warren had escaped. The dogs tracked Warren for some distance before the officers learned that he had gone to Decatur to tell his story to the sheriff.

Warren's Coat Ripped.

Hall said Warren's coat had five or six long slashes in it when he arrived at the county jail.

The sheriff asserted he would notify the DeKalb county coroner and would request an investigation by a coroner's jury this morning. The body of Ramey was taken to the establishment of A. S. Turner, who will announce funeral arrangements.

Ramey was the father of a number of children, the mother of whom died a year ago. It was said that he had married again since his first wife's death.

Montreal, where the Richardson dairy is located, is a settlement off the Lawrenceville road several miles from Decatur.

COCA-COLA TO BUY CITY SALARY SCRIP

issue for the last half of November, and paid 100 per cent cash for it without requiring that any purchases be made in order to obtain money.

The $400,000 represents payrolls for policemen, firemen, school teachers and all other employes on semi-monthly or monthly payrolls of the city for the entire month of December.

In announcing that Coca-Cola Company would purchase the issue of scrip that council has authorized to meet the December pay roll, Gilliam said:

"Once again Coca-Cola has come to the aid of city employes and through its generous action today has made possible the cash payment of all December salaries. This means a merrier Christmas for the city's hundreds of employes.

All Employes to Be Paid.

"Every employe of the city will get every cent of his December salary without having to suffer through discounting the scrip. We will not have to consider what no one wanted to consider—the possibility of enforcing tax executions against hard-pressed citizens through sale of fi fas to raise the money.

"Like Rich's, which is cashing the scrip for the second half of November salaries, Coca-Cola is to be congratulated for its faith in and its support of the city government in our efforts to solve the municipality's financial problems.

"Mayor Key and City Comptroller B. Graham West, who have been associated with me in arranging for Coca-Cola to purchase the December scrip, join with me in thanking this outstanding Atlanta institution for its act."

SEWER DISTRICT BILL TO BE URGED

and other indebtedness by any political subdivision in the area and with complete authority and control over all present facilities.

5. Construction of adequate trunk lines and lateral sewers to service the entire area and with authority to build disposal units.

6. Vesting of the commission with authority to issue bonds and raise revenue for the prosecution of the sewer program in line with powers vested by the bill.

Even if the one cent a 100 gallons were imposed, the average cost to the small user would not exceed 60 cents a month, according to W. Zode Smith, general manager of waterworks, who said the minimum rate for 800 cubic feet of water, 6,000 gallons, is $1 a month.

The commission believes that this figure is the absolute outside and that about one-fourth of one cent will be about the average levy.

Commission members, headed by Frank H. Neely, have worked tirelessly on the matter because of the precarious position Atlanta now occupies because of the pollution of streams in this vicinity.

Several lawsuits, aggregating many thousands of dollars, are now pending in the courts, and legislative action is considered virtually mandatory if any relief is to be obtained. The city and other governments in the affected area cannot provide funds to meet the demands of the ever-growing sewer problem.

DAVIS WARNS JAPS TO UPHOLD TREATY

today that Washington would order Davis and Admiral William H. Standley, his fellow delegate, home as soon as the denunciation takes place, thereby placing on Japan the onus of the break-up of the conversations.

Only some new constructive plan advanced by Tokyo which would open the way to an agreement can avert this action, it was said, and any such plan would have to be based on the fundamentals of the Washington and London pacts.

Davis' address before the correspondents, considered highly significant in the light of the approaching end of the Washington treaty, was the first comprehensive explanation of the American position.

Washington Pact's Results.

"A sound basis for peace in the Pacific and the far east" was established by the Washington conference, he said, which "put an end to a ruinous naval race."

He declared "maintenance of the system of equality, with proportionate reductions downward of naval strength if possible," essential to maintaining "the substantial foundation for security and peace which has thus been laid."

"Abandonment now of the principles involved would lead to conditions of insecurity, of international suspicion and of costly competition, with no real advantage to any nation," he said.

Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, today discussed the American suggestion that denunciation be deferred with Tsuneo Matsudaira, Japanese ambassador to London, and Matsudaira agreed to ask Tokyo whether it was possible to propose some new plan for naval limitation, complete with tonnage figures.

Heretofore the Japanese have given no figures in connection with their original demands that any new treaty should allow Japan naval equality and limit tonnage on the global, or total, basis.

Japanese circles, however, were doubtful Tokyo would consent for the Japanese government has opposed giving any figures until the other two powers consent to Japan's naval equality.

The British continued to maintain there was still some hope for agreement, although admitting the outlook was no brighter, and the Americans therefore hesitating to take any step toward concluding the conversations.

I. O. U.'S IN RELIEF DRAWER REVEALED

loaned him by Dunnaway. He further admitted that he repaid the $150 on September 26, four days after the loss was discovered.

A system by which employes carried IOU'S for as long as months at a time was related by Dunnaway. He said that on one occasion a negro girl earning $16.50 a week had an IOU in the cash box for $40. LaRocca admitted in answer to a question by defense counsel that an IOU was in the box for $20 for a negro whom he was sending through college. LaRocca's salary, he said, was $175 a month. Dunnaway said that while the cash balance often ran as low as $5 he had seen $180 worth of IOU's in the box at one time.

Dunnaway, charged with converting money obtained by cashing vouchers owned by men handling moving of household goods for clients of the administration, said that he held the vouchers in some instances on request of the men in order that they might save money to meet payments on their trucks. Many times, he said, he was unable to give them cash on the vouchers for the reason that there was no money to pay them with at the time they were presented.

The defendant charged animosity on the part of the transfer men which he said was due to the fact that he had investigated the way they worked and had caused a strict check to be made on the number of loads they moved before issuing the vouchers.

A 15-minute argument was heard from each side Thursday night. Concluding arguments of a half-hour for each side will be heard this morning.

Defense Attorney F. A. Constangy in the opening argument for the defense, contended that the state has produced no evidence to show that Dunnaway ever obtained any cash on the vouchers, and argued that others had access to the cash box and that there was as much evidence before the jury of the guilt of La Rocca as there was against Dunnaway.

Miss Ada M. Barker, Fulton county relief administrator, called as a defense witness, flatly denied charges that she had attempted to muzzle employes of her organization by threatening them with discharge.

Miss Barker denied completely the charges of intimidation made in a sworn statement by Dunnaway offered in support of a claim he had not had proper opportunity to prepare his defense. She countered with a charge that J. B. Kilbride, one of Dunaway's counsel, had said he "would be very sorry to 'try' the FERA" when he demanded she give him a letter addressed to all employes authorizing them to talk freely about the Dunaway case.

She said she told Kilbride at the time she resented the inference anyone connected with the organization would tell anything but the truth.

Under examination, Miss Barker said that she had not "counted" the number of irregularities which had been investigated by the administration, when asked if they did not number about 50. She also admitted the dismissal of one employe shortly before the loss of $150 from the Edgewood district cash box, but said that no indictment had been asked, as the employe was bonded and the matter reported to his sureties.

The witnesses were questioned in detail as to the working of the organization, and information was brought out that as many as 30 visitors, or case-workers, and also clients of the administration, knew of the presence of the cash box in a filing cabinet.

Asked if she had not issued a bulletin threatening any employe who criticized the administration with discharge, Miss Barker said that a bulletin had been issued requesting that any such criticism should be made to the administration itself and not made outside, but denied that she had threatened discharge.

Dunnaway went to trial on a charge of larceny of funds entrusted to him by four men employed to move relief families and one other person. The state produced evidence to show that the men received vouchers when they moved a family which were entitled to immediate cashing, but that Dunnaway had "put the men off" from time to time, saying that he did not have the cash on hand, and that he gradually became indebted to them in the sum of about $200.

It was brought out that several cases of the theft of stamps had been reported at the Edgewood branch previous to the alleged robbery.

Dunnaway is also under indictment for embezzlement of the money which he claims was taken by others in a robbery and for forgery. His attorneys demanded a severance, and the larceny case was elected for trial by the state.

Dunnaway is represented by former Governor Clifford Walker, J. B. Kilbride and F. A. Constangy.

Miss Gay B. Shepperson, state relief administrator, in a statement issued Thursday said that prosecution in such cases is never resorted to unless a complete investigation is made before formal charges are preferred.

"Our first concern," she said, "is to safeguard the public funds and see that every cent of the money serves the purpose for which it was intended. Prosecution of employes on counts involving matters of moral turpitude is always a regrettable procedure and is never resorted to except in cases where our investigation seems to indicate such action. In no instances, however, is it the policy or intention of the administration to persecute in its efforts to bring about justice."

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.
For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.
If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.
It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

Congressman Vinson Urges Retention of Bankhead Act

By CARL VINSON,
Representative Sixth Georgia District.
(Written for the Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(AP)—The farmers of Georgia and other southern states will be called upon on December 14 by their ballot to determine whether or not the Bankhead cotton act will be applied to the 1935 cotton crop.

This is the most momentous economic decision that has confronted the people of the south in the last 50 years, for the price of cotton is the economic yardstick of the south.

Uncontrolled Crop.

The rejection of the Bankhead act means uncontrolled production, which in turn pauperizes every producer of cotton and paralyzes business in every channel of trade, not only in the south, but throughout the nation. Our southern farmers cannot afford to go back to the old order of things.

Business conditions in the south show conclusively the success of the cotton adjustment program and other recovery programs. Comparing the first nine months of 1934 with the first nine months of 1933 in the Atlanta district, I find that retail trade was up 29 per cent, building permits were up 59.2 per cent, wholesale trade was up 27.3 per cent, and life insurance sales were up 17.3 per cent. There was an increase of 78 per cent in department store sales over the low point reached in March of 1933. Net demand and time deposits in eight cotton belt states in places under 15,000 population were $311,000,000 in September, 1934, as compared with $243,000,000 in September, 1933.

The part that the cotton program has played in the improved business conditions in Georgia is clearly shown in the rise in the price of lint cotton and cottonseed, the increased value of a bale of cotton, and the increased value of the total crop in Georgia.

The rise in the price of lint cotton from 6.5 cents in 1932 to 9.7 cents in 1933 and 12.5 cents in 1934; the rise in the price of cottonseed from $10.40 per ton in 1932 to $14.43 per ton in 1933 and to $35.62 per ton in 1934; the rise in the value of a bale of cotton and the seed from $37.44 in 1932 to $55.35 in 1933 and to $79.42 in 1934; the rise in the total farm value of the Georgia crop of cotton lint and seed from $34,642,000 in 1932 to $62,144,000 in 1933 without rentals and profits on options and $74,565,173 in 1933 with rentals and profits and to $78,008,000 in 1934 without rental and parity payments and to $88,017,660 in 1934 with rental and parity payments; the passing of gloom from the state; the return of confidence and the feeling of security is eloquent testimony of the effectiveness with which the cotton program has been planned and carried out.

Exemption Tickets.

The value of the program in Georgia is further borne out by the fact that exemption certificates for the 105,346 bales produced in excess of the 1934 allotment to Georgia will cost only $2,014,216 and the value of the crop, after deducting cost of certificates, is $86,003,444, compared to $74,565,173 in 1933 and $34,642,000 in 1932. The increased value in 1934 over 1933 of cottonseed alone will pay for four times as many excess exemption certificates as will be needed in the state in 1934.

The south has definitely turned away from rugged individualism of the pioneer order, as it has so many times attempted to do in the past. We are pioneering in a new social and economic order; a new order where the individual benefits with the group, and not at the expense of the group.

Cotton producers are demanding not only liberty but equality. They want the liberty to adjust production of cotton to market demands for cotton so that they can obtain a price for cotton on a parity with the prices of commodities they must buy. As long as the income of the farm popoulation in Georgia is as low or lower than it was in 1929 when the per capita income of the farm population was $147 and the per capita income of the non-farm population was $532, there is no equality, and without equality, we can not have liberty.

The passage of the Bankhead act is by no means the first time that cotton producers have demanded some law to control cotton production. The records show that the campaigns in 1905, 1915, 1921 and 1927 to decrease the cotton acreage were rendered more or less ineffective by non-co-operators. In 1904 limiting credit to cotton producers was advanced as a method of bringing about a reduction in acreage. In a conference of the governors of some of the southern states that met in Memphis in October, 1914, it was proposed that the various state legislatures pass laws fixing the acreage to be planted to cotton (this method was used by several of the states of the Confederacy during the first years of the War Between the States). The legislature of South Carolina passed a law in November, 1915, to limit the acreage to "six acres to the plow."

Tax Proposed.

Individuals in the columns of agricultural periodicals proposed a graduated tax on all cotton produced in 1915 and after. A tax of this character had been actually applied in some of the states of the Confederacy.

We are all no doubt familiar with the laws passed by the legislatures of South Carolina, North Carolina and other southern states a few years ago.

The point is that the basic principles embodied in the Bankhead act are neither novel nor new. The features embodied in this act represent a century of struggle by cotton producers to adjust production to effective demand, and the manner in which the Bankhead act became a law made it an integral part of the cotton program. Voluntary sign-ups did not control the deserting minority. We must have some means whereby everyone must co-operate if the majority wish to co-operate.

This is conclusively proved by the previous attempts at control. History is clear on that point. In this connection, it is important to note that the present program is the sixth major efforts at cotton control since 1900. Mostly due to disastrous results of low prices, the maximum reduction in any one of these campaigns was about 15 per cent, and the average about 13 per cent. The type of producers who co-operated in bringing about an adjustment in those years is the type which came in and signed voluntary contracts in the early stages of the 1934 campaign. However, there was a certain minority who increased their acreage in those years because their neighbors were decreasing. We still have that minority.

The manner in which decision is to be reached as to whether or not the Bankhead act will be continued in 1935 will perhaps represent the first time in the history of this country that the principles of democratic control are introduced into the economics of this country.

I regard democratic control as fundamental in the success of the cotton program. If a majority of the cotton producers want the Bankhead act in 1935, they will vote for it and support it. If they do not want it, they will vote against it. That is as it should be, because the demand for compulsory control must come from cotton producers and must be strong enough to withstand the attacks of opposing minorities and opposing outside interests. If cotton producers do not want it, it will inevitably fail.

However, it is my candid opinion that producers want the Bankhead act continued and that they will realize if the Bankhead act is not continued that non-co-operators and new producers will expand their acreage to the limit and destroy the cotton program. Farmers cannot afford to allow the minority to destroy the gains already made and thereby bring about a situation such as we faced in 1932 when cotton was selling at 6.5 cents a pound.

Election December 14.

The referendum on the Bankhead act will be conducted December 14, 1934, between the hours of 9 a. m. and 5 p. m. The county committee shall designate the place or places for the balloting in each local community which will be readily accessible to all eligible voters. The county committee shall also designate three local persons to act as referendum committee in each community. The referendum will be by secret ballot and there will be no method of determining how an individual votes.

The tabulation of the results of the referendum in a community will be made by the community referendum committee and their findings shall be reported to the county committee, who will, in turn, tabulate the returns for the county and forward to the state allotment board. The state allotment board shall summarize all county reports and send to Washington. Official and final tabulation of the results of the referendum is to be made by the agricultural adjustment administration, or such offices, division or section of the department of agriculture as the secretary of agriculture may designate.

Any person who signed a 1934-1935 cotton acreage reduction contract, any person who is or who was eligible for tax-exemption certificates in 1934, any person who presents proof that he owns and has a present right to produce cotton on a cotton farm or any person who signs and files a witnessed written statement that he has made arrangements to produce cotton on a cotton farm in 1935 will be eligible to vote on the continuation of the Bankhead act.

I urge that all persons eligible to vote make a special effort to be at the polls December 14.

While there has been some difficulty in administering the Bankhead act in 1934, I strongly urge the retention of the act in 1935 and feel that this one year's experience with the type of control embodied in the act will be possible to remove the difficulties encountered.

Favor Bankhead Act.

I earnestly urge my constituents to vote December 14 for the continuation of the act, and I propose to introduce in congress an amendment to section 4 of the act giving to each producer a minimum allotment of two bales of cotton. This can be provided for in the administration of the act without increasing the total yield. Such an amendment will remove the one outstanding defect in the present act.

A False Fire Alarm Brings Prison Term

SAVANNAH, Ga., Dec. 6.—(AP)—After admitting they were responsible for a false fire alarm several nights ago, two 17-year-old youths were sentenced by Judge H. Mercer Jordan in police court here today to spend 30 days at the county farm. No alternative of a fine was imposed.

ROOSEVELT SHAPES JOB, RELIEF PLAN

President Gives No Inkling as to Amount of Money He Will Ask.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(AP)—President Roosevelt tonight shaped details of a plan aimed at giving work to the millions on direct relief and at co-ordinating emergency spending into one broad program to accomplish the task.

There were authoritative signs, as the president returned from Warm Springs refreshed and buoyant, that he intends to ask congress for emergency sums exceeding $4,000,000,000. This figure was mentioned in informed quarters as probably a minimum.

This central fund, some of Mr. Roosevelt's advisers reported, was expected to be apportioned out for carefully drawn projects. They added that the plan would include many that fit in with the president's conception of America in the future.

Whether one central agency would be designated to direct the expenditures contemplated apparently had not been decided, but such a proposal has been under discussion.

Some of the things in mind are:

Land and water conservation, relief, public works, roads, subsistence homesteads, rural rehabilitation and various others.

The four million or more employables on relief rolls are to be put to work, but opinions varied as to the extent that low-cost housing, subsistence homesteads, slum clearance or other projects would be used in giving them jobs.

One estimate from a generally reliable quarter said $500,000,000 might be employed in a land and water conservation program.

Throughout the day, the conferences that had marked the president's stay at Warm Springs were continued at the White House with a steady stream of cabinet and other official callers flowing through his newly remodeled executive office.

A radio report to the nation within the next week or so may bring the first definite word from Mr. Roosevelt regarding his plan, but some officials said it was more likely that the full measure would not be disclosed until the opening of congress.

Harry L. Hopkins, the relief administrator, said today that if the four million able-bodied persons on relief rolls were put to work it would reduce to a very small figure the number of persons left. He said there were about 4,200,000 families on relief and some 4,500,000 employables, or about 1.6 employable persons to each family.

Just what will emerge from the rush of suggestions and ideas probably will not finally be told until congress assembles.

Almost immediately upon his return today, the chief executive turned to the congressional program, which, many expect, will be dominated by the work-relief legislation.

Vice President Garner, one of the president's chief liaison officers with congress, came to Washington today to work with Mr. Roosevelt and was among his first callers of the afternoon.

The administration is apparently watching closely the fight for the speakership in the house and if any move is made by the president it undoubtedly will be through Mr. Garner, himself a former speaker.

Showing his determination to carry on with the New Deal policies, Mr. Roosevelt brought back with him orders for continuance of the acreage control program as a general agricul tural policy.

Some saw in this a victory for Rexford G. Tugwell, undersecretary of agriculture.

But Mr. Roosevelt also called to his side today Secretaries Hull and Wallace, showing a determination to continue likewise the attempts for increased foreign markets.

MRS. MAJORS LOSES IN CLAXTON ELECTION

CLAXTON, Ga., Dec. 6.—(AP)—This Evans county city refused today to place itself under petticoat rule in the municipal election, the voters re-electing Mayor C. M. Rushing and his entire board of aldermen by an overwhelming majority.

The vote for mayor was: Rushing, 358; Mrs. R. E. L. Majors, 64, and V. J. Hodges, 19.

Mrs. Majors said she might try again next year. Associate editor of her husband's weekly newspaper here, the Claxton Enterprise, Mrs. Majors is president of the First District Press Association and is an active worker in women's club circles.

All of the aldermen serving with Mayor Rushing were re-elected. They are W. L. Adams, R. L. Bowen, J. B. Griffin, W. J. Hinson and W. T. Moore.

Before the election, the weeds about which Mrs. Majors so vigorously complained, were cut and it would appear that the Rushing administration cut her platform from under her.

Dr. Atkinson has served as secretary and treasurer of the organization for four years and was elected to the presidency at the winter meeting of the association Wednesday. He succeeds Dr. S. T. R. Revell, of Louisville.

Sandersville was selected as the site of the annual summer session in June.

Other officers elected were Dr. William M. Cason, of Sandersville, vice president, and Dr. W. W. Chrisman, of Macon, secretary and treasurer.

Hurry and Worry Cause Mental Ills, Doctor Says

ATHENS, Ga., Dec. 6.—(AP)—Dr. John Hunnicut, Athens physician, speaking at the Georgia psychology clinic last night, predicted "adequate treatment and possible prevention of mental disorder."

Dr. Hunnicut attributed "ever increasing mental cases to hurry and worry" of present living and prescribed sunshine, recreation and sane habits as best known remedies for preventions of mental troubles.

T. J. SHINGLER DIES AT DONALSONVILLE

DONALSONVILLE, Ga., Dec. 6.—Funeral services for T. J. Shingler Sr., 70, one of south Georgia's most widely known businessmen, were held today at the Nazarene church here, Rev. S. D. Cox, assisted by Rev. Joseph N. Harker, conducting the service. Mr. Shingler passed away at his home here Wednesday following an illness of several months. He is survived by his wife, three sons, Milton E., Tom J. and Morrison P. Shingler, of Donalsonville; three daughters, Mrs. G. P. Shingler, of Lake City, Fla.; Mrs. J. F. Spooner, of Long Beach, Cal., and Mrs. P. A. Walker, of Covington; one brother, J. S. Shingler Sr., of Ashburn; two sisters, Mrs. D. S. Cuttino, of Sumter, S. C., and Mrs. Decima S. Babb, of Atlanta.

Mr. Shingler moved to Donalsonville in 1900. He was at that time a naval stores operator. He will be remembered as being the first man to bring peanut oil manufactury to this section, having built the present Planters Products Company. He was one of the first men to bring Hereford cattle to this section of the south. He was at one time known throughout the states for his turpentine, extensive farming and banking interests. He first brought pecan growing industry on a large scale to Donalsonville.

Mr. Shingler was largely instrumental in creating Seminole county. He, with the aid of his first wife, established the Nazarene church in Georgia. He at one time established a college in Donalsonville which later merged with Treveca College, of Nashville, Tenn. He started the Shingler missions in Mexico. He helped build the majority of Donalsonville's buildings, donated the site of the present courthouse and severed several years on the town council.

10TH DISTRICT MAYORS HOLD MEET AT ATHENS

ATHENS, Ga., Dec. 6.—(AP)—Home rule for municipalities in Georgia and a new system of taxation to shift the burden from visible property to other sources occupied the attention today of the tenth district convention of the Georgia Mayors' Association.

Mayor James L. Key, of Atlanta, as principal speaker, said the association of mayors grew out of the necessity for an effective, united group of representatives of municipal officers who would protect the interests of towns and cities which he said have not heretofore been safeguarded by the state legislature.

He said the "negligence" in municipalities was partly responsible for existing conditions.

Mayor A. G. Dudley, of Athens, vice president of the association, presided. Mayor Key is the association's president.

WOOLFORD PARK WORK BEGINS NEAR DARIEN

350-Acre Tract Given State by Atlantan To Be Improved.

DARIEN, Ga., Dec. 6.—(AP)—Creation of a park in the historic and picturesque section of Glynn county near Darien has been approved by the national park service and work on the park already has begun, it was announced today by B. M. Lufburrow, state forester.

The park is being built on a tract of 350 acres donated to the state by Cator Woolford, Atlanta businessman and philanthropist, and the work is being done by civilian conservation corps workers under direction of Lufburrow and the national park service.

The approved plans call for construction of an inn or tourist house in the park, building of numerous roads and trails and restoration of ruins of old buildings in the park area.

Lufburrow said the project, owned by the state, would be self-supporting in that it would attract thousands of tourists who annually travel the coastal highway from north and south.

The park area is in a section once famous for its rice mills and plantations and archaeologists are studying ruins of other buildings to determine how long ago they were constructed. Some of the crumbling structures are believed to be missions built by Spaniards many generations ago.

Lufburrow said the inn, which would serve as a place where tourists could rest and get cold drinks and light lunches, would be ready by April 1 and the roads completed by January 1. The inn will be made of native tabby, a material made of oyster shells and other local materials.

Marshal Wounds 3 And Ends Own Life

JEANERETTE, La., Dec. 6.—(AP) Mayor Sidney J. Bourgeois demanded night Marshal Ben LeBlanc's badge at the town council meeting last night. The night marshal answered the demand with bullets—four of them.

One critically wounded the mayor, another wounded a councilman, E. T. LeBlanc, and the third wounded a spectator, the fourth, the angered officer sent into his own body with fatal effect.

The meeting, called principally to discuss the town's budget, was turned to the LeBlanc case when Mayor Bourgeois brought it up, charging the officer with neglect of duty and demanding his badge. It broke up in the wildest confusion as the bullets from the officer's weapon sent the dozen or more councilmen and spectators to cover.

"The more I use CLIX the better I like it"

THAT'S WHAT THEY ALL SAY

Every Atlanta housewife knows that the most important factor in baking and cooking is the shortening used. That's why we recommend Clix . . . the ideal shortening.

Atlanta housewives who entered the contest sponsored by the Atlanta Constitution recently are loud in their praise of Clix because they know from actual experience it is the finest shortening they ever used.

Clix is the only all-hydrogenated pure lard shortening on the market. It is neutral, firm, yet plastic in texture, snowy white in color and has neither taste nor odor. It creams quickly and easily, mixes well with other ingredients, possesses unequalled keeping qualities and excels for cakes, cake fillings, icings, pastries, pies, bread, rolls, biscuits and fried cakes.

After all, pure lard is the finest natural shortening source . . . and Clix is the only all-hydrogenated shortening made exclusively from pure lard.

You can buy Clix in the convenient, economical, sanitary one pound and four pound cartons. Dealers throughout Atlanta and vicinity handle Clix. Ask for it—the ideal shortening—the shortening of perfect results.

LONG TAKES OVER PARTY LEADERSHIP

"Kingfish," Under New Dictatorial Laws, Ousts Mayor Walmsley.

BATON ROUGE, La., Dec. 6.—(AP)—Senator Huey P. Long ousted his political enemy, Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley, of New Orleans, from the chairmanship of the democratic state committee late today and took over the office himself.

The action was made possible under one of the 44 bills recently approved by the legislature to strengthen Long's rule which became law during the day.

The vote for Long's election was 70 to 16 and the roll call showed that Long used a little satire on the heels of a denunciation of him by Walmsley by casting his vote for the mayor. But after his election, Long took the floor in stage play to eulogize both himself and Governor O. K. Allen, his associate in state political affairs.

At the time Long was assuming his new powers interest was revived in the federal government's investigation of his income tax returns by the indictment by the federal grand jury of State Senator Jules G. Fisher and Representative Joseph Fisher, his nephew, both members of the Long political machine.

The Fishers were charged with attempting to evade and defeat payment of income tax in their returns for the years 1931, 1932 and 1933, and these indictments brought the list up to seven.

W. E. SMALL DIES AT CALIFORNIA HOME

W. E. Small, former widely known Atlanta businessman, died recently at his home in California.

He was formerly president of the Georgia Casualty Company here and previously had been in business in Macon. He was the brother of Mrs. Robert T. Jones Sr., of Atlanta, and also is survived by a wife and son. He moved to California a number of years ago.

Mayor of Pittsburgh May Debate Kingfish

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Pittsburgh's apple-eating, humorist mayor, William Nissley McNair, first democrat to head the city in 25 years, Wednesday accepted a proposal for a debate with the kingfish of the south, Huey Pierce Long.

Father James R. Cox, who led an unemployed army to Washington in 1932, is trying to promote the match, as a charity affair to be held between January 5 and 9, the anniversary of the march.

For a subject—Father Cox says they really won't need one and likely wouldn't stick to one anyway—President Roosevelt's administration was suggested, the mayor to uphold the president and the kingfish to argue for his new youth party.

Senator Long hasn't given his final acceptance.

Boy, 7, Is Given Speech By Delicate Operation

Normal speech, impaired since birth, was given to Henderson Roland, 7-year-old boy of Franklin, N. C., this week by physicians who performed a delicate operation on the boy's throat at the Georgia Baptist hospital.

Among the instruments used in the operation were a laryngoscope, bronchoscope and laryngal knife. The first two gave a glimpse of the boy's vocal chords. They were found to be grown together, which prevented normal vibration. The laryngal knife was then thrust down between the chords, cutting the growth.

Coming out from under the anesthetic the boy gave the first normal cry of his life.

VIENNA CHOIR BOYS PLEASING TO AUDIENCE

Those of you who failed to go to the concert given by the Vienna Choir Boys at Wesley Memorial auditorium Thursday evening missed one of the rarest experiences in Atlanta's concert history. These singing boys of Vienna were presented by the All-Star Concert Series, as an extra attraction.

A group of 20 young boys, ranging in age from about 8 to 13, under the direction of Georg Gruber, revealed in astonishing manner what youth can accomplish. The audience was held spellbound by their exquisite singing, their excellent interpretations, their perfect shading. Their voices blended together to form a heavenly choir, a choir that sang to touch the hearts of their audience, yet seemed a divine gift. And such musicianship! Each child followed his director perfectly in every diminuendo and crescendo, every nuance of tone and rhythm, each bit of phrasing. And intricate part singing was always in perfect pitch. Georg Gruber is a master-director, the results that he derived from his careful work attesting his genius. And the gloriously beautiful voice of the young soprano, Harold Santler, has made a lasting record on the musical ears of those present.

A very attractive onening to the soprano was their rendition of "Star-Spangled Banner" as a salute to their host, America, sung with their quaint pronunciation of English. The programmed numbers of the first group were "O Sacrum convivium," Gallus; "Una hora." DaVictoria; "Natus est nobis." Gallus; "Tristis est," Nascus; and "Haec dies," Gallus, all sixteenth century songs, and each one bringing a new thrill to the audience, which received them with such tremendous applause that an encore, "Ascendus Deus," Gallus, was given.

Bringing delight both in singing and acting, the Wiener Saengerknaben presented a one-act comic opera in costume, "A Song From Old Vienna," by Franz Schubert. Their acting was quite as clever as their singing, and their such of comedy was most entertaining.

The last group climaxed the program of incomparable beauty. It included "Maria ging aus Wandern," Brahms-Emmer; "So will ich frisch und frohlich sein," Brahms; "Lullaby," Schubert; and "Morgenblatter Waltz," by Strauss. The audience declared emphatically that it was not yet satisfied, and "Lullaby," Mozart; "Blue Danube Waltz," Strauss; "Dixie," and "Vogelhochserh," a German folk-song, had to be given in succession. —MOZELLE HORTON.

In celebration of the publication of Fulton county's first official history, the historian, Walter G. Cooper, members of the Fulton county history commission, and Eugene Mitchell, president of the Atlanta Historical Society, will be honor guests at Rhodes Memorial Hall, from 3 to 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon, Ruth Blair, state historian, announced Thursday.

More Than 500 Atlanta Children View Famous Whale in Rail Car

Heralded as one of the most unusual specimens of finback ever captured "Colossus," the famous whale of San Clemente, has attracted thousands of Atlantans to the special railway car located at the corner of Pryor and Wall streets. Thursday, more than 500 children viewed the mammoth sea monster at half-price using a Constitution special coupon. Some 3,000 regular admissions were paid in, a portion of which goes directly to swell the Big Brother treasury.

In addition to the whale, a giant sea elephant, a live devil fish, live penguins and many other interesting marine exhibits are to be seen. Captain Mike Dolan, veteran of many years, gives whaling experience lectures on "Colossus," relating the extreme difficulty with which the whale was captured, embalmed and then placed on a specially constructed 100-foot railway car. For the last two evenings Captain Dolan has made 15-minute addresses over station WGST on whaling and its hazards.

SAAR MOVE STIRS SOVIET TO ACTION

France's Friendly Gestures Toward Germany Brings Litvinoff to Laval.

GENEVA, Dec. 6.—(AP)—A new French move for friendship with Germany, hailed in Geneva as likely to lay the specter of war hovering over Europe, today gave soviet Russia, France's wartime ally, cause for concern.

The soviet commissar for foreign affairs, Maxim Litvinoff, hurried to Pierre Laval, French foreign minister, to ask France's pledge that she would not enter any agreement with another nation without consulting Russia.

The two statesmen, who last month were reported to have agreed that the Russian army would be at France's disposal should Germany attack, decided neither nation should make political accords with third parties without consulting the other, until the Eastern Locarno security pact is completed.

Russia, it was reported, feared the Franco-German understanding might isolate her, but this League of Nations seat nevertheless was speculating tonight as to whether the reported Franco-soviet military accord might not give place ultimately to an outright Franco-German alliance.

Laval's policy of seeking real understanding with Germany, evident in the agreement the two nations reached at Rome recently, effectively disposing of the troublesome Saar question, and France's astounding announcement that she would send no troops in the Saar, made here yesterday, led Litvinoff to seek out Laval today.

The French statesman assured the soviet representative that their pet project, the Eastern Locarno pact, which envisages an agreement for non-aggression among Germany, Russia, Poland and other central European nations, was in no wise imperilled. France would not cast aside her old friends, Litvinoff was assured, in taking on new.

Four-Year-Old Child Is Burned to Death

Burned when her clothing caught fire from an open grate Thursday morning, four-year-old Virginia Ruth Wright, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Wright, of Rugby avenue, College Park, died at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon at Grady hospital.

The child's mother put out the flames by dashing a pan of water on her little daughter but the burns caused death a few hours later. Graveside rites are to be held at 10 o'clock this morning in Hardeman's cemetery with A. C. Hemperley & Sons in charge. In addition to the parents, the child is survived by a baby sister.

Three other children were treated for burns at Grady hospital Thursday. Carlos Askew, 4, and his sister, Margaret, 10, of 301 Loomis avenue, were reported improving from burns received when a pot of boiling water overturned on them. Robert Lambert, 12, 3396 Stewart avenue, was treated for painful face burns received when a can of kerosene which he was pouring on a fire exploded.

Father and Son, 3, Killed in Auto Crash

LOUISVILLE, Ga., Dec. 6.—An automobile wreck late this afternoon on state route No. 24, three miles west of here, cost the lives of two Louisville citizens.

J. E. Davis, 25, and his 3-year-old son, Hinton, are dead and Mr. Davis' brother, Elgie, age 18, is severely hurt. Mrs. J. E. Davis was slightly hurt.

A man, said to be named Duff, of Savannah, occupant of a truck involved in the accident with the Davis car, was seriously hurt, receiving a fractured ankle and maybe a broken leg.

The truck in which Duff was riding was being towed by a second truck into Louisville and, according to reports, the auto of the Davis party was meeting the two trucks and the towed truck and the car collided. Other occupants of the car and second truck escaped unhurt. The two trucks bore Chatham county tags.

M'CONNELL WILL OPEN HOM-OND STORE TODAY

Formal opening of McConnell's Hom-Ond food store on West Peachtree, at Fourteenth street, takes place today and Saturday. James T. McConnell, who operates this new Hom-Ond food store is a native of Atlanta. He was at one time assistant to the advertising manager of the southeastern district office of the Westinghouse Electric Company, city salesman for the Southeastern Engraving Company, and, as advertising agent, handled promotion and advertising for several Atlanta firms.

JAMES T. McCONNELL.

Mr. McConnell opened his Hom-Ond store first at 1178 West Peachtree street in March of this year. Increasing business made larger quarters necessary, so he moved, this week, into the corner location formerly occupied by the Hawks Drug store, where he has more than doubled his floor space.

"The outlook for business in the new location is very optimistic," Mr. McConnell said Thursday. "By virtue of the fact that we are associated with the Hom-Ond group of stores, we have the advantage of carload prices and in our new store the facilities will enable us to give our customers much better service."

WATERFRONT BLAZE SCOURGES MAINE PORT

PORTLAND, Maine, Dec. 6.—(AP) Fire roared along Portland's waterfront this afternoon, consuming lumberyard and wharf buildings and destroying freight cars and small water craft. Five persons leaped overboard from the yacht Coronet and were saved by men who went to their rescue in a rowboat. Two of the rescuers were severely burned.

Damage from the flames which spread with fierce rapidity through the old waterfront structures, most of them of wood, ran into hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Navy Fliers Continue Search for Ulm, Aids

HONOLULU, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Navy fliers pressed their search at sea today for Lieutenant Charles T. P. Ulm and two fellow Australian aviators lost since Tuesday, and authorities announced the efforts would continue "while there is any hope."

Although prospects for rescuing the trio dwindled on the third day of fruitless searching, a heartening message was received from Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith, trans-Pacific flier, in which he expressed belief that Ulm's plane might float "several days."

MRS. HUGH HARRIS.

her work in the Southern Methodist church and with the Emory Players.

She was a native of Hamilton, Ontario, and was graduated from Albion College and by the Northwestern School of Oratory and Dramatics, and she did post-graduate work at Yale University.

Since coming to Atlanta in 1913 with her husband, who was then assistant pastor of Wesley Memorial church, Mrs. Harris had been particularly active in religious work. She was an instructor in the teacher's training department of the Methodist church and was teacher of the Susannah Wesley class of the Druid Hills Methodist church. Her mother was a member of the City Roads Chapel in London, England, which was John Wesley's own church.

Wrote Play on Wesley's Life.

Mrs. Harris once wrote a play called "John of Fredericka," which depicted a part of the life of John Wesley and her drama was presented at Emory University and at several places in Georgia during the state's bi-centennial celebration. She was interested in dramatics and devoted much time to the Emory Players.

Mrs. Harris organized the Dames Club, composed of the wives of students at Emory, and her home was the scene of many student gatherings. Her husband has been a professor in the theological school at Emory for many years.

She was a member of the Wednesday Morning Study Club and of the Atlanta Bird Club. She was also active in the alumnae association here of Kappa Alpha Theta.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by a son, Victor, and three brothers, Spencer Silverthorne, of Minneapolis; George Silverthorne, of Phoenix, Ariz., and Ernest Silverthorne, of Gilbert, Ariz.

Funeral services are to be held at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon at Spring Hill. Dr. John Brandon Peters will officiate and the place of interment will be announced by H. M. Patterson & Son.

"How do you do it!"

THAT'S what many mothers say when they see the adorably sweet and natural photographs we take of their children. We can do it because our way of taking pictures puts a child at ease . . . there's no fussing to make a child nervous. And our photographer likes children so much and is so expert at getting the kind of expressions that make parents proud, that he just plays with the child and makes it a lot of fun.

MAYOR ABANDONS REFERENDUM PLEA ON LIQUOR STORE

years on the gang, as the judge scored Atlanta "as the most lawless city of the nation according to its population."

The mayor, who returned to his office Thursday afternoon after attending a district meeting of mayors at Athens, had championed opening of the liquor store to "boost city revenues at least $500,000 a year, to wipe out bootleggers and in the interests of temperance and sobriety."

City Conditions Scored.

"According to available statistics, Atlanta is the most lawless city in the United States, according to population," Judge Worrill asserted as he scored conditions from the bench.

"Now, on top of all your bandit gangs, your mayor and some of your councilmen propose to flaunt the law by opening a liquor store. They propose to violate the misdemeanor laws—and misdemeanors lead to felonies.

"Why, the very idea of a municipal liquor store—it is nothing more than open rebellion, it is an attempt to license crime. The courts will not stand for it, nor will the governor. If such a thing is attempted, he probably will declare martial law here, where there already are too many bandits and too much crime. The fact of the matter is, the situation in Atlanta is deplorable."

W. C. T. U. Deplores Move.

The mayor and members of council, who supported creation of the liquor store, were scored in resolutions of the fifth district W. C. T. U., meeting Thursday at the Capitol View Methodist church.

Following is the statement issued by officers:

We, the membership of the W. C. T. U. of the fifth district, representing more than 1,500 women of Atlanta, now in session at the Capitol View Methodist church, wish to go on record as deploring and condemning the attitude and effort of the mayor of Atlanta to plunge the citizens of Atlanta into the liquor business, thereby disregarding the law of our state. Also we deplore the fact that the mayor of Atlanta is now making effort to force an election upon the citizens of Atlanta, taking advantage of the people to carry his point. We wish to commend most heartily those 27 members of the city council who by their influence and vote rejected the plan of the mayor on Monday, December 3, and saved the city from shame and disgrace. And we urge the members of the city council to refuse and reject the plans of the mayor to force an election on this subject.

from Georgia slash pine and Georgia loblolly. The trees were converted at Savannah into a bleached sulphite wood pulp.

This pulp had a purity in cellulose hitherto believed impossible for southern forests. It was produced in the same experimental plant at Savannah in which Dr. Herty recently made newsprint from slash and other southern pine, in the face of the united opinion of the experts that it was impossible.

The great commercial lure of the Dixie trees comes from their fast growth. A good clothing crop of southern pines can be raised in 10 years—some experts say even less—while the northern trees take up to 50 years for a crop.

Mr. Garvan said that last year the United States imported 400,633 tons of this sort of wood pulp at a cost of about $19,000,000. Also that this dress goods pulp is selling now at $70 a ton.

He quoted Dr. Herty as estimating the cost per ton of similar pulp from the south at $35, exactly half.

Mr. Garvan said American cotton markets lost abroad may be replaced by using the same acres to raise slash pine for synthetic yarns and all the newer fabrics of chemistry.

MOTON RECONSIDERS RESIGNATION PLANS

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Dec. 6.—(AP)—The Alabama Journal stated today that Dr. R. R. Moton, negro educator and principal of Tuskegee Institute, will remain at his post instead of retiring as announced sometime ago.

Dr. Moton's resignation, which had been submitted on grounds of age and ill health was not accepted by the board of trustees of the institute, the Journal stated. The health of the elderly educator, who is 67 years of age, has improved recently, it was stated.

Mrs. Sullivan Gives Tea-Dance Introducing Miss Lamar Peschau

Mrs. William R. Sullivan entertained at a brilliant tea-dance Thursday at the Brookhaven Country Club, presenting to members of Atlanta society her lovely young debutante niece, Miss Lamar Peschau. Miss Peschau is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Peschau and is among the most popular members of the season's debutante coterie.

The receiving line formed in the lounge of the club to greet the guests and included Mrs. Sullivan, Miss Peschau, Mrs. J. B. Peschau, and Miss Louise de Rosset, of New York, the sister of the hostess. Forming a colorful background for the receiving party was a massing of tall palms and ferns, interspersed with graceful floor baskets filled with giant yellow and white chrysanthemums.

The color motif of yellow and white was repeated in the decorations of the ballroom of the club, where dancing was enjoyed. Palms and ferns banked the corners and window recesses, with floor standards of chrysanthemums placed at intervals. An oblong plateau of yellow and white chrysanthemums graced the center of the beautifully appointed tea table which was placed in the lounge. Punch was served from a similarly decorated table in a private dining room opening off the lounge. Tall yellow tapers burning in gold candlesticks further enhanced the beauty of the tables.

Mrs. Sullivan received her guests wearing a handsome gown of black crepe worn with a cocktail jacket of black sequins. Her flowers were a cluster of orchids. The debutante honor guest was a charming figure wearing a robe de style of royal blue taffeta, and carrying a muff fashioned entirely of pale pink orchids. The exquisite pearl necklace worn by Miss Peschau formerly belonged to her great-grandmother.

Mrs. Peschau chose for the occasion a tunic gown of black crepe and lace fashioned with a train. Miss de Rosset wore shimmering black satin cut on modish lines.

Mrs. Sullivan was assisted in entertaining her guests by Mesdames Steven Willis Harris, Burr Brewer, of Portland, Maine; J. D. Sullivan, of New York city; Robert Crumley, John Glenn, John Duncan and A. B. Grant.

The guests included 500 members of the debutante group and the younger married contingent.

Things That Make Women More Beautiful

(Posed by Kitty Carlisle.)

A Lip Stick That Is the Last Word in Naturalness

By MIGNON.

There are not many women who do not have lipstick trouble. Finding the exact shade of color that will harmonize with your complexion and your hair, and that will not fight with the chemicals in your system and change color soon after it is applied, is really a trick that few women have conquered.

I have found one that suits me, and for some reason or other I don't seem to be able to find any fault with it. When I pulled the top of the smart container—dull silver with a tiny old band around it—I exclaimed, "Oh, what a horrible shade!" It looked like a pale pumpkin that hadn't had enough sun. Curiosity always conquers women, so I tried it. Hardly had it touched the skin when it seemed to fall into step with the general color scheme and produce exactly what I'd been looking for. Perhaps it is only for a fair skin that requires a rouge with a bit of yellow in it. I can't say as to that, but for a fair skin that can't stand too violent a lipstick this is certainly the answer to a heartfelt wish. It comes in different shades, of course.

It's a new stick, made by an old firm that is a fine and reliable one. It is not too oily, but of what I'd call the perfect consistency. It might not be bright enough to suit you at night under electric lights, but if you are the conservative type that isn't trying to deliver shock to the populace, but are only trying to look as natural and as pretty as possible with the least theatrical effect, this is your lipstick.

There is another stick that I mentioned before that holds its creamy substance better than almost any I know. It, too, comes from a very reliable house, and one stick that I have used intermittently for six months is still as creamy and yet firm and easy to use as it was the day I got it.

I don't like lipsticks that dry out in a week. I got one of those in New York from one of the very smartest cosmetic houses and it is now as dry as pumice stone (only not so rough). So far as I am concerned it is a total loss. It won't go on smoothly, of course, because it is not creamy enough to draw your line—and smooth. Never again, said I, after it disappointed me. Neither of these sticks I mention today will do that, so take your choice. Choose according to the shade needed.

COUNTERFEIT CHARGE DENIED BY 'HI-JACKER'

Charged with attempting to pass counterfeit money in the form of a $1 bill raised to $5, Hugh L. Downs Jr., 28, of 193 Twelfth street, self-styled liquor hijacker, pleaded not guilty before United States Commissioner E. S. Griffith Wednesday. He was bound over to the grand jury under a $15,000 bond for "his own protection," after he had testified that his reason for resisting arrest was fear of underworld figures seeking to kill him. He claimed to have mistaken the secret service man for a gangster gunman.

Downs admitted giving the cashier of the Paramount theater, Mrs. Willie Belle Rowe, who identified him, a $5 note, but claimed ignorance of its counterfeit nature. He admitted that his racket was taking liquor away from bootleggers and selling it.

'BRING-A-TOY' MATINEE PLANNED DECEMBER 15

Saturday, December 15, has been selected by the Salvation Army, the Better Films Committee and the woman's division of the Chamber of Commerce for their annual bring-a-toy matinee, which this year is to be held at the Capitol theater.

All three organizations have joined hands to secure a large quantity of old toys, which will be repaired and repainted in the Salvation Army toy shop and then distributed to the needy children of Atlanta at Christmas.

At the Capitol toy matinee there will be a special program of short subjects including cartoons and admission at the door will be one or more used or new toys. Old Santa Claus will act as doorman on that occasion to receive the toys.

Atlanta parents can co-operate in this drive by bringing the attention of their children to their special matinee and also assisting in finding old toys about the house, that no doubt will make some boy or girl happy at Christmas time.

DEAN DE OVIES TALKS ON BAZARRE SELLING

Members of the Atlanta Advertising Club present at its weekly luncheon Thursday at Rich's tea room, were fortunate in hearing Dean Raimundo de Ovies, of St. Philip procathedral, in a most interesting address on the subject of "The Bazarre."

Dean de Ovies compared advertising in England during his boyhood, with the modern methods of today. "The bazarre in England was composed of small shops, where nobody had anything, but everybody had something to sell," he said.

Dean de Ovies pointed out that although this method of selling has changed, advertising is still done along the same line, except on a much larger scale. "The creation of desire by the technique in display of merchandise was important in the bazarre, and the same is true in business today," he said.

In the absence of Oscar Strauss Jr. the meeting was presided over by Bob Martin, advertising director of the George Muse Clothing Company.

Friendly Counsel

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

Dear Miss Chatfield:

We grew up in the home with a mother who is sweet and gentle and easily imposed upon. Our father has never worked but he has always taken charge of the home and of us just as though he were our main support. My brothers and I are getting sick and tired of his ways. He talks to mother as if she were his cook and tells her what she can and cannot spend. Of course it is mother's fault that he does this way. But she loves him and wants us to respect him so she pretends that he is all right. My brothers and I are planning to tell him that either he has got to be pleasant or we go out. We don't need him and he can't get along without us. What about it?

EXASPERATED.

Answer:

Fine. He needs a big shock to bring him to his senses. If there is anything more contemptible than a man who sponges on his children and bullies his wife it is hard to find. It will be impossible to put him to work but it may be possible to scare him into being agreeable with the people who support him. There is no greater coward than the bully. He will run at the first hint of danger and you can't see him for the dust.

Your mother will constitute the biggest problem. She will be pained at the procedure and will do all in her power to restore the old order—not that she enjoys it but that she believes it the best way to keep the peace. Furthermore, the habit of subservience is upon her and she won't know how to adapt herself to independence of the foot that has been on her neck these many years. However, those of you who work and earn and live in the home you support are entitled to a pleasant home life and you have what it takes to get it. More power to you!

Dear Miss Chatfield:

I am fairly popular with the boys except at dances. I never have a rush and I want to know what I can do to make the boys dance with me. Please make some suggestions. I know a lot of girls who would like to know what to do to improve their dancing technique.

LILLY.

Answer:

First of all you must have personal daintiness. It is the prime requirement. Soap and water in liberal quantities are the best guarantees of sweet smelling daintiness than which nothing is more alluring. The costly perfume is not half so sweet.

Second, acquire facility in following the man's lead and bodily grace, too, both of which can be acquired by patience and thoughtful attention to defects.

Third, show a smiling countenance that is at once inviting and ingratiating.

Fourth, cultivate a relaxed mind and body. Tension is never attractive. If you are afraid of failure you have set the stage for it. It will make you self-conscious and forbidding.

Fifth, when you are dancing with one boy don't cut your eyes at some other. The partner understands that you are dissatisfied with him and the would be partner recognizes that you are begging him with your eyes. Don't beg.

Sixth, employ all your wiles to make the dance a pleasant interlude for your partner. Light chatter, including subtle compliments on his skill, implied approval of his method, and gay response to his suggestions are all pleasing to the partner.

Seventh, if you get stuck, go for a walk, get a drink of water, but don't let anybody see that you are stuck. Nothing kills a girl's chances for popularity on the dance floor so summarily as the whisper that one is likely to get stuck with her.

Try these experiments and if you still find yourself a wallflower then you had better take your recreation in some other way.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Dear Miss Chatfield:

My husband's mother is sick and will likely be an invalid when she is over the present attack. He wants me to close our home and go to live with his mother and I want to move her into our home, which is more modern and more convenient in every way. My work would be increased ten-fold if I agreed to his plan. Am I unreasonable.

E. K. B.

Answer:

Your husband is the unreasonable one. He should be thankful that you are willing to take on the care of his invalid mother without making a point of where or how it shall be done. If he won't be sensible about the matter just stand your ground, let him fret it out. A man has little conception of the work his wife has to do in running a home, and little conception of the importance to her of modern household conveniences. The home he was reared in was quite good enough for his mother and for him and so he argues that it is good enough for his wife.

DAILY SHORT STORY

BLIND FAITH

Clara Determined to Have New Linoleum, and Got It, at the Price of Gordon's Peace of Mind.

By RANDLYN CAYLOR.

Gordon dug a spoon spitefully into his grapefruit. His eyes flashed.

"Is the grapefruit bad, dear?" asked his young wife.

"No, but your suggestion is, darling." The corners of Gordon's mouth sank. "You might as well stop harping on 'a new linoleum for the kitchen,' Clara, 'cause we're not getting it."

Clara's cheeks flushed a little. She reached for the coffee pot resting on the warming plate and poured her husband a cup of coffee. Her hand shook slightly; she bit her lip as though she were trying to decide between two thoughts.

"This old, er, thing is so worn," she ventured finally, avoiding Gordon's eyes. "I'm ashamed of it."

"Huh!" Gordon grunted, "that's it!" He pushed aside his breakfast.

"We've figured out our budget."

"Look," Gordon pointed out with a spoon, "look at here. You'd better scrap that keepin'-up-with-the-Joneses idea. It's stale. We've figured out our budget for the next three months, and we'll manage accordingly."

Clara swallowed. Gordon sighed.

"Course," he softened, "if we knew what was ahead I'd say all right. But we don't."

"What if everybody thought as you do?" Clara flared up. It shocked Gordon a trifle, although he absorbed it. "We'd be everlastingly saving, scraping, putting money into the bank and never using any of it. I don't see why we should stint ourselves so."

Gordon pressed his lips together and bounced up. Clara flinched. He walked around to her.

"Listen, darling," he put his arms around her. His tone was soft and oily. "I'm only thinking of you—of us. If we take it with our chin up now we'll be in a choice position to head off the Joneses later on. That's the way to look at it."

He kissed his wife perfunctorily and was off. If he had lingered a moment more a tear would have collided with his nose.

On the train Gordon met Bill Gaines. Bill and Gordon had much in common. They were businessmen, and the first command in their decalogue was "Let's see the figures."

"It amazes me," began Gordon when the two had settled down to their seat in the smoker, "the short-range view women take of the financial situation."

"You're telling me," Bill paused in the act of lighting a left-over pipeful. "My wife has 'em all skinned with that Alice in Wonderland attitude." He chuckled.

"If I'd let my wife go," Gordon complained, "she'd use our savings on unnecessary house furnishings. For the last week she's been ragging me for a new linoleum. All that's the matter with the old one is a few worn patterns."

"Don't let her start that stuff," Bill pulled a newspaper out of his pocket. "If you do there'll be no end to it. When you get the linoleum that will show up the curtains; when you get the curtains they'll show up the shades, and so on and so forth. Heh! heh! They think they're slick."

"What makes women like that, anyway?" Gordon pried.

"Blind faith, m'boy," Bill glanced over the top of his newspaper. "Blind faith. All wives think friend hubby's income is a bottomless well. If they had to go out and work for their money—well," he dismissed, "that's women for you."

Gordon had had a hard day at the office. He was ravenous, too, for he'd worked two hours overtime. Because he'd put the usual amount in the bank last week (a good bank, of course) no loose change was available for supper money. So Gordon skipped it, and now, on coming home, he was ready for anything.

However, the apartment was dark, locked. Gordon called for his wife. No answer.

As he rushed from room to room, frantically searching for the body or a note, he began to see why Clara hadn't phoned that she wouldn't be home. The breakfast dishes were in the nook, untouched. The house wasn't swept. The mending basket was full of socks, holes still gaping in toe and heel.

A dreaded thought worked into Gordon's mind, as his sturdy frame sagged into a chair. She had left him—driven away because he had valued his cautious savings more than her happiness. She wouldn't come back—

Suddenly the door clicked. Clara rushed in—into Gordon's arms.

"I'm sorry, dear," she smiled. "I just couldn't get in touch with you."

"Why not?"

Clara tried to remove her coat. "Wait until I get dinner started," she evaded.

Gordon's appetite had vanished. "Tell me what's hapuened," he insisted.

"Well," Clara said slowly, "I did want that linoleum awfully. So—I—I—"

". . . bought one!"

"Not yet," Clara corrected. "But I will. I got a job doing housework this morning. I wanted to get home early so's not to let you know. . . . Please don't be angry," she coddled him. "It'll only be for a couple of weeks—"

"Never mind," Gordon waved; "put your hat back on. We're going out to dinner."

"But, Gordon. We can't—the budget. I—why, what's got into you?"

"Well, you see, it's this way," explained Gordon. "Before you returned I vowed to myself I'd get you anything your heart desired, if you'd just come back. Right now I know you'd appreciate a treat to dinner. And to whet your appetite, here's my O. K. for a new linoleum rug. Here's another O. K. for the curtains and shades and here's one for your bli—, ah, personal spunk."

Tomorrow: "Sylvan Tryst," by Elsie KatterJohn, is a heart-rending story of the providential advent of a young man into the life of a mother whose son has just died.

Pioneer Georgian Feted on Birthday.

T. J. Clower, a beloved Georgia pioneer, was honor guest at a dinner party given on Tuesday evening by his daughter, Mrs. M. D. Summersgill, at her home, 932 Confederate avenue. She was reared in this county, where she has many relatives and friends who will be interested in the announcement of her marriage. Her mother was formerly Miss Mattie Belle Lord, of Wrightsville, the daughter of Mrs. E. L. Lord, of Tennille, and the late Mr. Lord. Her father's parents were the late Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Brady.

The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. S. D. Bennett, of Porterdale, and the late Mr. Bennett. He is formerly from Columbus but for the past year has made his home in Tennille, where he is an employe of the Washington Manufacturing Company. The couple will reside in Tennille.

Dixie Coaches Will Discuss All Phases of Game Today

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 6.—(AP)—With discussion scheduled on every phase of the game, football coaches of the Southeastern conference and the southern division of American Coaches' Association will open a two-day meeting in Knoxville tomorrow.

Although new rules adopted last year are to be taken up in the discussions, there is not likely to be any major change adopted, Paul B. Parker, University of Tennessee line coach and member of the association committee, said tonight.

"The changes most certainly will be discussed," Parker said. "I have heard very few complaints during the present season among the coaches. There might be a few minor revisions, however."

H. J. Stegeman, director of athletics at the University of Georgia, will lead the discussion and speak on "Proposed Rule Canges."

Ten addresses are scheduled for the banquet tomorrow night. Those to speak are:

"Officiating," Everett Strupper, Southeastern conference official.

"Kicking Game," Daniel McGugin, Vanderbilt.

"Scouting," Harold Drew, University of Alabama.

"Proposed Rule Changes," H. J. Stegeman, University of Georgia.

"Running Attack," Harry Mehre, University of Georgia.

"Coaching Ethics," W. A. Alexander, Georgia Tech.

"Forward Pass," Jack Meagher, Auburn.

"Lateral Pass," Ted Cox, Tulane.

"Pass Defense," Chet Wynne, Kentucky.

"Deception in Offense," Scrappy Moore, University of Chattanooga.

The coaches will witness the Tennessee-Louisiana State University football game here Saturday.

Tide's Line 'Best' Ever---Donahue

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Dec. 6.—(AP) Alabama "from end to end" has the "best" line that Mike Donahue ever saw, the veteran coach who produced Auburn's wonder teams of yesteryear told newspapermen here today in predicting the Crimson Tide would "take" Stanford in the Rose Bowl classic.

"The university has had as good backfield material, but never a line that would match this year's," said Donahue, here for a Dixie conference meeting and representing Spring Hill College, of Mobile, where he now is coach.

"Stanford may score by a pass or some kind of break, but I think Alabama will take 'em," said Donahue, who coached at Auburn when Alabama was the most bitter enemy. They haven't played since 1907.

"I understand I saw Frank Thomas' team in its worst game—against Tennessee—but that line is the best from end to end that I ever saw—and I've seen plenty," commented the grizzled Mike.

SPIRITED BIDS FOR A. A. U. MEETS SEEN AT MIAMI

Election of Successor to Brundage Is First Important Business.

By J. S. Bealle.

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 7.—(UP)—Spirited bidding for national championships was forecast tonight as the first 300 delegates arrived for the annual Amateur Athletic Union convention, which starts tomorrow.

Los Angeles delegates will vigorously bid for three of the most cherished assignments—the men's national outdoor track and field championships, and the men's and women's outdoor swim title events. Denver also seeks the track and field meeting.

New York, Detroit, Indianapolis and Miami also are seeking the aquatic events. As to where the A. A. U. chieftains will assign most of the various events, one man's guess is as good as another's, but it is generally agreed that New York as usual, will get the indoor track and field feature. It also is expected that the national bobsleigh event will be assigned to Lake Placid, N. Y.

The election of a successor to Avery Brundage, of Chicago, as president, will be the first important business. Brundage "served long enough. I've been in there six years and it's time someone else took up the job," he said.

Tigers 'Framed'

Opponents' Pictures Hang on Lockers at Tennessee

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 6.—(AP) The Louisiana State University Tigers will not be "strangers" to the Tennessee Vols when they clash here Saturday.

Large protographs of each individual on the L. S. U. roster have been placed on the walls at the Tennessee training quarters. Over each Vol's locker hangs a picture of the Tiger he will oppose.

After the "introduction" Major Bob Neyland sent his orange-clad squad through an overtime drill. Again, as has been the daily routine for the last four days, Neyland spent the greater part of the time strengthening his offense.

Neyland has indicated he was planning for a great offensive battle as L. S. U. has "six of the best backs in Dixie."

Over 20,000 fans are expected to witness the game which will be Neyland's last gesture at Tennessee. He leaves next week for Panama where he assumes new army duties.

The alumni have designated Saturday as Neyland Day and nearly all the Tennessee grid heroes of the past nine years will attend the game.

CADETS CLOSE LONG SEASON THIS AFTERNOON

Greenville High Faces G. M. A. Eleven at Ponce de Leon.

By Roy White.

Atlanta's prep football season, the longest in the United States, will end at 2 o'clock this afternoon at Ponce de Leon Park when Georgia Military Academy plays Greenville High, of Greenville, Miss. It will be the forty-fourth prep game in 12 weeks of the season which opened September 12.

Today's game should be well worth the while, as G. M. A. is one of the most improved teams in the state. The Cadets started slow but have picked up momentum all along the route and now rank with the best.

The latest achievement of the Cadets was a 13-to-12 victory over Lanier High, in Macon, Thanksgiving Day. And the Poets gave Tech High its first licking and were the first to cross the Smithie goal this season.

DEVELOPMENT.

Bud Harris, former Bowdon College coach, has done a fine job at G. M. A. this year. He started with only a few veterans and practically no reserves from last year and slowly but surely he has developed a strong team.

The Cadets are using an entirely new system, which Harris taught at Bowdon and it is producing results. Harris gave the youngsters only a few plays at the time and nothing new was attempted until the old plays were thoroughly mastered. And this afternoon, with the final game on the slate, the Cadets will "shoot the works," with every play they have learned this season.

G. M. A. will line up with Singleton and Schofield, ends; Brogdon and Jung, tackles; Argudine and Swift, guards; Cohen, center, and Moseley, Thompson, Palmer and Manning in the backfield.

SEASON RECORD.

The Cadets have won five, lost four and tied one game this season. And in the last four games, G. M. A. has won three and tied one.

Greenville is bringing one of its best teams to Atlanta. The Mississippi eleven has lost only three games and those were to outstanding teams in Tennessee and Mississippi, and by close scores.

Tom Payne, a brother of Francis Payne, former star end at Tulane, and Morgan Hall, are the leading lights for Greenville. They are both seniors and play in the backfield.

Greenville's lineup will consist of Wilkerson and Pruitt, ends; Henderson and Sherman, tackles; Rogers and Stull, guards; Lane, center, and Payne, Hall, Dennis and Stewart in the backfield.

PURPLES REJECT BIDS FOR GAME

Boys' High football team, since winning the city championship and being undefeated, has been much in demand for post-season games, it was learned Thursday. The Purples have played Houston (Texas) All-Stars several times in charity games.

The Purples were sought by the Tallahassee (Fla.) Junior Chamber of Commerce for a southeastern championship game with Andrew Jackson High, of Jacksonville, on December 25. The Jacksonville eleven is undefeated also.

Tampa, Fla., through the Tampa Kiwanis Club, also sought the Purples for a New Year's game with the Tampa High All-Stars.

Numerous other post-season offers have been received at Boys' High, but they all have been turned down.

Coach Shorty Doyal has polled the entire football squad and the vote was decidedly in favor of abandoning the season after the state championship game with Savannah on December 15, at Savannah.

Since the North Georgia Interscholastic conference has decided to cancel all plans for determining their championship, which is tied between Decatur, Marist and Commercial, it is likely that Commercial will accept a post-season game.

The Typists, along with several others, have been tentatively sought for a Florida game during the holiday season.

1935 Schedule Tentatively Set.

Boys' High has tentatively arranged 10 games for the 1935 football season, with the exact dates to be fixed later.

The Purples will open on September 12 with Commercial High and will follow with Decatur, Ensley High, of Birmingham; Monroe Aggies, Gordon Institute, Savannah, G. M. A., Sidney Lanier, of Montgomery; Tech High, and Miami High.

Down the Alleys

The First National bank league, of eight teams of men and four of ladies, will swing into play at 7:45 o'clock this evening after a week's absence. Fast and peppy competition prevails in this group each week.

A beautiful trophy will be awarded for the high score in the men's duckpin sweepstakes Saturday. Three games will be bowled, no entry fee being charged other than the cost of games; handicaps will be computed from the scratch mark of 115.

For the ladies, handicaps will be computed from the scratch mark of 100. An order for a $5 permanent wave will be given the winner of the ladies meet.

The Commercial Duckpin league is scheduled to hold a short meeting at 7 o'clock, prior to the league games at 7:45 o'clock this evening.

The schedule for tonight is Aristocrat Ice Cream vs. Fulton County Teachers; National Oil Company vs. John H. Harland Company; J. M. Harrison Company vs. Cudahy Packing Company; Southern Dairies vs. Downtown Chevrolet.

Lamar-Rankin Drugs vs. $1,000 Guaranteed Products; A. & P. Tea Company vs. Pioneer Press; Independents vs. Ponce de Leon Laundry; De Foor & Austin vs. Insurance is the lineup for this evening in the Merchants' league.

The Coca-Cola Club Duckpin league will have all eight teams matched in close competition this evening. Games begin at 7:30 o'clock.

THE SPORTLIGHT

By Grantland Rice

(Copyright, 1934, for The Constitution and North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

Dressing Room Hockey.

Tens of millions of Americans, many of them first division sport fans, never have seen a professional hockey game in the flesh. So far as that goes, millions never have eyewitnessed major league baseball or big time football either. And of the millions who have seen the big shots of the diamond, the gridiron and the ice, very few have been inside the players' dressing rooms beneath the stands.

So, as the barkers in movie travelogues say, let us take a little journey into the catacombs of Madison Square Garden.

A hockey club's dressing room is about the size of a one-car garage, somewhat smaller than football dressing rooms or the imperial palaces under Yankee stadium, at the Polo Grounds and Sportsman's park. There is plenty of room, of course, as most his hockey clubs carry only one goalie and 12 to 14 other men—wings, defense and centers. Baseball, you will remember if you try hard, has a tendency toward 23-player squads and half a dozen rubbers and managers of this and that. There are always some front-office boys hanging around, and newspaper men four deep in front of every star player.

Not so in hockey. It takes a note from heaven to get you into the New York Americans' dressing room. You are warned not to worry the tired icers and to get it over as soon as possible. As for interviews, the boys are affable enough until Joe Simpson comes over and the interview is quits. Joe believes in seeing that his boys are taken care of first; and in hockey there is scarcely a player who does not need some sort of attention on the rubbing table or under a bake lamp. Joe has the humane sense, if not a specific nose for news.

The Dark Stuff.

"That was a nice one to win, boys," Joe said the other night as his victorious crew wobbled in with the queer hard sound skates make on wood or concrete. "Very nice, indeed."

"Come here, somebody, with that dark stuff," said Worters, the eagle-eyed little goalie. "I'm dying."

A boy came running in with a tray of Canadian ale in water pitchers. It disappeared immediately.

"Where's that guy with the dark stuff?" said Red Dutton, who had stopped outside to say hello to some folks from Calgary.

"Very nice to beat the Black Hawks," Simpson said to nobody in particular. "Toronto's the only other team that's done it before. Now in the second period, Red . . ."

"Joe, have you got some refreshments coming?"

"It's come and gone," Worters said, producing a paper cup thick with foam. "I'll give you what's left in mine."

"Red, you should have passed to Klein on that play when you came all the way down in the second period," Simpson began again.

"Pass to who?"

"Klein, he was right behind you."

"I never see him. I just let her have it into the net."

"You should have passed to Klein."

"Where is that guy with the beer?" said Dutton, pulling off his dripping spangled shirt. "Say, did you see what Schriner did? Told you so."

"That was smart poke-checking Coulter and Burke away from the net and pulling Chabot out." Worters said after a struggle with the apparatus a national league goal keeper has to wear. "That was a nice poke, kid."

"Thanks," said Schriner, who is new but oh, so foxy on the ice.

"Where's the ale? You know, a dark foamy liquid. The Canadians drink it," said Dutton, stripping off his rubber pad, which has been necessary since he fractured four ribs some while back. "I think I would like something to cool my throat, Mr. Simpson."

But the Americans' manager was over with Brydge, whose knees and legs were the color of patriotic iris in early May. Dutton drank off Worters' cupful while the little goalie worked over his heavy lower padding, and went into the shower.

Hockey Equipment.

We found out what a hockey player wears underneath all those pretty colors, while the boys were in under the water. Hockey players, by the way, are pretty small and not particularly muscular. They don't bruise easily. They are trained, as wrestlers are trained, in how to dish it out and how to take it. They weigh, on the average, about 165 pounds, and are from 5 feet 1 inch to 6 feet tall. Not many are 6-footers. The average is 5 feet 9.

Heavy woolen underwear is put on first by most pro hockey players, sometimes with two pairs of tights at a time. Then there are guards and braces and protectors where a man is likely to be bumped or struck with a hockey stick; a pair of suspenders with garters attached (the suspenders are for the short hockey trousers—don't ask so many silly questions); special hip pads and kidney pads and rib pads and then the hockey stockings, extra pairs of sox, the heavy snub-nosed hockey shoe skates, and the star-spangled sweaters over shoulder pads, and a hockey player is all dressed except for his hot, heavy-fingered gauntlets and a cap, if he wears one.

We sat drinking Canadian ale, which had just come in in more pitchers, wondering how it would feel to wear all that stuff in a close, perspiring game, when Joe Simpson came over, shaking his head.

"The boys are too serious about this," he said, taking a paper cup. "They need recreation."

"Well, they aren't exactly cramped in New York."

"Yeh, but they have got to stay in training. We don't kid, you know. It isn't like baseball or even pro football, where you can smoke and drink hard liquor and stay out late. Did you ever try just standing up on ice skates for a whole hour?"

"Well, I've tried standing up on ice skates."

"It's never anything but go, go, go in pro hockey. The fans like the fast, rough stuff. They pay for it. We have to give it to them."

"That wasn't hard to take tonight."

"No, but we leave for Montreal right away. Then we go to St. Louis, where they are itching for a victory, and to Chicago, where they will be laying for any old American after tonight."

ROSS AND MILES BATTLE TONIGHT

Jack Ross, the tough egg from Chicago, will have his hands full tonight when he goes up against Ted Miles, the New Orleans light-heavyweight fighter, in a mixed bout, the main attraction of Matchmaker Jason Thompson's weekly show at the city auditorium.

Ross is a wrestler by trade but in recent matches here he has displayed a liking for using his fists on his foes and tonight he will get plenty of his own medicine from Miles. Ross must stick strictly to wrestling, but Miles, one of the leading fighters in the south, can either box or wrestle. Miles is fast and clever and is expected to give the rough Ross a real battle.

SAYS HE'LL WIN.

Miles has watched Ross in action a couple of times and says Ross will be an easy mark for his rights and lefts. Miles knows he is meeting one of the toughest men in the light-heavyweight mat game but figures he will be able to stop him. He will really have to do some fancy punching because Ross' chin has been taking it for a long time.

They are slated for a match of 15 three-minute rounds.

Ed Wayland, former Tennessee football player and a favorite here, will meet Stanley West, Tucson tussler, in the one-hour semi-windup match. This is West's first appearance here, while Wayland has wrestled here several times and has many friends among the mat patrons. West is highly regarded by his fellow wrestlers and is expected to give the former Tennesseean a tough evening.

WELL LIKED.

Sammy Miller and Glenn Cowan will tangle in the 30-minute opening match. Miller and Cowan are both very popular and will share the fans' interest tonight. Miller is the Assyrian champion. Cowan is a popular member of the Atlanta police force. The match starts at 8:15 o'clock.

Tickets are on sale at the Five Points Soda Company and at Dearborn 3932.

McManus Released At Own Request

BOSTON, Dec. 6.—(AP)—The unconditional release of Marty McManus, Boston Braves infielder who formerly managed the Boston Red Sox, was announced today by President Emil Fuchs.

Fuchs explained that Marty, one of the most popular players a Boston club has had in many years, requested his release to take advantage of an offer to manage the St. Paul club of the American associataion.

McManus started his major league career with the St. Louis Browns back in 1920.

Bobby Dodd Says Vol Reports Wrong

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 6.—(AP) Contrary to rumors that have persisted since Major Bob Neyland announced he would not return as University of Tennessee coach next season, Bobby Dodd, former Tennessee All-American and now assistant coach at Georgia Tech, said here today he had not been offered a contract by Tennessee authorities.

Dodd is in Knoxville to attend the annual meeting of southern football coaches.

"As far as I know I will return to Georgia Tech next season," Dodd said.

University authorities still had "no comment to make."

ROWE SECOND, HARDER THIRD; AVERAGES OFF

Last Summer's Performances Fail To Come Up to Those of 1933.

CHICAGO, Dec. 6.—(AP)—He couldn't pitch the New York Yankees to the American league championship all alone, but Vernon Gomez, Manager Joe McCarthy's prize southpaw, accumulated a large share of the hurling honors.

Gomez led the league in victories, 26 against 5 defeats, and had the best earned run average, 2.33. In addition, although far from being the huskiest moundsman in the circuit, he pitched the most innings, 282, led in complete games with 25, and on nine occasions held his opposition to five hits or less. He also struck out 158 batsmen, for the leadership in that department, and did not hit a man.

Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe, ace of the champion Detroit Tiger corps, was runner-up to Gomez in the percentage column with 24 victories and 8 defeats, while Mel Harder, Cleveland's young curve ball artist, had the second best earned run mark, 2.61. Johnny Allen, of the Yankees, turned in an earned run average of 2.88, but worked in only 13 games.

Rowe cut in for a slice of the glory by winning 16 consecutive victories to equal the league record set in 1912 by Walter Johnson, equaled by Joe Wood, of Boston, the same season, and again by Bob Grove, of the Athletics, in 1931. His earned run average was 3.45. Other regulars, ranked on a won-and-lost basis, were Eldon Auker, Detroit, 15-7; Wes Ferrell, Boston, 14-5; Tommy Bridges, Detroit, 22-11; Fred Marberry, Detroit, 15-5; Jack Knott, St. Louis, 10-3.

In general, last season's official records were not as good as those of 1933. The 1934 earned run average was 4.50 against a general mark of 4.28 a year ago. The Yankee hurlers led with a collective earned run average of 3.75, to 4.06 for the Tiger pitchers. Detroit sharpshooters gave the fewest walks, while the Yank staff permitted fewest hits and runs along with leading in strikeouts.

Herb Pennock, veteran Red Sox relief hurler, set a league record by failing to get an assist in 30 games. Johnny Broaca, young Yankee pitcher, equaled a mark by striking out five times in as many times at bat in a nine-inning game.

Jack Russell, of Washington, working largely in relief roles, participated in 54 games to qualify as the hardest-working pitcher. Buck Newsom, of St. Louis, ranked second with 47 games. Newsom also gave the top number of walks, 149, and a teammate, George Blaeholder, gave the most hits, 276. Bridges started the most games, 35, and Milt Gaston, of Chicago, allowed 146 runs.

UNIFORM RULE SOUGHT IN A. A. U.

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 6.—(AP)—The proposal for a universal and uniform amateur rule in sports, launched after the last Olympics by Avery Brundage, of Chicago, president of the American Olympic Association and the Amateur Athletic Union, likely will take definite form within a few weeks, Brundage disclosed today on his arrival to attend the annual convention of the A. A. U.

"The results of a national survey of amateur regulations, together with the replies to a questionnaire sent to all leading amateur sports-governing organizations, will be studied by a committee of eight leaders representing the Olympic association," said Brundage. "This committee will meet in New York soon after Christmas and take the initiative in seeking to reconcile differences or remove inconsistencies for the amateur code.

"It is time for an earnest effort to bring about uniformity and eliminate a situation whereby vastly different rules govern amateurism in the various sports.

Amateurs now may take cash prizes in one sport, such as trapshooting, or collect excessive expense money in another. Player-writing among amateurs is permitted in some sports, tabooed in others. Some inconsistencies will be difficult to adjust. We hope to arrive at the best general rule, by means of discussion and sectional meetings. If we can apply a new and generally accepted code to the United States, it is our hope that the international Olympic committee will co-operate in making it universal. I have already been promised the co-operation of Count Baillet Latour, of Belgium, the head of the I. O. C."

The committee appointed by Brundage to develop the idea nationally consists of Gustavus T. Kirby and John T. McGovern, of New York; Dr. Joseph Raycroft, of Princeton; Daniel J. Ferris, of New York, secretary-treasurer of the A. A. U.; Dr. G. Randolph Manning, honorary president of the U. S. Football Association; Dr. John Brown, of the international Y. M. C. A.; Brigadier General M. A. Reckford, and Romeyn Berry, graduate manager of athletics of Cornell University.

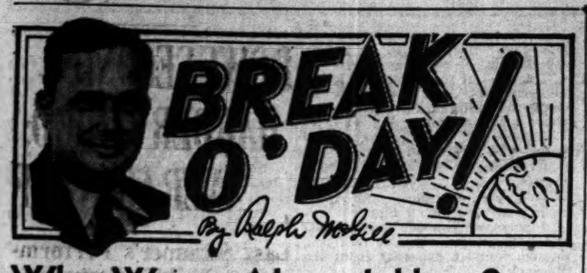
Thomas Faces Problem Keeping Crimson Tide 'On Edge'



Why Worry About Likker Stores When You Have Train Schedules?

There is quite a yearning under the hide of me to get up to Knoxville, Tenn-O-See, to see the Tennessees play the Huey Long-cursed Tigers from the Bayou country.

But getting to Knoxville is something else. And getting out of Knoxville is indeed something else. Going to Knoxville one can do well enough. That is if one happens to be a strong-souled character and doesn't mind getting a train about the time that huzzy, the Rosy-Fingered Dawn, begins to get up on tip-toe and peep over the horizon.

But getting out of Knoxville after the game involves an experience which is as shudderingly horrible as possible to imagine outside a crime magazine.

The first train out is at 3:49 in the afternoon and that is too early. The game won't be done with. And the next train out of Knoxville to Atlanta is at 3:30 in the morning. The next one pulls out at 6:10 a. m. Which would involve getting up about 5 o'clock in the yawning period.

Knoxville is the worst city in the world from which to depart by train. I am very much afraid that yearning under the hide of me must go right on yearning. One gets train weary by the time this football season has taken its quota of one-night sleeper jumps.

There should be a national law forbidding any train to depart earlier than 8 o'clock in the morning. And no train should arrive earlier than 9 o'clock in the morning.

But that town of Knoxville—trains out at 3:30 a. m. and 6:10 a. m. That's downright brutality and a part of man's inhumanity to man.

The sentiment seems to be with the Tennessee people and I imagine they will take the L. S. U. outfit. They will be playing their last game for Major Bob Neyland, will the Vols, and they should do a very fine job of dying for old Massa Bob.

The Tennessees happen to be one of the better teams in the conference. Only Alabama in the south was able to take them over the jumps.

It should be one of the magnificent games of the year. But that train schedule from Knoxville. Why do our people worry over a trivial thing such as a liquor store when there are schedules like that?

THE GUY IN THE STREET.

The guy in the street in our town has adopted this Alabama football team as his'n. A week more and he will be ready to put up his fists and fight for Alabama.

The synthetic alumni are falling right in. Already taxi drivers, street car men, bankers and others in various trades have spoken right up in a most enthusiastic manner about Frank Thomas and his Alabama team's accomplishments.

They are beginning to ask questions about this Stanford team which the Crimson Tide will meet in the Rose Bowl on January 1, 1935.

There isn't much to be said. Because there isn't any real basis for comparison. The coast newspaper writers, who are prone to put on the lather very thickly about their own teams, say this Stanford team has the greatest line the coast has ever seen.

I do not believe this, having peered at the line which Southern California had in 1931. And also at the one which was at Southern Cal in 1933. And one at Berkley, Cal., where the California Bears reside. But if this Stanford line is greater than the Southern Cal line of 1931 then Alabama may get defeated in the Rose Bowl.

They are saying that Bob Grayson, the All-American triple-threat back, is a greater back than any the coast has had in a decade. And he may be. There is no telling. But the happy custom of the coast boys in putting considerable optimism in their reports mitigates against any real judgment on the matter.

It is quite possible we have underrated Stanford in this section. But I still cling to the old-fashioned idea that Alabama will out-speed them, out-think them and out-pass them.

A CLOSE-UP OF THE TIDE.

Alabama's football team is a clean-cut lot of boys when out in their Sunday suits. They fade right into the under-graduate student body. Not one bulges forth with that athletic appearance.

I had come to regard Bill Lee and Don Hutson as fire-breathing, brimstone boys. In three games before my very eyes they had handily annihilated Vanderbilt, Georgia Tech and Georgia.

At Birmingham Wednesday night I met them close up,

ALABAMA BOYS IN BRISK DRILL AFTER LAY-OFF

Crimson Coach Plans Fast Trip West and All Work on Coast.

By Ralph McGill.

Frank Thomas' greatest problem at Alabama will be the job of keeping his undefeated and untied squad mentally and physically on edge during the long wait before January 1, 1935, when his team meets Stanford in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena.

It is an involved task. Just at present the team is in the midst of a let-down after storming through its entire schedule with only one game in which the team had to extend itself. This was the Tennessee test.

"We are all worried about just what to do," said Frank Thomas. "The boys are naturally let down after the season. They are excited about going to California but they haven't done any work.

NO LENGTHY STOP.

"We decided against any lengthy stop en route. Columbia stopped at Tuscon, Arizona, for a week last year. We will go right on in, taking a walk Saturday night in New Orleans during our four-hour wait there; working out at San Antonio and at Tucson where we have stops of a few hours each. That will be all. We'll drive right on in to Pasadena and take our work there. We'll try to get into condition in California because that's where the game will be played."

This was the same policy followed by former Alabama teams. The long trip west, about 3,000 miles of riding, and the marked change in climate, effects teams in a very definite manner. It requires several days for them to attain their real condition.

There are no injuries on the team and there will be little scrimmaging done.

Coaches of both teams know relatively little about each other's methods. Thomas has play-by-play accounts of Stanford games. He knows the general system of the double wing-back attack.

THOMAS SURE OF TEAM.

Stanford had Alabama scouted in the Vanderbilt game, an alumnus and former player at Stanford doing the job for Tiny Thornhill. This is an advantage Alabama will not have.

"I feel sure our team will play a good game," said Thomas, "but we will have to play our greatest game in order to win. I am sure this is a great football team. It had to be to go undefeated on the coast this fall."

Meanwhile all is excitement at Tuscaloosa and at Birmingham.

The Crimson Tide will be well "covered" by newspapermen on its trip west. Sports editors of the three Atlanta papers; of the Birmingham and Montgomery papers will accompany the team west.

Crimsons Breeze Through Light Drill.

UNIVERSITY, Ala., Dec. 6.—(AP) Inspired by an alumni admonition that "we expect you to roll over Stanford New Year's Day," the University of Alabama Crimson Tide charged through a peppery pass and signal drill this afternoon as preparations continued for the invasion of Rose Bowl.

Coach Paul Burnum, of the freshman squad, had charge of today's workout and brushed the players through maneuver after maneuver of their intricate Notre Dame system.

The team, however, seemed to have taken on new life since it was honored last night at an annual banquet, where it was announced that Frank Thomas, Alabama head coach, had signed a new five-year contract.

PRANCE AND CUT-UP.

Yells punctuated the practice as three squads charged up and down Denny stadium and Burnum said they showed more "spirit and cut-up" than he's seen all year.

The squad will enjoy another holiday tomorrow, but a signal drill is slated Saturday and "rough work" will begin Monday. Coach Thomas has warned his men there will be no letup after Monday until they leave for California December 21.

Thomas and Harold "Red" Drew, end coach, were in Knoxville, Tenn., where Thomas is to preside over a meeting of Southeastern conference coaches tomorrow and Saturday.

Hank Crisp, athletic director, and Assistant Coaches John "Hurry" Cain and "Ears" Whitworth are in Washington, where an Alabama all-star team meeets a similar team from the District of Columbia on Saturday.

"HOBOES" READY.

Enthusiasm has been mounting by leaps and bounds among undergraduates since it was announced Alabama would play in the Rose Bowl game. Railway reservations are reported "going fast," and a "Rose Bowl Hobo Society" has been organized, members hoping they will be able to ship themselves in a freight boxcar to Pasadena and back.

Whether the crack university band would be taken has not been decided by officials.

Thirty Plays In Stanford's Attack.

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., Dec. 6.—(AP)—Thirty plays will comprise Stanford's attack against Alabama, New Year's Day at Pasadena. Coach "Tiny" Thornhill said today he hoped his charges "would only have to use half of what they have been taught."

The Stanford leader added that the more he thought of the forthcoming football test the more he was convinced Alabama should be considered the favorite. "From what I can learn that team hasn't a single fault. The players do everything as if it were second nature. These betting commissioners who make Stanford the favorite should have their heads examined, or something."

There was no practice today, the players going back to their books. A report from Dr. Frits Roth, team physician, on X-ray pictures taken of Bobby Grayson's back, was awaited. The first-string fullback, who suffered a torn cartilage near his ribs November 24, complained of back pains yesterday.

Workouts will be resumed tomorrow although none of the three major casualties, Grayson and ends Moscrip and Topping, is expected to train.

Great Pro Teams To Draw 60,000 Fans for Title Battle

By Edward J. Neil.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—(AP)—While the Rose Bowl and the Sugar Bowl, All-America elevens and shifting college coaches, have been preempting the headlines, professional football is quietly getting ready to put a genuine major league World Series post-season climax on the pigskin year.

So steady has been the growth of the pro game here that Sunday, when the Chicago Bears, champions of the western half of the National league, meet the New York Giants, eastern titleholders, for the league championship, a crowd of 60,000 will be in the Polo Grounds stands, more than saw any college football game here this season with the sole exception of Notre Dame's victory over Army.

The game has risen swiftly under such shrewd showman development that the home club, the Giants, outdrew by 15 per cent the average attendance of the combined local colleges here through the season. Great college backs, mighty linesmen, fight now for a new alma mater, for which every non-collegiate but football daffy citizen, from bootblacks to filing clerks and beyond, can howl in deathless allegiance.

LIST OF STARS.

It's Ken Strong, the ball-carrying ace of New York University in the days when the Violets were a great football power; the expatriate from Michigan, Bo Molenda; Dale Burnett, graduate of Emporia Teachers, and Ed Danowski, quarterback last year at Fordham, against the unbeaten invaders, Minnesota's Broncho Nagurski and Jack Manders, Carl Brumbaugh, late of Florida; Gene Ronzani, once a Marquette hero, and Keith Molesworth, from Monmouth.

Gathered from the four corners of the collegiate world, they've reached their peak as professionals. The crowds idolize them as campus mates once did. And they're playing a brand of football so spectacular, with lateral passes a threat on every play, forwards from any point behind the line, fumbles free balls, and the goal posts right on the goal line inviting field goals, that college coaches sit breathless with the rest in the stands, and football writers, after a hard Saturday covering a college game, spend Sunday off in delight watching them.

BEARS UNBEATEN.

Chicago's Bears, unbeaten since Strong kicked a field goal that downed them 3 to 0 last year, are an amazing outfit. One tackle, George Musso, a billiken from Milliken, originally, weighs 268 pounds, the other Bill (Link) Lyman, of Nebraska, scales 246, sort of dwarfing the Giants' little tackles, Bill Morgan, of Oregon, and Tex Irwin, of Davis Elkins, a pair of 235-pounders. Bill Hewitt, of Michigan, and Bill Karr, West Virginia, the Bears' ends, shade 200 pounds. Ike Frankian, All-America at St. Mary's, and Ray Flaherty, of Gonzaga, are just as big. The average weight of the two elevens is about the same, 205.

Strangely enough, the old college try still seems to burn brightly in them. Beattie Feathers, for instance, Tennessee's great star and now the Bears' climax runner, is supposed to be out with injuries, but still will try to get in there. Harry Newman, Giants' quarterback ace from Michigan, has two fractured vertebrae held in place with a steel brace, but he'll go in to hold the ball for Strong if there's need for a place-kick. These two teams nearly took each other apart when the Bears won the world title last year in the final minute, 23 to 21, a game in which the lead changed seven times.

Marist, Decatur, Typists Share In N.G.I.C. Title

By Roy White.

Marist College, Decatur and Commercial High will be co-holders of the North Georgia Interscholastic Conference football championship until next fall. The announcement was made Thursday following a meeting of coaches and officials of the three schools at Marist College.

Members of the N. G. I. C. voted Wednesday for the three schools involved to agree among themselves for a play-off or the championship will remain in a three-way tie.

Since the regular season closed last week, with the exception of a game this afternoon, and with interest waning, it was decided Thursday to abandon the idea of a play-off. It was further pointed out that the first game could not be played before December 14 and the championship would then be delayed until December 21 or 22, at which time the schools would be closing for the annual Christmas holidays.

The coaches, Louie Van Houten, at Marist; Rufus Godwin, at Commercial, and Wendell Sullivan, of Decatur, favored the play-off but officials of the schools agreed to let the matter stand as it is.

Marist, the defending champion, won four, lost one and tied none. Commercial won four, lost one and tied two, and Decatur won four, lost one and tied one.

"Prep football started in September and 12 weeks is enough of it. There have been more than 40 high school games here," the officials said Thursday. "We could have made some money on the play-off, but that is a secondary consideration and we are anxious for the boys to return their particular interest to their studies."

TRACK OPENED.

KINGSLAND, Ga., Dec. 6.—(AP)—Approximately 4,000 persons attended the opening of the new Camden county race track here yesterday afternoon. Included among them were large delegations from Jacksonville, St. Augustine Sea Island Beach, Cumberland Island and many other places. Several distinguished guests were present, including Governor Eugene Talmadge.

Sugar Bowl Game Ticket Sale Brisk

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Sale of tickets for the Tulane-Temple Sugar Bowl football game here on New Year's Day became brisker today, although the contest is still more than three weeks off.

Box seats will cost $4, choice concrete stand seats $3.50 and general admission $1.

The Tulane team is enjoying a rest after a strenuous season before buckling down to practice on Monday, December 17.

The team was honored yesterday at a luncheon given by the Young Men's Business Club, which was attended by more than 600 persons.

'POP' WILL SEND FULL STRENGTH AGAINST WAVE

Unbeaten Owls Rearin' To Go New Year's Day. Team in Form.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 6.—A gridiron squad at full strength, confident in its power and rarin' to go, was the outlook around the Temple University campus today for the undefeated Owls' Sugar Bowl battle with Tulane at New Orleans on New Year's Day.

Along with announcement that the two injured first-string gridmen probably would be able to start against the Green Wave of the south, came word from Coach Glen (Pop) Warner that his squad will be at mid-season form for the clash.

The fear that Flashy Horace Mowrey, one of the fastest backs on the high-scoring Temple machine, would be unable to play because of his fractured wrist, was officially eliminated by the halfback's physician, Dr. John R. Moore.

After looking over the injured member, the doctor said he believes the wrist will be strong enough to allow Mowrey to play.

At the same time the campus received the good news that Lloyd Wise, first-string left end, out for the last two regular games because of a leg bruise, is so far recovered he will be able to start practice with the squad when it resumes on Monday.

Warner himself who isn't altogether new at this preparing for post-season games, shows he is confident.

"Nearly all of the boys," he said today, "are in good physical trim right now, and we coaches won't have to go through much of a boiling out process. Then, too, the entire squad is anxious and ready for the trip and expects to take Tulane in stride."

Simons-Smuckler Battle Is Predicted.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 6.—(AP)—The railbirds are already predicting it will be a battle between "Little Monk" Simons and Dynamite Dave Smuckler in the Tulane-Temple Sugar Bowl football clash here on New Year's Day.

Simons is Tulane's "touchdown-a-game" halfback and Smuckler is the line crashing star for "Pop" Warner's Temple team.

The elusive Simons, who can pass and punt with the best of them, is carrying his arm around in a sling now, but he expects to be in shape for the southern classic.

Simons scored the deciding touchdown in Tulane's 13-12 upset victory over Louisiana State, but didn't discover until a day after the game that he suffered a fractured collar bone.

The star is the newest edition of the athletic Simons family. His father, "Big Monk," is trainer at Tulane, and formerly a southern track star. An uncle, "Little Monk" the first, was a former bantamweight boxer.

Ticket sales for the game have already passed the $25,000 mark, officials announced. The fracas will be played in Tulane's stadium, which seats 32,000 persons. Additional seats can be erected.

College Park Wins Over Blue Birds

College Park, defeated the Blue Birds at Joe E. Brown High school court by a score of 26 to 14. Carter, for College Park, was given an excellent applause by the fans after he had executed 11 field goals to gain a decisive lead over the opposing team.

Score by quarters:

College Park	8	6	8	3	—26
Blue Birds	1	1	4	8	—14

K. of C. won a close game over the Red Devils at Bass High school court by a score of 26 to 25. Wofford, for Red Devils, and Vanhouten, for K. of C., were the outstanding players of the evening. Wofford, scoring 14 points and Vanhouten, 12. The Red Devils were handicapped in the latter part of the game after Wofford had been disqualified for having made four personal fouls.

Score by quarters:

K. of C.	9	5	3	7	—26
Red Devils	8	6	6	5	—25

'Red' Grange Seeks U. of Missouri Post

COLUMBIA, Mo., Dec. 6.—(UP)—Harold (Red) Grange has filed application to coach the University of Missouri football team, it was learned tonight.

Resignation of Frank Carideo, former Notre Dame star quarterback, leaves the Missouri post open.

Grange distinguished himself as one of the greatest ball carrying backs in collegiate history when he played for Illinois.

North Georgia Five Plays Clermont Club

DAHLONEGA, Ga., Dec. 6.—The North Georgia College basketball team, under the direction of Coach R. W. Stephens, will play the Clermont Athletic Club Friday night.

With a varsity squad of 20 experienced players, seven of whom are veterans from last year's strong team, Coach Stephens is expecting a highly successful season and is counting on victory in the opening encounters.

Okay, Mr. Kingfish, Nobody Will Weep!

BATON ROUGE, La., Dec. 6. (AP)—Senator Huey Long said today that he was not going to Knoxville Saturday with the Louisiana State University football team for the game with Tennessee.

"No, I'm not going," he said. "I announced that some time ago."

Long headed pilgrimages of students and fans to Nashville and Jackson, where L. S. U. won over Vanderbilt and University of Mississippi, respectively.

But he set his face in a grin at the Tiger's loss by one point to Tulane at the stadium here last week-end.

'Quick' Kick

It took a camera with a phenomenally fast lens to make these pictures of a dropkick, as demonstrated by Wesley Fesler, former Ohio State star and now a coach at Harvard. At top, the kicker's foot sinks into the ball just after it strikes the ground. Center, the ball rolls back over kicker's toe and starts to rise. Below, the ball lifts clear—on its way. GREATEST FIELD READY TO PLAY IN MIAMI OPEN

Veterans Uneasy as 280 Players Seek Big Purse.

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 6.—(AP)—Probably never before were the crowned heads of golfdom so uneasy as today.

The spectre of fading prestige worried the stars warming up for the Saturday start here of the Miami Biltmore $12,500 open.

Segregated from an army of home-club pursurers, the usual tournament stars are bothered by the prospect of some "unknown" stealing the show.

With the field numbering more than 280 when the entries officially closed tonight, the stars had the class while the home-club pros had the numbers.

Indications point to about 44 stars teeing off in the $7,500 "bombing squadron," and around 250 battling in the $5,000 "pursuit" group.

SEASONED STARS.

Most of the seasoned campaigners, however, publicly pooh-pooh the idea the second division producing the winning score, although Roy Jones, of Cortland, N. Y., posted a 67, the lowest practice score card thus far.

Jones is a pursuiter. The campaigners insist no brigrade, however select, which includes Olin Dutra, Tommy Armour, Johnny Farrell, Billy Burke, Walter Hagen, Willie MacFarlane, present and past holders of the national open championship, as well as Wiffy Cox, Ed Dudley, Johnny Revolta, Bobby Cruickshank, Johnny Golden and other top-notchers, can be eclipsed by an unknown.

In rebuttal the folks who look for an outburst of lese majeste point to the fact that Johnny Revolta was an

by ROY VICKERS

INSTALLMENT XXVII.

"This is my friend, Mr. Leningway," said Ralph Stornack. And something pierced the fog that had settled upon Rhoda's sensibilities.

Leningway! She had heard that name somewhere before. In conversation with the talk about Uncle Peter that had all come to nothing. What could it matter!

She was introduced to the clergyman but did not catch his name.

They were all being shepherded into the cottage.

"Well, I think we're all here!" said Stornack facetiously, and then to the man in clerical dress: "We want as little ceremony as possible. Will you start, please—and I hope you will give us the shortest possible form."

"Very good, sir!" said the clergyman, which was rather a singlar remark for a clergyman to make. But Mrs. Cornboise's attention was elsewhere and Rhoda did not care.

When the essential passage of the ceremony had been muttered very indistinctly, a convincing looking book was produced; bride and bridegroom signed it and then the witnesses. As soon as this had been done the "parson" picked up the book, handed a certificate to Rhoda, and departed with almost indecent haste.

"I think they're so sensible—these American weddings!" said Mrs. Cornboise. "There's no fuss, and we don't have to be formal with each other."

Rhoda was aware that some one had given her a full glass, and presently that they were drinking the health of the bride. And then that Stornack was standing very close to her.

"Here's to us, darling! . . . Aren't you going to drink the toast?"

"Why, of course I am!" said Rhoda, with the same bright smile. She drained the glass at a gulp and it made her cough. The unaccustomed wine made her feel dizzy and increased the sensation of being outside herself—of watching herself smiling as if she were some one else.

"Well, now we are going! Goodby, Rhoda dear! I'm sure you and Ralph will have every happiness."

"And if your mother's confidense should be falsified by events, do not hesitate to return to us," said her father before Mrs. Cornboise could interrupt him.

Ralph took her to the wicket gate to wave good-by to her parents, then, his arm about her waist, took her back to the cottage. Leningway showed no signs of going.

"And now, I think, if we make ourselves extra polite to Mr. Leningway he will produce a little surprise for us," said Stornack in his role of fatuous bridegroom.

From behind a chair Leningway produced an attache case and opened it. While he was spreading the papers on the table Stornack went on:

"I have never talked to you about money, my dear, because I know you don't care for such things. Now I'm not a rich man, but I am able to make some small provision for you."

"A very generous provision," said Leningway, speaking his rehersed speech.

"You have always been generous to me, Ralph!" she said, while she hoped that, whatever it was, it would not take long. She wanted to get out into the air.

"I had better read aloud the text of the documents," said Leningway. "I'm afraid Mrs. Stornack will find them rather long and rather dry to digest . . . whereas a marriage has been arranged and solemnized in the village of Landkey-on-Thames in the county of —."

"O I say, old man! Surely we needn't sit through all that!"

"I guess we can cut if you wish," said Leningway. "You've read it all through yourself, but what about Mrs. Stornack?"

Neither of them made any reply. "The Professor" was looking gloomy—

Stornack turned to Rhoda and gave her the smile that had been the basis of his many successes with women.

"I think my wife will take my word as to the contents. You will take my word, won't you, dearest?"

"Of course, Ralph!" answered Rhoda. She became dimly aware that something else was required of her. "Do you want me to do something?"

"Sign your name in two places. That's all, Mrs. Stornack," said Leningway, and handed her a pen.

Rhoda signed where Leningway pointed. The first signature was the acceptance of the legacy bequeathed to her by her Uncle Peter Shepworth, commonly known as Peter Merryweather. The second signature conveyed power of attorney over the said property to one, Ralph Stornack—which is to say that it gave him absolute and uncontroled authority over every penny of Rhoda's inheritance.

From the back of the cottage Stornack produced the women who had contracted to do their housework. She could write quite a clear hand and her signature, as witness, left nothing to be desired from the legal point of view.

As the woman completed her signature, Stornack applied blotting paper, then folded both documents and put them in his own pocket.

"I shall be seeing you again in a few days, Leningway!" he remarked.

Leningway looked at the pocketbook in which Stornack had put the documents. He hesitated, then laughed.

"I'm not anxious," he remarked. "I'll see you in a few days, Stornack."

He got up, moved toward the door, then belatedly turned around.

"Good-by, Mrs. Stornack," he said, and left them.

"Bit of a rough diamond, isn't he!" said Stornack. "But he's a good man of business."

"Yes, Ralph, I'm sure he is!"

Stornack had noticed her mechanical agreement to everything he said. She was in a strange mood. He made a gesture as if to take her in his arms, but she did not even see it. She was nervous, perhaps. Well, there would be plenty of time later to coax her over her nervousness. The business part of the program had been completed. He was no callow youth to force caresses on her at an inconvenient time.

"Feeling a bit dizzy?" he asked her.

"It's rather stuffy," she admitted. "The champagne has given me a bit of a headache—I'm not used to it."

"Then let's go and bask on the river."

Rhoda was grateful for the cool laziness of the river. Hour after hour drifted by. Sooner or later, she supposed, this merciful haze that had come upon her would disappear and she would become intensely aware of her position.

All too soon, it seemed, he was paddling the punt back to the landing stage.

"It's a few minutes past seven," he told her. "Shall we have dinner at the village inn and then — go home?"

At a few minutes past seven Colin Briarley arrived in London. He would, he had told Jack Caermaen, ring Rhoda on the telephone. But, as a matter of fact, nothing was further from his intention than to seek Rhoda.

In the long report that Jarroman had sent to Jack Caermaen and Caermaen had passed on to him, Stornack's address had been given.

Colin Briarley, over his arm the light overcoat that concealed Caermaen's revolver, gave Stornack's address to the taxi man.

"Major Stornack has given up these rooms, sir," the man informed him. "He left this morning."

Colin blinked. Somehow he had not imagined that such a very simple hitch might occur in his plans.

"Will you kindly give me his new address?"

"I'm afraid I'm not at liberty to do that, sir."

Colin took out a pound note and ran it through his fingers. After a moment's hesitation the man took it.

"I'll give you his address, sir. But if you're going to look him up, I do hope you won't mention that you got it from me."

"All right! That's a promise. What is it?"

"Fernbrook cottage, Landkey-on-Thames, sir."

Colin repeated the address to make sure he had it correctly, and then:

"But why all this mystery?"

"It's not exactly a mystery, sir. Nothing of a flit or anything like that, for I had the job of sending his things on. It's just—well, you see, sir—the fact is Major Stornack is being married today and naturally he won't want a lot of callers. That's why he'd be pretty wild if he knew I'd given away his address."

"O! He was married this morning, was he? This morning—O, yes!" He managed to smile. "Well, I—I shan't keep him very long. And the sooner I get to him the better. Can you tell me where the nearest garage is?"

"First on the right, second on the left, sir—and thank you!"

Fifteen minutes later, after filling up a form and depositing 10 pounds against hire and small damage, he was driving a reasonably good car at full speed to Landkey.

At dinner Stornack did not press Rhoda to have wine and took very little himself.

It was a very civilized place, he thought, for a country hotel. There were shaded lights on the table instead of the usual high white light that would have thrown shadows on her features. In his pocket wallet crackled the document which, when a little red tape had been cut, would give him about a hundred thousand pounds—his share of Rhoda's inheritance—for making love to th exquisite creature sitting opposite him.

He was aware that she was barely attending to him. But this only flattered his vanity. She was afraid of him, and he liked a woman to be afraid of him—just a little.

At a quarter to eight they left the hotel and walked back to the cottage. Dusk was approaching and the peace of evening settled on the countryside.

"Dearest—where is your bag?" he asked her.

"O! I must have left it in the hotel. I'm sorry, Ralph! I'd better go back for it."

"No. You're tired. I'll go back for it. You go on into the cottage and—wait for me." He touched her arm. "You aren't afraid of me, are you, darling?"

"No, Ralph. You've always been kind to me. I shall be as kind as I can to you."

"Brave girl!" he crooned and turned back to the inn.

Oddly, it was in the moment after he had left that Rhoda suddenly knew that she was indeed afraid of him. The merciful torpor had fallen from her and she was acutely alive.

She opened the wicket gate, went up the little path to the cottage. It was quite dark inside. With trembling fingers she groped for the lamp and lit it.

"I am afraid—that means I am a coward." She tried to lash herself into boldness but without success.

The stark, paralyzing fact faced her—that in a few minutes Ralph Stornack would come back into that cottage.

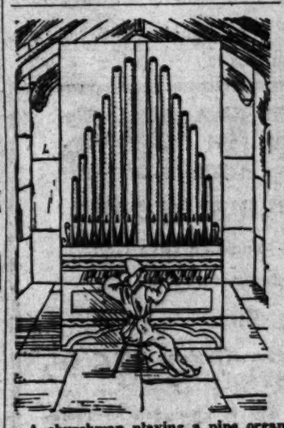
THE MAKING OF MUSIC.
V—Olden Organs.

We hear the deep, throbbing music of an organ at a theater or church, or over the radio; and we are impressed by the power of this instrument.

Strangely enough, the mighty organs of today grew from a little instrument which the Greeks used to hold in their hands—the Panpipe—combined with the olden gagpipe. For more than 2,000 years it has been growing and now many organs are very large indeed. Some have four, five or even more keyboards.



A churchman playing a pipe organ during the middle ages. (From an old print.)

Often we find that if we blow on the open mouth of an empty bottle our breath will make a sound come forth. The organ pipe works in much the same way. Air is forced into it, and sound is produced.

A kind of organ was worked out by two Greeks who lived in Alexandria, Egypt, 200 years before the birth of Chrirst. They used pumps to force air into "large panpipes," and water was employed in bringing about the proper pressure. This "hydraulic" organ was so successful that it was played in Rome before great crowds in the arena. The Romans liked noise, and this form of organ music gave them plenty of it.

The direct ancestor of the modern organ, however, was one in which water pressure had no part. The bellows was used to force air through the pipes, and this system goes back to ancient times.

Some early organs with bellows were small enough to be carried about. The pipes, less than three feet high, were not of great weight. The player let the base of the instrument rest on his knees. While he worked the bellows with his felt hand, he touched the keys which set the air free so that it would go into the pipes. When he finished his playing he carried the organ away, usually supporting it with a strap thrown over his shoulder.

The air, or wind, for larger organs was supplied by men who pumped large bellows. In the year 951 an English bishop caused an organ of great size to be built for Winchester abbey. We are told that it had 400 pipes, and that wind was supplied by 26 bellows. Two players worked the keys while "70 strong men" were pumping the bellows.

Working the keys of an organ during the middle ages was harder than it is today. The keys were sometimes six inches wide, and much force was needed to press them down. It was a custom to strike them with clenched fists and with the elbows. The player came to be known as "the striker of the organ."

shook hands and had a few words to say. Both are modest, blushing young men, their hats the same size as before the season started.

Alabama has more than one reason to be proud of this team. It is a winner. The Vanderbilt players and others reported it to be the cleanest team met all year. A great many of the players are honor students.

They've gone right along. And when Coach Frank Thomas announced that two players, other than those making the All-American and All-Southern teams, had probably done more to bring the team through, the squad led the crashing crescendo of applause for the two boys.

COACHES MEET TONIGHT.

Football coaches of the south will meet at Knoxville tonight. Their program will be the same as usual. They will have a dinner. And someone will protest that the officiating has been the worst in years and everyone will agree. There will be a few speeches, broken only by the rhythmic sound of teeth on chicken, and then the talk will begin.

Coaching jobs in Dixie seem rather secure this year. Jess Neely is already signed to a long-term contract at Clemson; Frank Thomas got a five-year contract Wednesday. Coach W. A. Alexander, whose team lost nine consecutive games, is as strong as the Rock of Gibraltar at Georgia Tech and should be, being one of the better coaches in the game and a great gentleman in addition. There is no coach in the south who is likely to receive the well-known gate.

Only one job is open. Vanderbilt wants Ray Morrison. If he doesn't accept they will have a difficult time getting a head coach. Because of the entrance and scholastic requirements at Vanderbilt, plus the lack of material, there hasn't been a single application for the job. The Vanderbilt alumni who have been yelping for a new coach may begin to sit up and wonder.

Only two coaches have been "resigned" out of their jobs. Eddie Casey is out at Harvard and Frank Carideo is out at Missouri.

SO, WHAT, HUEY?

Huey Long has announced, for the fourth time, he will not go to Knoxville Saturday for the L. S. U.-Tennessee game. Which means that full many a boo of purest ray serene will be left unuttered. In fact the boo chorus had been preparing for weeks to welcome Huey to Knoxville.

Carrollton Fives Open Card Tonight

CARROLLTON, Ga., Dec. 6.—The Carrollton High boys and girls are scheduled to pry the lid off a new cage season here Friday night in a big double bill. The two local representatives will play Franklin High in their initial battles.

Games with Franklin, Starr High, Jonesboro, Hogansville, Cedartown, Temple, Bowdon, Tallapoosa, Cedartown, Centralhatchee and possibly Newnan will dot the C. H. S. basketball schedule this year with the boys and girls staging double-headers in each instance.

S. S. A. A. Managers Will Meet Tonight

Basketball managers in the Sunday School Amateur Athletic Association will hold a special meeting at Beck & Gregg Company tonight at 7:30 o'clock. Plans, heretofore postponed, are to open the basketball schedule next week. Team managers of the following Sunday schools are asked to be present: Lutheran church, Central Baptist Pals class, Central Baptist Joy class, and English Avenue. Any other Sunday school in or near the city that plans to support a basketball team this winter is invited. An approximate cost of operation per game this winter will be less than that of any Sunday school league in the city.

Boys' High Harriers Beat G.M.A. Cadets

Boys' High's cross-country team defeated G. M. A., 26 to 29, Thursday afternoon at G. M. A., in the opening of the season for both teams. The course measured two miles.

Belcher, Boys' High, paced the field and finished in 11 minutes and 28 seconds. Gober, Boys' High, followed for second place with Evans, G. M. A., third.

The others followed in the order Williams, G. M. A.; Jimenez, G. M. A.; Meeks, Boys' High, Hudson, G. M. A.; Clark, Boys' High; Cowles, Boys' High, and Mendelson, G. M. A.

unknown Michigan youngster when he virtually stampeded the field here two years ago. And for the second season, hand-running, he finished in second place last year.

SECOND FLIGHT.

They also have dusted off the argument that the very idea of playing against Bobby Jones used to hog-tie the best of the pros; why shouldn't the second flight prosper if its standard-bearers are exempted from combat with Dutra, Sarazen, Runyan, Hagen, Armour, and the other celebrated purse-snatchers?

Although Jones set the pace with a 67, Dutra, the national open champion who is on the staff of the Miami Biltmore Country Club here, posted the next lowest score, a 70.

Tony Manero, of Sedgefield, N. C., who will play in the pursuit squadron, carded a 72 today; Errie Ball, of Mobile, Ala., also in this thickly populated division, was next low with 73, and Clarence Clark, of Bloomfield, N. J., had a 75.

Among the bombers who confessed their practice round scores today were Victor Ghezzi, of Deal, N. J., who took 40 for the easier outward nine and then came back in a fine 34, two under par. Ted Turner, of Clementon, N. J., had 74. Jim Noonan, the Columbus, Ohio, open champion, also had 74.

Basketball

The third series of games in the North DeKalb league showed that the teams were strong and that they all will be contenders for the championship.

A. A. U. OFFICIALS OPEN MEET TODAY

Patrick Walsh, of New York, is a likely choice for the presidency, which will be especially important in 1935 because of the 1936 Olympic games in Berlin.

Redistricting of the nation's athletic setup will be a chief matter in tomorrow's early sectional meetings. Several additional sections may be provided, as smaller groups produce more interesting events.

Another task of the delegates is to pass upon a total of 158 record applications.

There was little advance discussion about the 1936 Olympics. Opposition to an American entry because of Germany's attitude to Jews had largely subsided but still may become a major issue during the three-day session.

Brundage tonight named a committee to report results of an investigation into amateur sports conditions and possibly to draw up uniformity rules.

Committeemen are:

Dan Ferris, A. A. U., secretary; Dr. John Baron, International Y. M. C. A., secretary; Dr. G. Randolph Manning, honorary president of the United States Football Association; Dr. Joseph Raycroft, Princeton, vice president of the A. O. C.; Gustavus Kirby and John T. McGovern, of I. C. A. A. A. A., and Brigadier General Reckford, president of the National Rifle Association.

CHECKS INTRODUCED AT TRIAL OF INSULL

CHICAGO, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Six little slips of paper that took $334,720 out of the ill-fated treasury of Middle West Utilities Company were shown to the jury trying Martin Insull today.

They were checks issued to Washington Flexner, alleged partner and agent of Insull in private stock market accounts.

"Embezzlement!" the state branded those checks. Earle C. Hurley, the prosecutor, told the jury Insull had ordered the checks paid into the Flexner-Insull brokerage account to protect himself—Middle West taking, in return, stocks Insull knew were worthless.

On the back of the vouchers was written: "To take up securities, to be adjusted later."

GERMANY NOT TO BUY COTTON IN U. S. POOL

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Oscar Johnston, manager of the government cotton pool, when asked about reports that German interests planned to make large purchases of American cotton, said that no cotton in the pool is involved.

"The plan," he said, "is to allow Germany to purchase her normal amount of cotton in the usual manner, through the normal channels. The German interests must buy the cotton on the open market.

"When the government cotton is offered for sale, it will be offered first to American shippers, to sell when and where they choose. It will not be allowed to compete with the normal movement of cotton, either domestic or foreign."

Prominent ministers in the United States will be asked to participate. Three-day visits will be paid to each city. The mission will aim its evangelical work at all groups.

Quiz Bares Move To Hike Dye Duty

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(AP)—A post-war drive to boost tariffs on German dyestuffs, conducted by the American chemical industry on the ground that German chemical monopolies made disarmament a farce and that nation a potential military danger, was described today before the senate munitions committee.

In addition, the committee received evidence that the Remington Arms Company "got busy" and tried to "kill" arms embargo legislation in 1933, when rumors reached it that an effort would be made to choke off the military supplies of Bolivia and Paraguay, at war in the Gran Chaco.

The campaign for higher tariffs, to replace an outright embargo in effect just after the war, was described by a group of du Pont officials. The effort included a trip to Europe by one in an effort to reach the source of European news intended to reach American papers.

At ATLANTA'S THEATERS

Capitol To Present 7 Amateurs Tonight

Amateur contests cannot be staged without amateurs. For this reason the Capitol management has issued another call for entries to be added to the list now at the theater. Additional contestants are wanted immediately and those interested are requested to register at the door.

The call for new amateurs, however, will have no effect on the contest to be staged tonight at the theater at the 9 o'clock performance. Efforts have been made to get a variety of entertainment at these contests as was evidenced last Friday night by the variety of amateur acts offered.

Tonight the following are scheduled to appear: Gertrude Patton, Pete Western, W. C. Barry, Douglas S. Cone, Frank Ermine, Medora Fitten and Sidney Caldwell.

Three prizes are offered each Friday night, the first prize being $7.50, second $4, and a third prize of a month's pass to the theater.

Where first prize winners are outstanding their services will be recommended to stage show producers. To date the Capitol has sent approximately seven first prize winners on the road to appear in unit shows.

Sparkling Comedy Hit Opens Run at Rialto

Frank Craven in "That's Gratitude" at the Rialto presents a sparkling comedy, full of moving human touches that weave a pattern for surprising reality throughout. Ably supported by Mary Carlisle, as the homely Deelia Maxwell, who yearns for the thrills of a stage career in New York. Craven, as Bob Grant, takes Deelia to a New York plastic surgeon who transforms her into a ravishing beauty whose theatrical fame grows until she—but perhaps you'd better see this for yourself.

Arthur Byron, in the role of prosperous Kansas merchant, father of Deelia, furnishes endless comedy, revolving mostly around the key to the family's liquor closet, a never-ending source of concern to his wife, who terms it "a game we've been playing for years—that he always wins."

The fast-moving plot originates with Maxwell's attempts not showing gratitude for a service rendered him by Grant, exaggerated out of proportion, and ending in a series of humorous yet vividly human developments.

Also on the bill is a newsreel with interpolations by the inimitable Graham McNamee; a comedy short, starring Edgar Bergen in a ventriloquist act, and another, with the three Stooges, Moe, Larry and Curley, entitled, "Punch Drunk." —W. W. B.

Anna Sten and March Stars in Grand Film

Lovely, alluring Anna Sten, soviet-trained actress who recently made her debut in "Nana," again is presented by Samuel Goldwyn—in Leo Tolstoy's "Resurrection," brought to Loew's Grand theater as "We Live Again." With her is Fredric March (and to his credit let it be said, a different Fredric March) and C. Aubrey Smith.

Like all Rouben Mamoulian productions, "We Live Again" is impressively stamped with his peculiar directorial genius. It is marked by amazing attention to details, details that are endowed with significance, blended into a symphony of noble and peasant in Russia half a century ago. Mamoulian is one of the few men strong enough to impress their personality on motion pictures.

March is Prince Dmitri, hot-headed idealist, who seduces Servant Katusha (Anna Sten) and insultingly leaves her with a banknote for a wild life in Moscow. He stifles his democratic ideals until he accidently discovers the pathetic girl, now of the demimonde, charged with murder. His love is rekindled and he judges, his life depends on retribution. This he accomplishes in a touching and typically sentimental Tolstoy manner.

He who seeks a gaudy romance should look elsewhere, for the Grand this week presents a monumental work; rich in love and dashing romance, it is true, but also sympathetically reflective on human destiny.

Another all-color Walt Disney cartoon is screened. —B. M.

Colbert and William In Fine Play at Fox

"Imitation of Life," based on Fannie Hurst's novel of the same name, which opened Thursday at the Fox theater, offers diversified entertainment, combining the comic irony of Ned Sparks, in a supporting role, with the dramatic ability of Claudette Colbert and Warren William taking the leading roles.

Claudette Colbert begins the show in the role of a poor young widow, with a baby girl, showing the effort she makes to carry on a meager business of peddling which her husband started before his death. The nurse who enters early in the show also has a young girl who, with her mother, play a splendid supporting role.

The show offers entertainment truly different from anything that has shown in Atlanta for some time and should be a welcome variation for Atlanta theater-goers.

A Betty Boop comedy and Fox movietone news completes the program.

By FREDERICK GARDNER.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—(AP)—The stock market reverted to a cautious mood today and profit-taking hampered its main lines in efforts to extend a previous advance.

Rails and some of the industrial leaders of the preceding rise dropped to the rear while individual issues and secondary groups pushed forward for additional gains, notably farm and rail equipment, metal and preferred stocks.

Trading quieted as the forward movement exhausted its drive in commodities as well as stocks. The volume in the stock exchange, however, was comparatively large, totaling 1,420,355 shares against yesterday's 1,630,913, which was the largest since last July.

Bonds alone carried on the advance with vigor. Highest grade issues, led by the treasury list, renewed their trek back toward the peak levels attained last July and further sizable gains were chalked up behind second-grade loans.

Rely on Trade News.

Deprived of the stimulus of the sharp thrust upward in grains yesterday, the share list had to rely chiefly on trade news for its support. There was nothing in business reports to indicate a halt in the slow uphill trend. However, outstanding developments to refresh markets were lacking.

American Car & Foundry preferred spurted about 5 points and Curtis Publishing more than 3 to a new peak for the year. Senior issues of P. Lorillard, Fairbanks Morse, General Motors and Johns Manville sold at top prices for 1934.

American Home Products, American Safety Razor, Deere, International Harvester and United States Freight were among issues showing gains of fractions to a point or more. In contrast, Chrysler, Radio preferred B, Bethlehem Steel, American Can and other prominent industrials eased.

U. S. Tobacco Breaks

United States Tobacco, on a transfer of 100 shares, tumbled nearly 15 points in face of yesterday's extra dividend of $2.25 a share.

The Standard Statistics Company average for 90 stocks was only onetenth of a point lower at 75.8.

Grains, including wheat and corn, showed losses ranging up to about a cent a bushel at the close and cotton futures yielded for net losses of 35 to 60 cents a bale.

The interstate commerce commission's order for lower grain rates on western roads apparently dulled speculative appetite for carried shares. Carloading reports of individual roads for last week were not encouraging.

Brokers' loans by New York city banks for their own account in the past week increased $63,000,000 to $639,000,000, one of the biggest gains in recent months. Borrowing in connection with new treasury offerings was thought to have been an important factor in the rise.

Brokers' Views

STOCK OPINIONS.

FENNER & BEANE—We believe that an unsatisfied investment and speculative demand for stocks will exist as a basis for further extension of the advance, although the backwardness of rails may induce some further profit-taking early Friday.

BEER & CO.—While the market continues to be swayed by improvement in a majority of business indices, a policy of buying on dips seems to be warranted.

COURTS & CO.—Thus far there appears to be no sign of changing the upward movement and minor dips would seem excellent opportunities for buying securities.

DOBBS & CO.—While there was considerable disappointment over the failure of the rally to carry through, particularly in the rail section, no real weakness was apparent in Thursday's session.

ABBOTT, PROCTOR & PAINE—There was very little of interest in Thursday's market. These intervals of rest are natural at this point of the advance but as fundamentals continue to improve we can expect more consistently strong and active markets.

COTTON OPINIONS.

FENNER & BEANE—Traders seem to be waiting to see if the deal between the cotton pool manager and spot houses will result in much hedging. If it does, prices may work some lower. If not the market will probably do better.

BEER & CO.—As there might be more pre-bureau liquidation Friday, we advise only a temporary trading position in the market, at least until after the bureau report Saturday.

HUBBARD BROS. & CO. TO DOBBS & CO.—The action of Thursday's market was in keeping with expectations of a trading position for the time being, but the more favorable view of general business prospects would appear to have found a further reflection in Thursday afternoon's rallies in stocks.

ABBOTT, PROCTOR & PAINE — Some statement from the managers of the government cotton pool is expected shortly and the policy to be pursued in disposing of its holdings will no doubt have an important market influence.

GRAIN OPINIONS.

FENNER & BEANE—In view of the rapid advance Wednesday and the disappointing action in other world markets, wheat acted surprisingly well Thursday.

ABBOTT, PROCTOR & PAINE—After the spirited advance of the past few days a decline was expected Thursday, but the trend seems to be upward shortly.

BRISK RALLY AIDS METALS ON CURB

By BERNARD S. O'HARA.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Metal shares rallied briskly on the curb market today but advances in other sections of the list, including alcohols, oils and utilities, were mostly small. Trading was active throughout the session.

Prices were steady at the opening and the list worked moderately higher during the early hours. The improvement continued in the afternoon but profit taking appeared at the finish.

Among non-ferrous issues, Newmont showed a gain of 2 1-8 points. Bunker Hill & Sullivan was up nearly as much and Lake Shore and Wright Hargreaves closed fractionally higher. United Gas preferred rose more than a point in active trading. Electric Bond & Share and American Gas & Electric both ended unchanged.

Sherwin Williams, Celluloid Corporation, Swan Finch Oil and Cord Corporation got up about a point or so each. Singer Manufacturing dipped 4 1-2 on a small transfer, while Pan-American Airways was down 1.

Transfers which approximated 220,000 shares were about the same as yesterday.

ATLANTA SPOT COTTON.

Atlanta spot cotton closed steady, 10 points down, at 12.80. Receipts, 88; Shipments, 537; stocks, 136,694.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Cotton was less active today and prices lost part of yesterday's advances under slightly increased southern selling and realizing or liquidation. March contracts sold off to 12.52 in the late trading, making a net decline of 10 points, and closed at 12.55, with the general market steady at net declines of 7 to 12 points.

The early market held fairly steady within a range of 3 or 4 points, but the south continued to sell in small lots, while the demand tapered off and prices gradually yielded in the late dealings. December eased off to 12.45 and May to 12.53, while October declined to 12.22, making net losses of 9 to 12 points on the general list. Closing quotations were within a point or two of the lows on most positions.

Another of the private end-November crop report was published, placing the indicated yield at 9,685,000 bales, compared with a report of 9,479,000 by the same authority last month. Members of the New York Cotton Exchange on the average are expecting a crop of about 9,709,000 bales. The private crop figures appeared to attract little attention, but uncertainty as to the showing of Saturday's government report and a disposition to await more positive incentives from other directions may have accounted for the disposition to even up commitments during today's trading. Exports today 18,725, making 2,051,682 so far this season. Port receipts 14,332. United States port stocks 3,130,516.

COTTON IN NEW ORLEANS DECLINES 9 TO 13 POINTS

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 6.—(AP)—The cotton market was rather quiet all morning but became somewhat more active in the afternoon. Pre-bureau liquidation was the main cause of the selling and downward trend of prices, but there was also hedging. After a steady opening prices gradually eased off particularly in the afternoon, dropping to levels 11 to 13 points below the previous close. There was a rally of a point or two at the end on covering and the market closed steady with prices showing net declines for the day of 9 to 13 points, October declining the most.

The market opened about steady although Liverpool cables were slightly lower than due while sterling was higher. Private cables stated that Bombay and Alexandria selling was felt in Liverpool while the trade there were the best buyers.

Liverpool is due on New Orleans tomorrow 3 to 4 penny points down.

Port receipts 13,199, for week 84,093, for season 3,014,219, last season 4,904,483. Exports 14,725, for week 150,332, for season 2,003,226, last season 3,494,771. Port stock 3,128,746, last year 4,097,337. Combined shipboard stock at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston 86,512, last year 134,723. Spot sales at southern markets 17,211, last year 18,134.

By VICTOR EUBANK.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—(AP)—The bond market continued to push forward today at a pace that was just a little faster than that of the previous session.

Transfers totaled $14,966,000, par value, against $14,648,000 yesterday, and the Standard Statistics Company average for 60 domestic corporate issues advanced two-tenths of a point to 86. This composite is now only about 2 points under the year's high. The industrial average recorded another new 1934 peak at 85.

While news of interest to the loans market was scarce, bullish sentiment was still predominant.

Rail liens again reflected hopes the government would soon announce a plan to give material assistance to the carriers.

Among the best of the transportation group, up 1 to around 2 points, were Alleghany 5s at 70, Boston & Maine 5s at 74 1-2, Chicago & Northwestern general 4 3-4s at 58, Great Northern 5 1-2s at 87 3-4, Hudson & Manhattan refunding 5s at 88 1-2, Kansas City Southern 5s at 73, New York Central convertible 6s at 113 1-2, Northern Pacific 4s at 101, Pittsburgh & West Virginia 4 1-2s at 62 and Union Pacific 4s at 103 1-2.

Among the better utility and industrial bonds were some of Western Union, Kelly-Springfield, Childs Company and American Telephone. Issues of International Telephone and Postal Telegraph eased under profit taking, as did a number of other loans.

United States government securities were not especially active.

A firm tone was displayed by the foreign division.

CHICAGO, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Notwithstanding that No. 1 white corn, immediate delivery, sold here today at $1.11, the highest price since 1928, futures both of wheat and corn weakened.

Profit-taking induced by yesterday's sharp bulges in values tended to make the leading grain futures average lower for at least the time being. Disappointing action of the Liverpool wheat market had a bearish influence, and so too did liberal deliveries today of 1,135,000 bushels on Chicago December wheat contracts.

Wheat closed easy at the same as yesterday's finish to 1 cent lower, May $1.03 3-8 to 5-8, corn 5-8 off to 3-8 up, May 92 to 92 1-8, oats 1-2 to 3-4 down, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 7 cents.

Although dips in prices revealed that commission houses had numerous orders to buy wheat as well as corn on recessions, resulting upturns of quotations to above yesterday's finish were hard to maintain. A feature of the day's dealings was considerable selling of wheat against simultaneous equal purchases of corn.

Purchases of corn appeared to be made largely on standing orders from operators who yesterday were sellers. Oats sympathized with wheat weakness. A good deal of talk was heard that rye was at too great a discount as compared with corn.

Provisions had an upward slant, responsive to firmness of the hog market.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—Raw sugar was firmer today, although demand was less active.

Futures were unsettled by the report from Cuba that an additional 100,000 to 110,000 tons of Cuban sugar would be released for shipment to the United States to replace re-exports of refined to Europe, but after declining 2 to 4 points there was a partial rally with the market closing unchanged to 2 points net lower. Sales were 16,800 tons.

The range follows:

Farm Community Settlement Planned by U. S. in Georgia

Land Obtained on Option in Harris County for Proposed FERA Project, Hopkins Reveals.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(AP)—A rural rehabilitation project for Georgia, the first in the southeast, was described today by Harry L. Hopkins, federal emergency relief administrator.

The project, about to be established, will cover a 10,000-acre tract where between 400 and 500 families will operate the farm. While Hopkins did not mention the location, it was understood that it was to be located near Warm Springs, not far from the resort home of President Roosevelt.

An agricultural expert will supervise the work of the farmers.

Asked what could be grown on the farm, Hopkins replied that it already was partly planted to cotton.

"Anything can be grown in Georgia from figs to cotton," he added.

The administrator, answering another question, said he did not believe the project would conflict with the crop curtailment program of the agricultural adjustment administration.

In many cases, he said, the relief administration was buying the materials produced on these farms and distributing these to the unemployed. Considerable stress has been laid at various times on the possibilities of persons on relief rolls growing and manufacturing goods for exchange or sale and distribution to others similarly situated.

MISS SHEPPERSON TELLS OF HARRIS COUNTY PLANS

Plans for establishment of a farm community settlement in Harris county by the federal government are now under way and in process of being worked out, but final, formal approval to the project has not yet been given, Miss Gay B. Shepperson, Georgia administrator of federal emergency relief, stated Thursday afternoon.

In the event the project which, as contemplated, will involve some 10,000 acres, is worked out and finally approved, direction and general supervision will be solely in the hands of Miss Shepperson and her organization, it is understood.

Miss Shepperson said that the projected community would care for approximately 500 families, taken chiefly from the larger cities where they have been unable to successfully combat the problems of living. The federal government is planning to provide each family with a home and a farm of from two to 20 acres in size. These homesteads will not be given, but will be sold to each family on terms they can easily meet. Each farm and home will be properly equipped before it is turned over to its future owners.

Land Obtained on Option.

Some land in the territory where the contemplated community will be established, if approved, has already been obtained on option, Miss Shepperson said, and the options will be taken up when the entire project is approved and launched. She said it would probably be two weeks yet before complete details are worked out so that the plans can be submitted to Harry L. Hopkins, federal relief administrator, at Washington.

The site selected is between Pine and Oak mountains in Harris county, not far from Warm Springs and the "Little White House." It will be officially known as the "Pine Mountain Valley Community," and ideally located for the purpose. It is about three miles from Chipley and approximately the same distance from Hamilton, county seat of Harris county.

The land itself, while not cultivated in recent years, is said to be excellent soil for farming purposes. There is a well-graded highway from Tip Top, a point on Pine mountain.

Minimum Cost for Homes.

Under the plans now being worked out, the homesteaders themselves will erect their homes, under the supervision of FERA experts, using material already on the site. Thus the cost of each home will be held to a minimum and it is hoped that the most costly farm and home of them all can be sold to its occupant for not more than $2,000, thus making it easy to buy when payments are spread over a long period of years.

It is planned to provide a community center with schools, churches, recreation centers, etc. There will be water, lights, sewerage, but no large industrial activities. Marketing and distributing facilities will be provided through which the homesteaders may dispose of their farm products profitably.

Long Allies Indicted As U. S. Tax Dodgers

NEW ORLEANS, La., Dec. 6.—(UP)—The federal grand jury investigating income tax returns of Senator Huey Long's political associates, today indicted Jules Fisher and his nephew, Joseph, lawmakers and close friends of the kingfish.

Jules, a state senator, was charged with evading taxes on an income of $326,793 between 1931 and 1933.

Joseph, a state representative, was accused of evading taxes on a $122,224 income between 1929 and 1932.

The government charged that Joseph made no income tax return at all during the four years, except when the collector of internal revenue filed a community return for him in 1930.

Representative Fisher protested against the collector's action, it was charged. A separate indictment was returned against him, charging felony in making a false protest.

Culbertson on Contract

By ELY CULBERTSON.
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyist.

A Pseudo-Squeeze.

After taking his master's degree in bridge mathematics and all-round technique, the player who pants for the higher learning continues his studies by delving into the mysteries of psychology. It is at this stage of his education that he comes to appreciate the beauties of the pseudo, or purely psychological, squeeze—the squeeze that depends for its effectiveness, not on the operation of a law of physics, but upon what the squeezee thinks.

One of the most perfect and devastating pseudo-squeezes I have ever seen occurred in the hand below. It was played in a duplicate game and practically every south player became declarer at the final contract of five diamonds, either doubled, undoubled or redoubled. With the normal opening of the heart Jack by every opening leader, every south player made his contract.

Perfect discarding by East could have set the bid. Yet, critical as I like to be about defensive play, I must admit that the correct choice of discards with the East hand is about as difficult as anything I have ever seen.

East, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

North: ♠ K 9 5; ♡ A 10 8 6; ◇ 8 2; ♣ A 9 8 7
West: ♠ 10 7 4 3; ♡ J 4; ◇ 10 7 3; ♣ 10 6 5 4
East: ♠ A Q 8 2; ♡ K Q 9 7 3; ◇ —; ♣ K Q J 2
South: ♠ J 6; ♡ 5 2; ◇ A K Q J 9 6 5 4; ♣ 3

Against South's five-diamond contract, all the west players, as I have said, made the natural opening of the heart jack.

At every table this was won with the ace in dummy. Now the declarer proceeded to run his eight diamonds. All the defenders holding the East hand first discarded their two small hearts and two small spades. As more diamond leads were made, the East players began to find themselves in difficulties. None of them of course knew that West held the ten of clubs and that South held only a singleton, and consequently all of them felt compelled to hold on to some sort of protection in the club suit. As a result, some of them discarded down to the blank ace of spades, and thus to the declarer was able to set up a spade trick. Others bared down before the seventh trump was played to the ace-queen of spades, the king-queen of hearts and the king-queen of clubs. When, on the next to the last trump, the declarer, being forced to play first from dummy, threw a club, keeping two hearts, the East players unwisely threw, not a club, but one of the hearts. The declarer of course now fulfilled his contract by setting up a heart or by playing out the last trump, discarding a heart from dummy, then cashing the club ace and winning the hand by throwing East in with the top heart for an end-play.

The proper defense is shown by references to the best trap laid by a wily declarer. After seven tricks, the relevant hands hold

North: ♠ K 9; ♡ 10 8; ◇ —; ♣ A 9
East: ♠ A Q; ♡ K Q; ◇ —; ♣ K Q
South: ♠ J 6; ♡ 5; ◇ 5 4; ♣ 3

On the next trump dummy lets go a heart. Now if East, fearing that South holds 10 x clubs, lets go a heart also, he is ruined. A lead to the club ace and return club lead for ruff hails him out of the suit, and he is then thrown in with the blank heart honor. Hence East's only defense is to discard a club on the penultimate trump. No continuation can now limit declarer's loss to two tricks.

A very good player should have been able to discard correctly and defeat the contract. However, with any players but experts defending, the pseudo-squeeze on this hand is almost sure fire.

TOMORROW'S HAND

South, dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

East: ♠ 10; ♡ 10 7 2; ◇ K J 10 8 6; ♣ K 8 7 5
South: ♠ K Q 9 6 5 2; ♡ A Q; ◇ 9 5 4 3; ♣ 4

This hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

In announcing the amount of the loans, the federal reserve board today gave the following description:

Market Outlook

by MAX BUCKINGHAM

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—(UP)—Ticker quotations are giving watchers an interesting story at the moment and many in Wall Street believe it is bullish.

The tape today showed a spotted market. Aircraft issues were bought. Alcohol shares, especially those furnishing anti-freeze compounds, were bought at one period. Farm equipments were given a whirl. Aviation stocks were selected for an hour. Then at the close there was profit-taking all along the line to give an irregular close with 1,420,000 shares exchanged.

PROFIT-TAKING.

Through the entire operation there was profit-taking. But the profit-taking was so well absorbed that Wall Street felt cheered by the result which indicated to the optimists that the trend was upward for the market, although some periods of recession and consolidation were likely. One comment heard today was that some of the talk of profit-taking and recessionary periods came from groups who had taken profit too quickly, thereby losing out on part of the increase, and were hopeful of a further dip so they might re-enter the market.

Whatever the background is, however, the better volume indicates a demand for investment mediums in the stock market which ordinarily brings about a definitely higher market. Rails still are the important factor and have not quite tested their high point. Should this test result favorably, market analyzers believed, everyone can look for a sturdy market.

RAIL INCOMES OFF.

Rail difficulties, however, do not give all the cheerfulness that could be desired. The report of the American Railway Association tonight showed that the net operating income of Class 1 roads had declined in the first 10 months of the year, compared with the first 10 months last year, operating expenses jumped 9.5 per cent, while increased gross operating revenues were not large enough to offset this gain in expenses. Rails are still waiting for the announcement from Washington on the freight rate increase—an announcement which may not come for a month or so—and are a little disturbed by the western grain rate announcement which lowered revenues of the grain carriers.

The business background continues cheerful. One item which caused optimism was release of estimates, indicating the tremendous improvement expected in farm equipment business next year. Some believe it will show a 100 per cent pick-up over the year, when business began to revive.

Another item of interest was the indication that gasoline demand in October reached record proportions. Along with this was the continued interest in motor equipment companies with estimates that their business next year will show a gain of perhaps as much as 50 per cent over this year.

TARZAN AND THE LION MAN No. 71

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

As the terrified Eyad wheeled his horse to flee, he looked back and saw the fiendish slaughter of his Arab comrades by the ferocious gorilla band. And he saw a big bull gorilla seize Naomi Madison, lift her up roughly and start up the slope of the canyon. . . .

. . . Late that day, Tom Orman and Bill West, pursuing their vain search for Rhonda and Naomi, came upon Eyad, resting from his flight. They approached carefully, for they recognized him as one of the girls' kidnapers. But Eyad heard them. Swiftly he seized his musket.

But Orman had him covered, and forced the Arab to drop his gun. "Where are Miss Madison and Miss Terry?" Orman demanded. Eyad knew no English, but he recognized the names. In excited pantomime he began to describe what he knew of the fate of Rhonda and Naomi.

"I don't know exactly what he's trying to say," West observed; "but I gather something terrible has happened to the girls. I wonder where it was." "I'll make him guide us to it," Orman answered grimly. "We'll start tomorrow. We'll soon know what it's all about!"

RAIL BROTHERHOODS, AUXILIARIES MEET

Judge Cone Chief Speaker at First Joint Meeting of Georgia Lodges.

The first meeting of railroad brotherhood lodges and ladies' auxiliaries of Georgia was held Thursday night in the auditorium of the Stone Baking Company. The meeting promises to become an annual affair, it is reported, for better acquaintance among railroad people.

Judge John L. Cone was the principal speaker at the dinner which was held at 7 o'clock. Ed Swann, president of the railroad Y. M. C. A., was toastmaster for the evening and also made a talk. By way of further entertainment, each lodge and ladies' auxiliary put on a number, with ladies' auxiliary of Lodge 810, of Cherokee, Ga., taking the prize. A showing of an "Our Gang" comedy completed the program.

This is the first joint meeting of Georgia lodges and auxiliaries, and attending members were enthusiastic in their motion to make it an annual affair. The meeting was attended by 350 members. Mrs. Ella Mae Taylor, of the ladies' auxiliary of Atlanta Lodge 230, was chairman.

MAN BADLY HURT IN CRASH, DRIVER OF STOLEN CAR SHOT

A man was injured in an automobile accident and a negro man was shot Thursday afternoon as the result of a car being stolen Thursday morning from Joe Nathan, of Hightower road.

Nathan phoned police and Motorcycle Patrolmen P. E. Jones and E. H. Johnson later saw the car being driven by a negro man. They pursued him from Walker and Larkin streets to West Fair and Mildred streets, where the fleeing car crashed into the machine of E. L. Sheppard, of 939 West Peachtree, who received a possible fracture of the skull and was admitted to Grady hospital. The Sheppard car overturned and the other machine hit a telephone pole and broke it off.

The negro driver, identified as John Henry Welch, of Hightower road, jumped out and ran. Officers Jones and Johnson fired at him several times and the negro was hit in the arm. After treatment at Grady he was arrested on "suspicion." Police said a stray bullet tore through the clothes of a negro girl named Rosa Brazell, of Mildred street, but did not break the skin.

HOUSING MEASURE SOUGHT FOR STATE

Proposed Legislation Would Create Authorities for Cities, Counties.

Legislative backing for creation of housing authorities for cities and counties of Georgia for the purpose of protecting the "health, morals, general welfare and public safety" and in order that the "people of the state may be able to make the fullest use of federal monies in so far as they may be made available," will be sought in the 1935 session.

Councilman Max M. Cuba, chairman of the Atlanta Housing Authority, has caused such a bill to be prepared and is ready to dispatch it to other members of the authority for their scrutiny, it was learned Thursday.

The measure provides that counties or cities may set up independent authorities and that they shall work independently, having no authority over one another.

Provisions of the proposed bill give the authority so created a wide range in development of properties. It is provided that the authority may issue bonds backed solely by proceeds from such improvements as may be made or backed by mortgages. The bill would empower the authority to issue bonds and otherwise conduct the business for which it is created.

If cities set up such authorities, their mayors and councils must act, and if counties decide to set up similar bodies, the county commissioners and in the absence of commissioners, the ordinaries must act.

Five representative citizens shall compose the authority and shall be designated by the mayor, commissioners or ordinary in the absence of a commission. They shall serve for five-year terms, and vacancies shall be filled by appointment for unexpired terms.

A feature of the bill as prepared is that no obligation shall be incurred either by the state, a county or a city for any indebtedness incurred by the authority, but that assets of the authority shall be held solely responsible.

Atlanta has established an authority, but its effectiveness has been limited since the state has taken no action to authorize such bodies. The plan is to give the local and any other authorities which may be created some standing by legislative enactment.

NEW DECCA RECORDS OFFER SMASHING HITS

A short time ago the greates record proposition the phonograph record industry has ever known was announced by Decca Records, Inc., home office 799 Seventh avenue, New York city. The new and amply financed company is under the capable leadership of Jack Kapp, president, and E. F. Stevens Jr., vice president and general manager. For the first time the public can buy new electrical recordings of all types, featured by the world's best-known artists and orchestras at less than half the price they are accustomed to paying.

Only on the new Decca all-star record can there be obtained sparkling, new recordings of smashing hits by these famous stars: Bing Crosby, Guy Lombardo and his Royal Canadians, Mills Brothers, Ted Lewis, Glen Gray and his Casa Loma orchestra, Bob Crosby (Bing Crosby's brother), Earl Hines, Noble Sissle, Isham Jones' orchestra, Clarence Williams' orchestra, Dorsey Brothers and a long list of others.

In addition to popular recordings Decca has a line of hill-billy, race and Mexican recordings. New 12-inch popular and standard records, by famous artists, also are offered at attractive prices.

To speed service to dealers everywhere eight fully stocked branches have been established. The Atlanta branch is located at 225 Pryor street, S. W., under the management of Warren Fitch.

Spanish Fascists Open Attack on Republic

MADRID, Dec. 6.—(AP)—A formidable drive to end the second Spanish republic and put in its stead a dictatorship modeled after Benito Mussolini's "corporative state," with view to eventual restoration of the monarchy, was formally launched tonight.

Jose Calvo Sotelo, minister of finance under former King Alfonso XIII, proclaimed the formation of his "national bloc" intended to unite monarchists and rightists, and demanded the creation of a "co-operative state" under a centralized mandate.

The manifesto, a blasting attack against the present republican regime, called on Spaniards to "end disorganization and class conflict" through the formation of a powerful centralized state supported and defended by the guns of the army.

The proclamation, signed by many notable national personages, was regarded as extremely significant in that it marked the first united powerful monarchist attack on the republic and revealed the beginning of the first important active collaboration between the two branches of monarchists, the Alfonsists and Carlists, since the Carlist wars began a century ago.

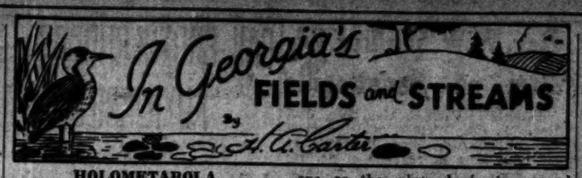
Code Compliance Head To Reach Here Today

Furthering the government's attempts at decentralizing the national recovery administration's compliance machinery, a regional compliance council under the chairmanship of R. J. Martin, of Washington, D. C., will set up operations Monday.

Mr. Martin comes to Atlanta to take charge of all litigation in code matters referred to the regional council by either the state director or the regional director. He will appoint one representative from industry and one from labor today to sit on the council with him, acting on all code complaints which the subordinate organizations are unable to adjust.

When legal action becomes necessary as a result of code violation Mr. Martin will act in conjunction with United States District Attorney Lawrence Camp in an effort to bring about speedier code enforcement.

The Atlanta council is one of 10 similar boards set up throughout the country. A native of Richmond, Mr. Martin formerly was assistant counsel of the NRA litigation division. His present jurisdiction extends over South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Tennessee.



HOLOMETABOLA.

Holometaboleus development, as you should now be able to judge by inference, is complete metamorphosis. In this type of insect development there are four distinct stages, no part of which can be recognized as belonging with any other part. It is the familiar egg-larva-pupa-adult type of metamorphosis. The butterflies and the mosquitos are perhaps the best example of this sort of development in that they are better known than the others.

The eggs of the butterfly and of the moth are laid on some specific food plant. Upon hatching the larva (caterpillar in this case) begins feeding. It passes through several moults but remains undoubtedly a caterpillar. Some sorts of caterpillars wreak a terrific damage on our shrubs and flowers. My cannas were ruined late this summer by a species of Hesperid caterpillar. Lucien Harris Jr. tells me that this species is a tropical skipper that occurs here only at rare intervals. Not realizing this I missed a good chance to get some valuable specimens.

After the caterpillar has passed its eating life it goes into a resting stage. In the butterflies this stage is the crysalis, in some moths it is the pupa, and in other moths the cocoon encloses the pupa. This resting stage provides an opportunity to catch butterflies and moths without great effort. Simply collect the cocoons and pupae and leave them in a screen cage out of doors. Next spring you will be rewarded with a parade of color and form when the adults begin emerging.

The pupa or chrysalis merely splits down the back and the adult form emerges. Those that are in cocoons secrete a fluid that seems to dissolve the silk to permit exit. A newly emerged Polyphemus moth is not a thing of beauty, but it rapidly becomes one as the wings begin to expand and dry. The adult form bears no resemblance to the other there stages of the life history. I like the idea expressed by some one—

"What's a butterfly? At best
He's but a caterpillar dressed!"

But I think it is a bit derogatory to the butterfly. The amazing changes through which an insect passes in the course of its life cycle are but implications of the tremendous changes through which insects have passed in their radical evolution.

Democratic Nominees For City Confirmed

All democratic nominees for posts in the Atlanta city government were confirmed in Wednesday's election, according to consolidated returns Thursday.

Both Blackshear and Sherard, however, carried the first ward getting 65 votes each, while Coleman mustered, 27, and Landers received 26.
